Southern Commercial & Savings Teller's Cage Looted — Auto Abandoned Two Blocks Away.

The Southern Commercial & Savings Bank at 7201 South Broadway was robbed of $31,130 at noon today by a man who took the money from a teller's cage.

He stuffed the bills, chiefly packages of $10s and $20s, in a brown briefcase and walked calmly from the bank before entering an automobile parked in front. The machine was found abandoned at Broadway and Upton street, two blocks away.

The robber, who was about 45 years old and of slender build, went first to the teller's cage of A. R. Meyer, displayed a pistol and said: "This is a stickup. Give me the money."

Meyer replied: "I will not," and dropped to the floor.

Demands 'Big Stuff.'

The man then moved casually over to the adjacent cage where Mrs. Lorraine Waller was teller. He repeated his demand and Mrs. Waller began shoving $1 bills toward the robber.

"Give me the big stuff," he commanded.

Mrs. Waller, who is 24 years old and lives at 8405 Minnesota avenue, reached into a safe beneath the counter and produced the packages of larger bills.

In approaching the teller, the robber used his pistol to shove aside two customers, Edward T. Hoock and William Johnson, both of 6424 Vermont avenue, who were standing in front of the cage.

In the meantime, Miss Patsy J. Parks, whose teller's cage is next to that of Mrs. Waller, saw what was happening and called to A. C. Waldemer, vice president: "There is a holdup going on."

Waldemer stood up at his desk in time to see the robber coolly making his way to the door through customers and other bank employes, most of whom were unaware of the holdup.

More than the usual amounts of money were placed in the four tellers' cages today in anticipation of heavy business following the holiday period, bank officials said.

Toy Pistol in Auto.

In the back seat of the abandoned automobile, a black, 1950 Pontiac whose license number had been noted, was a toy pistol. However, Mrs. Waller told police she was certain that the firearm pointed at her was no toy.

Police received the first report of the robbery from Mrs. Calvin Hassell, 7127 Virginia avenue, who was in the bank preparing to deposit $1200 when the robbery began.

She called a warning to a bank employe, quickly scooped up the money she was counting and ran next door to a dry goods store where she sounded an alarm. Mrs. Hassell and her husband, who is blind, operate a confectionery.

The bank has no holdup alarm system. Waldemer explained that when the bank was remodeled about six years an alarm system was not installed because mechanical failures of a previous system resulted in many false alarms.

Today's robbery marked the first holdup of the bank since its establishment in 1891, Waldemer said.

PRESIDENT BACK AT WORK AFTER PHYSICAL CHECKUP

DENVER, Sept. 7 (AP) — President Eisenhower returned to his summer White House desk today after an overnight stay in the hospital for his annual physical checkup.

"Oh boy, I had a big sleep last night," the smiling President remarked as he stepped from his car at the Lowry Air Force Base administration building.

"How do you feel, Mr. President?" a reporter asked the Chief Executive as he mounted the steps.

"Fine, fine—that's the point of it," the President replied, referring to the physical examination he underwent at nearby Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

James C. Hagerty, White Housepress secretary, told reporters Mr. Eisenhower got a "very favorable" preliminary report on his condition at the hospital, but will not receive a final detailed report for several days.

HURRICANE WHIPS THROUGH BAHAMAS TOWARD FLORIDA

MIAMI, Sept. 7 (UP)—A dangerous hurricane plowed through the Bahams today with winds above 90 milevs an hour and a storm expert here predicted it would smash south Florida by tomorrow night unless there is a "radical" change of course.

Latest advisories from the hurricane were that its power is growing by the hour.

Chief Forecaster Grady Norton of the Miami Weather Bureau warned that the hurricane is "a very definvite threat to the southern half of Florida."

"We can see no radical change in course for the hurricane now. The upper wind streams seem to be set and they are pulling it in the general direction of Florida. At its present rate of speed it will be here tomorrow night."

The hurricane was headed toward the general area of Florida Gold Coast, which extends from Key West to Palm Beach.

ADENAUER PARTY REGAINS MAJORITY IN BUNDESTAG

BONN, Germany, Sept. 7 (AP) —Chancellor Konrad Adenauers Christian Democratic party (C.D.U.) today regained its absolute majority in the Bundestag (lower House), lost when one of its deputies deserted to East Germany.

C.D.U. lost its one-vote majority when Karl Franz Schmidt-Wittmack went over to East Germany last month.

CHANGE IS URGED IN ALDERMANIC COURTESY RULE

Grand Jury Recommends Alteration or Elimination as Way to Prevent Bribes.

Alteration or elimination of the custom of aldermanic courtesy as a means of preventing solicitation of bribes by aldermen was recommended today in the final report of the current circuit court grand jury.

The custom, which accords to each alderman the final word on any legislation affecting only his own ward, was evident in many matters investigated by the grand jury, the report stated.

Among the 124 true bills returned were indictments of Aldermen Ben Oliver and Walter W. Ziegenbalg for allegedly soliciting and accepting bribes from persons desiring passage of certain bills.

"While the citizens may, in remote instances, benefit from this practice, we feel that the citizens suffer much greater loss in matters of city-wide benefits with such a practice as aldermanic courtesy," the report said. "It is our recommendation that the Board of Aldermen re-examine this practice with the purpose of its alteration or complete elimination."

Suggestions on Real Estate.

Also recommended was a four-point change in the city's methods of selling its real estate. Such sales are now made with the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the passage of an ordinance by the aldermen. Oliver was indicted for allegedly soliciting a bribe for his support of one such bill.

The grand jury recommended that an acceptable sale price should be set on each piece of property the city wants to sell. It should be based on an appraisal made and kept up to date by competent real estate appraisers.

Secondly, when evidence of interest in the purchase of a piece of property is made known to the Comptroller's office, proper notice of a public auction of the property should be set for a date not more than 30 days hence.

Thirdly, a minimum acceptable price should be set, and even though only one person submits a bid, the land should be sold if it commands the minimum price.

Finally, the procedure should include definite payment terms such as 25 per cent of the purchase price and the remainder when the quitclaim deed is delivered.

These four steps "would

WINCHELL 'NOT SURE' WHO GAVE HIM COPY OF DATA M'CARTHY USED

Columnist Testifies He Does Not Think Any on Senator's Staff Handed FBI-Army Document to Him.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP) —Walter Winchell testified today he does not know who gave him a copy of the two and a quarter page document Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin presented at the McCarthy-Army hearings.

The newspaper columnist was called as a witness at hearings by a special Senate committee weighing censure charges against McCarthy.

Senator Ralph Flanders (Rep.), Vermont, has charged that McCarthy's and Winchell's possession of the document, a summary of confidential FBI information prepared for the Army, involved possible violation of the espionage law.

Won't Disclose Source.

When first questioned about it at today's hearing Winchell refused to tell who gave him the document, saying he would not disclose his news sources.

But Senator Watkins (Rep.), Utah, chairman of the special, six-member committee, pressed him further and asked him if he knew who gave him the document.

"I do not know," Winchell replied. "I am not sure."

Watkins suggested that Winchell could have save time if he had said that in the first place.

Edward Bennett Williams, chief counsel to McCarthy, challenged the committee's right to question Winchell about the document unless the columnist could swear he knew it was a true copy of the hotly-disputed document.

Watkins overruled him.

"The fact is," Watkins told Williams, "I think it will help you rather than hurt you" to admit the testimony. He did not explain his reasoning.

Winchell, a friend of McCarthy, was called as a surprise witness as the committee's special staff was preparing to conclude the presentation of its testimony, to make way for the opening of McCarthy's defense tomorrow.

Winchell Sits Silently By.

Winchell sat silently as Williams argued the competency of his testimony.

Once his testimony was ordered, Winchell went on to say specifically that it was not McCarthy who gave him the copy of the document.

He said he did not think any member of McCarthy's staff had handed it to him, although he conceded he was "not sure" of this.

Asked specifically about some of the investigations subcommittee staff members whom he said he knew including Francis P. Carr and James Juliana, Winchell said they did not give it to him.

Last May, Winchell wrote in his column that he had received a copy of the document and had burned it after consulting with several Government officials.

Winchell said in the column that members of the subcommittee investigating the McCarthy-Army row had refused to read the document on the grounds that it was marked personal and confidential, and said he remeraked to reporters at the time:

"Nothing is personal and confidential to me when it concerns spies and the welfare of our country. I wish I could get a copy."

In a recess, shortly thereafter, he wrote, "some eavesdropper" handed him a copy. Winchell

SHOWERS WASH AWAY 100-DEGREE HEAT WAVE HERE

Showers today washed away a 100-degree heat wave, which over the Labor day weekend broke one record and approached two others far too closely for comfort.

"It looks like the 100-degree weather is over," Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren said as the rain fell. Cautiously, he added that only once in St. Louis's weather history has the temperature risen to 100 after Sept. 9. Thus, he said, yesterday's 101 may well be the last reading in the 100s for 1954, which has brought 14 such marks so far.

Yesterday's maximum was only a degree below the Sept. 6 record of 102 set in 1925, while Sunday's 102.3 narorwly missed equaling the Sept. 5 record of 102.6, also dating from 1925. But 1925 yielded to 1954 on Saturday when the 102 reading broke the 101.5 mark, established Sept. 4, 1925.

Today's first shower brought .27 of an inch of moisture in 30 minutes, with more predicted. It was the first measurable rain this month. As welcome as the much-needed moisture was the forecast low in the middle 60s for tonight.

CHIANG'S PLANES, WARSHIPS BLAST REDS AT AMOY; SOUTHEAST ASIA PACT TO BE SIGNED TOMORROW

MAIN UNDECIDED ARTICLE SAID TO BE ON MILITARY COMMITMENTS

Thailand, Philippines Hold Out for Strong Treaty—Dulles Agrees to Drop Plan to Name Communism.

MANILA, Sept. 7 (AP)—Eight nations writing a pact aimed at halting aggression in Asia today virtually agreed on all outstanding issues and scheduled the formal signing for tomorrow.

A reliable source said it seemed certain there would be no final hitch in secret proceedings, but delegates still were sweating over the exact wording of the key clause.

This involves the military commitments to be made by the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines.

All But 2 Points Settled.

A Philippine delegate said only the extent of military commitments to be made and the treaty preamble remain to be agreed on.

T. Clifton Webb, Minister of External Affairs for New Zealand, told newsmen:

"We hope to sign the document Wednesday at 4 p.m. (3 a.m. St. Louis time). The conference opened yesterday and on the following first day the delegates approved half the 10-article treaty draft. Most of the items agreed on the first day, however, were of a minor, technical nature.

Thailand and the Philippines were reported holding out for a NATO-type agreement under which all members would come instantly to the defense of any member attacked.

The United States is arguing for a pact under which each member would react to an attack on another within its own constitutional framework.

Delegates today adopted an article stating that nations "by means of continuous and effective self help and mutual aid will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack and to prevent and overcome subversive activity directed from without against their territorial integrity and political stability."

The informed source said approval came after Thailand abandoned demands to include subversive activity within a nation as well as outside its borders.

Progress on Economic Clause.

The delegates also were reported to have agreed to accept general terms in which the economic clause of the proposed draft treaty was written. It provides for co-operation "with each other in development of economic measures designed to promote economic stability and social well-being."

Asian nations had been holding out for more concrete proposals as to what will be done to develop economic stability and social well-being.

The delegates provisionally approved an article calling for the creation of a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization council which would meet any time members feel it necessary.

The source said the United States has indicated it is willing to drop from the treaty preamble the word "Communism" as the specific aggressor against which the pact is being formed.

The United States had been holding out alone for identifying the aggressor as Communism.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was quoted as telling the negotiators the United States could not sign a treaty without some form of reservation from other members, explaining that "we do not consider any aggression the same as Communist aggression."

Same as Attack on U.S.

Dulles stressed, the source said, that the United States considers Communist aggression in Asia the same as an attack on the United States. On the other hand, he said, a local war in the Far East would not be considered by the President and Congress because it would not be a threat to the United States.

"This is a very complex matter but it's not going to hold up signing of the treaty," Dulles said. "However, all will have to understand our position when the treaty is signed."

The source said France has submitted a possible solution to the problem of whether Laos, Cambodia and South Viet Nam should be included in the treaty areao, about which differences have arisen.

The French delegation proposed a "document of protocol" which would add the three states to the area covered by the treaty although they would

U.S. TAKING SOVIET ATTACK ON NAVY PLANE BEFORE U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP)—The United States put its latest cold war brush with Russia before the United Nations today. United States Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., asked for an "early meeting" of the Security Council to consider the shooting down of a United States Navy plane off Siberia Saturday by Soviet jet fighters.

Lodge returned to New York from a holiday at his Beverly, Mass., home and telephoned his request for the council meeting last night to Francisco Urrutia of Colombia, the 11-nation group's president for September. Assistants on the United States delegation said he would follow up with a formal request by letter today.

In a brief statement from his delegation headquarters, Lodge said he had asked for the council meeting "to consider the situation arising from the unprovoked attack . . . by aircraft of the Soviet Union over international waters . . ."

Nine of the 10 crewmen aboard the two-engine Neptune patrol bomber were rescued unharmed after drifting all night on a raft. One man, Ens. Roger Henry Reid of Alameda, Calif., apparently went down with the plane.

The survivors said they were on a routine patrol mission well off the Siberian coast when two MIG-15 jets opened fire on them without warning. With one wing on fire, the plane crashed and sank in the sea. The United States termed the attack as "wanton and unprovoked" in a strongly worded protest note to the Moscow government.

Before its delivery, however, the Soviet Foreign Office had handed United States Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen a protest charging that the United States

CHILDREN SWAP COMIC BOOKS FOR HARD-BOUND KIND

CANTON, O., Sept. 7 (AP)—Youngsters watched their crime and horror comic books ripped up today at the Stark County Fair.

For each 10 comic books brought for destruction, they were given a hard-bound book of their choice from among 1010 volumes made available by the public library and the mayor's advisory committee for good reading habits.

The committee-chosen books, worth an average of $1 each, covered more than 200 subjects. Funds for the book swap program, launched at the fair yesterday, came from the city and volunteer contributions.

Committee members said more boys than girls brought in comics and favored reward books dealing with science, airplanes and mysteries. Girls leaned toward "Swiss Family Robinson," "Heidi" and Hans Christian Anderson's fables.

BRITISH SURVEY EFFECTS OF TV ON YOUNG MINDS

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—A British research organization has begun a two-year investigation to find out whether television is a boon or curse in shaping young minds.

The Nuffield Foundation appointed a committee of nine educators, psychologists and other experts to look into the issue.

The research staff will be led by Dr. Hilde Himmelweit, a lecturer in social psychology at the London School of Economics. The privately operated foundation says the British Broadcasting Corp. has promised to cooperate. The Government-chartered B.B.C. has a monopoly on TV broadcasting in this country, but commercially sponsored programs will be added next year.

SENATE COUNSEL'S TONGUE TWISTED BY 'INVESTIGATIVE'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP) (AP) — E. Wallace Chadwick, counsel for the Senate committee investigating censure charges against Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, had trouble today pronouncing "investigative."

Struggling through the word syllable by syllable while reading legal matter into the record, Chadwick finally turned to Senator Arthur V. Watkins (Rep.), Utah, and said: "Mr. Chairman, my tongue has become allergic to that word."

Expert Disbelievers.

OXFORD, England, Sept. 7 —The British Association for the Advancement of Science held a meeting yesterday on weather forecasting. The scientists attending emerged into a downpour and none had raincoats or umbrellas. Sunday's forecast for yesterday: Rain.

ALL-DAY ATTACK HITS COMMUNIST GUNS, BARRACKS, INVASION SHIPS

100 Military Junks Reported Sunk or Damaged — Village and Ammunition Dumps Blown Up.

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 7 (UP)—The Nationalist Chinese announced today that a combined air-sea attack blasted Red artillery and troop barracks near Amoy and destroyed or damaged more than 100 Communist military junks massed around Nationalist-held Quemoy island.

The Nationalist Defense Ministry said Generalissmo Chiang Kai-shek's air force and navy attacked Red targets all day.

The combined forced claimed they sank a Red gunboat and five large motor junks. They damaged or sank 100 other war junks, the Nationalists said.

Troop barracks near the mainland port of Amoy were damaged, as were troop emplacements around the port and its surrounding islands.

100 Planes Take Part.

(The Peiping radio said the attack was made by two waves of Nationalist planes totaling 42. A Chinese language broadcast heard in Tokyo claimed one of the warplanes was shot down and 19 others damaged. Peiping said the raiders dropped 62 bombs, killing 18 persons and injuring two.

(The broadcast reported Amoy was under fire from five warships and from artillery on Quemoy. Peiping said Red shore batteries answered the fire.)

The warplanes concentrated on the junks, which presumably would be used by the Chinese Communists as invasion craft if they attempt to take Quemoy, 15 miles off the mainland and about seven miles from Amoy.

Nationalist warships pounded Red artillery positions which had shelled Quemoy. The Soviet-built coastal guns opened up on Quemoy last Friday and shelled the island sporadically throughout the weekend.

Explosions and flames were reported from hits on artillery and ammunition dumps scored by the Nationalist planes and naval guns. All the Nationalist planes returned to their bases, the Defense Ministry said.

No naval opposition was reported.

First 'Major Retaliation.'

The Nationalists claimed that a village north of Tatan went up in flames after Nationalist planes attacked Red positions there with bombs and rockets. Naval guns shelled the area.

The air-sea assault was described by the Defense Ministry as Chiang's first "major retaliation" against the Reds for bombarding Quemoy.

Two American officers on Quemoy were killed Friday in the Red shelling.

U.S. OPENS DOOR TO RUSSIA TO JOIN ATOM POOL

Eisenhower Discloses Pact With Allies to Set Up Agency for Peaceful Uses.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP) —President Eisenhower held the door open today for Soviet cooperation in a new allied undertaking to spread peaceful benefits of atomic energy to many lands.

A diplomatic authority said Russia's behavior toward the United States and particularly the Kremlin's rejection of a previous proposal by Mr. Eisenhower that it join in an international atomic pool appeared to rule out any move to join the latest project.

Nevertheless, the decision announced by the President yesterday to go ahead without Russia on an international atomic agency plan would appear to put the Soviets somewhat on the spot since they have so far indicated no interest in sharing their own atomic energy knowhow and resources with anybody else.

Aim of Agency.

What Mr. Eisenhower disclosed was that the United States Government has agreed with other nations to set up an agency to "foster the growth and spread of new atomic technology for peaceful use." The President did not name the countries, but an aid at the summer White House in Denver said they are Britain, France, Canada, South Africa and Australia.

Mr. Eisenhower expressed hope that "no nation will long stand aloof" from the enterprise. This seemed clearly to keep the door open for Russian co-operation provided the Soviets are interested.

For the time being, the President made clear, the project aims to provide benefits for friendly, free nations. He said the intent of the nations joining in the undertaking is to share atomic technology "with others of goodwill."

Other non-Communist countries may join the project shortly. It is known that there have been negotiations with Belgium, which controls one of the world's great uranium producing areas in the Belgian Congo. South Africa and Australia are in the project as producing countries. The United States, Britain and Canada are in as countries with atomic industry and France as one with skill in atomic research and development.

Mr. Eisenhower spoke to the nation by radio and television in connection with ground-breaking ceremonies for the nation's first

CHURCHILL SKIPS VACATION TO WORK ON ALLIED DEFENSE

He Is Reported to Consider Next Few Weeks Most Critical Since World War II.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (UP)—Prime Minister Churchill called off a Riviera vacation to take charge of Britain's effort to find a defense system to replace the European Defense Community, informed sources reported today.

The sources said Churchill considered the next few weeks the most critical for the western alliance since World War II.

ST. LOUIS TO NEW YORK BUS OVERTURNS IN OHIO, 5 HURT

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 7 (AP)—Five persons were injured early today when a Greyhound bus crashed through a guardrail, hurtled an embankment and landed on its top near here.

Eight persons were given hospital treatment and three were released.

A Greyhound spokesman in Pittsburgh said the bus was en route from St. Louis to New York, but none of the injured was from the St. Louis area.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—New York City was hoodwinked by two nineteenth century small towns and as a result the city is now footing the bill on some old bonds that are an investor's wildest dream come true.

The super-gilt-edged bonds are tax exempt, pay 7 per cent interest, and the last of them doesn't come due until the year 2147.

The story was detailed yesterday by City Comptroller Lawrence E. Gerosa.

This "horrible" public financing, according to Gerosa, is all the fault of the Republicans. Gerosa is a Democrat.

Back in 1865, the Republican State Legislature authorized the bond issues, one by the town of Morrisania, the other by the town of West Farms, which were then part of Westchester county. The money was needed to build what is now Jerome avenue.

The canny officials of the two towns knew it was inevitable that their communities would soon become a part of New York City (the annexation actually occurred in 1874), and therefore, backed by the Legislature's authorization, they arranged the long-term loan so that they could borrow the money but the city would be stuck with the bill, Gerosa said.

Morrissania's share was to be paid off in 100 years, starting in 1881, and West Farm's in 278 years, starting in 1869, both at 7 per cent, payable annually.

The road actually cost $377,500 to build but it will cost $3,442,000 by the time the loan is paid off.

The city has managed to get back some of these securities, but $123,500 worth still remain in the hands of private investors. Since the federal income tax began in 1913, making the tax exempt bonds even more desirable, Gerosa added, it has been "impossible to obtain them in the investment market."

Irate Service Station Man Cuts Price to 9c, Sells 20,000 Gallons

WANTAGH, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP)—An irate gasoline station operator got rid of 20,000 gallons of fuel over the weekend—by cutting the price to nine cents a gallon.

Edwin R. Butterworth said he was irked because the oil company he buys from has been criticizing him for not selling that quantity every month, and he decided to unload his quota over the Labor day holiday.

A steady stream of motorists rallied to help him. Pump congestion ended yesterday afternoon when, the 20,000 quota gone, Butterworth put his signs back to the regular 25.9 cents a gallon. He said the sale cost him about $2000 but that he intended to charge it all off to "advertising and entertainment."

After all the gasoline was gone, Butterworth discovered he had forgotten to fill the tank of his own automobile. He had to patronize the rival station across the way before he could drive home.

FRENCH END RULE IN S. INDOCHINA, PLEDGE VIET NAM FULL FREEDOM

Tricolor Hauled Down as Norodom Palace Is Turned Over to Premier Diem — France Promises Support.

SAIGON, Indochina, Sept. 7 (UP)—France hauled down the Tricolor from the flagstaff at Norodom palace today and promised free Viet Nam "total independence and complete support" in its struggle to become a new nation.

Up went the red-striped yellow flag of Viet Nam to mark the end of French administration in south Indochina.

Gen. Paul Ely, French commissioner general and supreme military commander in Indochina, turned over gleaming Norodom palace, for decades the seat of French rule, to the government of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem.

French Position.

"Today the war is over and the French position is unequivocal," Ely said. "In four words, it is total independence and complete support. Henceforward France will impose neither the presence of the French expeditionary corps nor require Viet Nam's participation in the franc (monetary) area, or in anything else."

Several hundred official guests witnessed the ceremony from the palace's broad lawns and thousands of spectators outside its iron grill gate watched the French flag slowly descend.

Diem, in a magnanimous gesture intended to soften the "noble bitterness" which he said the French must feel at hauling down their flag, ordered the Tricolor to fly side by side with the Viet Namese banner until sundown.

Ely told the premier he would be haunted by the specters of the great French colonial administrators who built modern Indochina and said he might be enveloped, as were the French, "in the illusion of power and order."

Ely concluded with the advice that the true structure of independence remained to be built.

"It cannot be transferred—it is something that exists within," Ely said. "It demands a profound political, social, moral and ecotlomic renovation. It also demands the effort towards unity among patriots, for the aid of France can do nothing for a divided country.

More Cordial Attitude.

In a response which indicated the nationalist Viet Namese government has adopted a more cordial attitude to the French, Diem promised to go forward "hand in hand with the French."

Earlier, military officials said they believed the Red Indochinese have returned most of their war prisoners, even though only a fraction of those captured came back.

Military officials said about 11,000 European, African and loyal Viet Namese prisoners were repatriated. Of the 40,000 men still listed as "missing in action," most were believed to have been captured.

"What happened to the rest?" is a frequent question. The answer appeared to be malaria, dysentery, beri-beri and lack of food, medicine and doctors in Communist prison camps.

The Communist Vietminh radio said today that all French prisoners had been returned. No mention was made of prisoners of other nationalities.

By the Associated Press.

Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries, French commander at Dien Bien Phu, arrived in Saigon yesterday from Hanoi where he had rested after being freed by the Vietminh.

He will go to Dalat, a mountain resort, where Gen. Ely is staying. The date of De Castries' departure for Paris has not been announced.

He told a reporter in Hanoi that he had thought of trying to escape during his four months' captivity.

"But," he said, "I had dysentery and it was difficult, almost impossible."

"Some prisoners tried to run away but couldn't make it," De Castries added. "Village inhabitants would shelter them and feed them and, at the same time, inform the Vietminh."

The general, who said he had dropped in weight from 154 to 138 pounds, looked pale and his hair was flecked with gray.

He declined to comment in detail on the battle of Dien Bien Phu, apparently on instructions from French authorities who have refused so far to set up a formal interview with the general.

But he did say his men "fought like lions."

"The Vietminh suffered terrible losses," he said, "but they were in a position to bring up more men all the time."

The general stressed the importance of Vietminh artillery and transport, recalling that he had seen "at least 1500 Molotov trucks."

On Navy Plane Shot Down by Reds —Associated Press Radiophoto.

Survivors of United States Navy patrol plane which was shot down in Sea of Japan by Russian-made MIG fighters are shown at press conference following rescue. In group (from left) are: ENS. JOHN CHARLES FISHER, San Francisco; ABC PAUL ROGER MULHOLLEM, Alameda, Calif.; AT3 TEXAS STONE, Houston, Tex.; COMDR. JOHN BOOTH WAYNE (at microphone), Alameda; AL3 FRANK EDGAR PETTY, Austin, Tex.; AD1 WILLIAM ALBERT BEDARD, Worcester, Mass.; AT1 DAVID ALLEN ATWELL, San Leandro, Calif.; AT/AN ANTONONY PETER GRANERA (seated), San Francisco, and AO1 ERNEST LOUIS PINKEVICH, Alameda.

U.S. TAKING SOVIET ATTACK ON NAVY PLANE BEFORE U.N.

plane had flown within the Soviet frontiers and opened fire on two Soviet fighters which approached it. The Russian note said the Red pilots "were forced to open fire in return."

In a second note rejecting the Russian protest completely, the State Department said, "At no time did the United States Navy aircraft open fire on the Soviet aircraft." Brought back to Atsugi, Japan, the survivors said their guns were not loaded, but ordnance man Ernest Louis Pinkevich of Alameda, Calif., said he was able to load one gun and fire about 150 rounds "mostly in hope of scaring them off."

Position Revised.

The Navy Department also revised the position of the attack previously announced by the State Department, but said it still was well away from Russian territory.

The first United States note had said the attack took place approximately 100 miles east of Vladivostok and 44 miles from the Siberian coast. A Navy spokesman said yesterday a plotting of bearings reported by the survivors indicated the plane crashed into the sea about 125 miles southeast of Vladivostok and 44 miles off Siberia.

Because Lodge asked for an "early" meeting rather than an "urgent" session, it was expected that Urrutia would not call the Security Council to meet before next week. A request for an urgent meeting usually means a session the next day.

The United States appeared to be seeking time to complete its case against the Russians, but still anxious to beat them to the initial punch should the Kremlin also decide to take the incident to the U.N.

Revised accounts of the Soviet attack, released in Washington yesterday, indicated that the American investigation was still in progress.

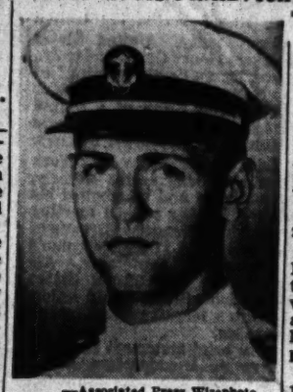

The Navy plane was the sixth United States military aircraft shot down by the Russians either in Europe or over the Pacific, but this was the first time the United States has brought such an incident before the Security Council.

Knowland for Breakoff.

Senator Knowland of California, Republican leader in the Senate, sent a telegram to President Eisenhower's vacation headquarters in Denver, saying: "Just another note from our State Department to the Kremlin hierarchy will not impress these uncivilized rulers nor the Russian people who were the first victims of Communist tyranny that this new attack upon an American plane confirms Communist arrogance and aggressiveness to a point where the breaking of diplomatic relations is justified.

"I strongly urge that the Soviet Ambassador and his staff be sent home . . ."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters he knows of "no change" in the President's view, voiced at a recent press conference, that the nation's best interests would not be served by breaking diplomatic ties with the Soviet Unfighters said yesterday he was never in sight of Soviet territory.

"Not even with binoculars," Comdr. John B. Wayne, Alameda, Calif., said.

Nine of the 10 men aboard survived the attack. Ens. Roger Henry Reid of Alameda was lost in the sea.

Wayne said his radios were tuned to Russian stations at the time of the attack Saturday about 40 miles off the Siberian coast but received no warning.

"The only warning they gave us was coming in over our tail and shooting at us," Aircraft Ordnanceman Ernest L. Pinkevich, also of Alameda, said.

Aviation Machinist William A. Bedard, Worcester, Mass., was the first to sight the Russian planes against the setting sun.

"I was watching the top deck turret," Badard said. "I kept a close eye out but I couldn't see very well with the sun in my eyes.

"But then I saw a flash across the sun and saw a plane making a high sweeping turn past the tail of our aircraft.

"I hardly had time to alert the skipper when I saw tracers coming up at us."

Bedard said he fired 100 to 150 rounds from his twin 50-caliber machine guns as the MIGs disappeared in the direction of Vladivostok.

Bedard said the Navy crew "didn't have a chance" to shoot down the plane which made three runs against the slow, twin-engined patrol plane.

"They missed us on the first pass by about six feet," Pinkevich said. "The tracers were going under our wing. They hit us on the second pass but we turned away on the third."

Wayne ditched the plane after fire broke out in the left wing.

(The Associated Press quoted Pinkevich as saying the guns on the Navy plane were not loaded when the Russians began their attack, but that he managed to load a machine gun before the plane went down.

(Pinkevich said: "I fired about 150 rounds. It was mostly in hope of scaring them off because it was a bad position for aiming. But they didn't scare.")

Former St. Louisan One of Nine Survivors of Attack.

A former St. Louisan, First Class Aviation Technician David A. Atwell, was one of nine survivors of a Navy patrol plane which was shot down off Siberia Saturday by a Communist fighter plane, relatives here have been informed.

Atwell's wife telephoned his brother, Harry Atwell, 10662 St. Philip lane, St. Ann's, that she had received a telegram from him in which he told of being safe after the crash. She said she also had received notification from the Navy.

Atwell, 29 years old, lives at San Leandro, Calif. He attended school here before enlisting in the Navy in 1942. Two other brothers and two sisters also live in the St. Louis area.

BRITAIN SUGGESTS SEPT. 14 MEETING ON GERMAN ARMS

U.S. Not Certain Dulles Can Attend at That Time But Favors 9-Nation Conference.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Britain has suggested Sept. 14 for a nine-nation London meeting of foreign ministers to discuss West German rearmament.

Britain wants the eight countries most directly associated with the abortive European Defense Community plan, plus Canada, represented at the projected London conference. These eight are Britain, the United States, and the six signers of the EDC treaty—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Italy, the Netherlands and several other countries have agreed to the date, but Washington officials said yesterday they were not certain that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles could fit the mid-September London date into his busy schedule.

Dulles now is attending the Southeast Asia conference in Manila.

The State Department indicated, however, that it was agreeable to the conference.

The British informally proposed the parley to consider steps for restoring West German sovereignty and rearming the West Germans after failure of the six-nation European army plan to gain ratification in the French Assembly.

The London government feels the talks could be completed in four or five days so the foreign ministers would be free for the opening of the ninth session of the United Nations General Assembly in New York Sept. 21.

From Germany, meanwhile, came another demand for guns to defend the free western half of the nation against possible Communist aggression. Dr. Thomas Dehler, chairman of the free Democratic party—second largest in Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's four-party coalition government — said, "European security demands the rearmament of West Germany."

He told a press conference yesterday the French Assembly rejection of the European Defense Community killed the idea of a unified army for the western part of the continent. The only remaining possibilities, he said, were the creation of a national German army and acceptance of the federal republic in the 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Adenauer himself expressed continued hope for an integrated European defense force in a radio address Saturday.

Dehler expressed the belief that the western European coal and steel community will disintegrate as a result of the collapse of EDC.

Noting that the coal-steel community was intended as the first step in a process of complete federation among the six west European states, he said "it will not be able to survive as a torso."

"It will liquidate itself," he said.

Britain Develops a Wingless, Pilotable, Jet-Powered Tube

Strange Craft Takes Off and Lands Vertically and Can Be Put Down 'as Gently as a Cup of Tea.'

FARNBOROUGH, England, Sept. 7 (AP)—Britain's "flying bedstead," a wingless 3½-ton wonder that takes off and lands vertically, "can be set down as gently as a cup of tea," the man who has flown it said today.

Ronald Shepherd, flying consultant to the Rolls Royce Aero Engine firm, described the craft to reporters at the big British aviation show here. Its existence had been disclosed yesterday by Minister of Supply Duncan Sandys.

"The whole thing stands on four tubular legs," Shepherd said. "Its two jet engines are held in a tubular construction and the pilot sits on top."

On its first flight, he said, the craft was tethered to the ground with strong wire ropes and only lifted five feet in the air. Later it made several free flights up to 100 feet and more.

It is held in the air by the downward push of its jet streams. The jets can be deflected to make it move over the ground.

Sandys described the craft at the annual dinner of the Society of British Aircraft Constructors. He said the new experiments might lead to aeronautical development changes as important as introduction of the jet engine.

"I can hardly call it an aircraft for it is really no more than an aero-engine with a pilot mounted on top," he said.

The craft maintains its horizontal position during take off and landing, unlike an experimental United States propeller-driven fighter.

170 MORE ARRESTS IN IRANIAN ARMY IN DRIVE ON SPIES

TEHRAN, Sept. 7 (AP) — A new wave of arrests swept through the Iranian army, air force and federal police today. The total number under arrest in the two-week drive to break up a Communist spy ring passed the 400 mark.

Teimour Bakhtiar, the military governor for Tehran, said 170 persons were arrested today. The breaking of the last of three code lists which fell into police hands was apparently responsible for the large spurt in arrests.

Bakhtiar said the men arrested today ranked between captain and colonel and "were in extremely important and sensitive spots."

Courts-martial have been organized to try persons accused of passing key military information to the Communists for relay to Russia, he added.

U.S. TO ROTATE ITS TACTICAL AIR UNITS IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP) —American air power in Europe will be increased under a plan announced today to rotate tactical Air Force units for temporary tours of duty on the continent.

The program, starting in the next few weeks, will send squadrons of Air Force fighter-bombers, which are used for the support of ground forces, and troop carrier outfits overseas under a schedule similar to that which has been in use for several years by the Strategic Air Command's force of long range bombers.

The Air Force did not say so, but the presence of additional squadrons under a schedule which will keep several on the scene at all times also means a net increase for air strength in Europe.

2 FORMER CUBAN OFFICIALS FINED ON ARMS CHARGES

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP) — Former Cuban President Carlos Prio Socarras was fined $9000 and his former cabinet member, Segundo Curti Messina, $6000 today for conspiring to smuggle arms out of the United States.

They entered pleas of no contest when they appeared before United States District Judge Edmund L. Palmieri.

Judge Palmieri declined to impose prison sentences, saying: "It is quite clear the defendants are not criminals in the ordinary sense."

The two Cubans were arrested at Miami last Dec. 4 and charged with conspiring to ship arms to Cuba without an export license.

Fifteen others, some of them Americans, were indicted with them. All have pleaded not guilty. Trial date for three of them will be set on Sept. 20.

PRESIDENT PRAISES REED FOR HIS AID IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP) — President Eisenhower has praised Chairman Daniel Reed (Rep.), New York, of the House Ways and Means Committee for his leadership in support of the Administration's legislative program.

The President wrote Reed:

"You must know, without my saying so, how very much I value your splendid co-operation during the long session of the Eighty-third Congress, just ended.

"I am equally sure that you must be deeply pleased and personally gratified as you contemplate the massive record this Congress has written. That record resulted from your personal efforts and forceful leadership. The massive tax revision bill, social security legislation, reciprocal trade—all these have had the benefit of your wise guidance and judgment."

Reed described his tax revision bill as the keystone of the Administration's fiscal program. He said it provided a saving of 827,000,000 to individual taxpayers and 536,000,000 to business.

CPL. BATCHELOR'S STORY OF ACTS AS P.O.W. BEING READ

He Decided to String Along With Reds, but Didn't Believe Propaganda, He Says.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 7 (AP) — Cpl. Claude Batchelor said in a statement read today that in his early das as a prisoner of war in Korea he and others "figured it was the best thing to play along with" their captors.

Batchelor said he was appointed a squad leader in his prison camp and eventually told some of the Chinese he didn't believe in their propaganda and he had no business trying to teach others.

Reading of Batchelor's account of his capture and imprisonment in Korea, a document of 145 pages and 33,700 words, began today ot Fort Sam Houston here in the court-martial of Batchelor on charges of collaborating with the enemy and informing on fellow American prisoners. The statement was made to Army intelligence officers in Tokyo last January.

Father in Courtroom.

In the courtroom for the first time were the corporal's father, O. L. Batchelor, Kermit, Tex., and his 11-year-old brother, Kenneth. His mother has been here since the trial started.

In his narrative account, Batchelor said he was a member of a group of 15 American soldiers who, about Nov. 1, 1950, were cut off from their company in Korea, wandered around about four days and then were captured. He said they all thought they might be shot, but instead a Chinese officer shook their hands and gave them cigarettes.

They were marched a couple of days to their prison camp, he said, and lectures which they were required to attend began immediately. He said they were told that the Communists didn't blame them for starting the war and told them that they had been duped by Wall Street.

Only 10 Years' Schooling.

Batchelor said he didn't know why he was appointed a monitor for his squad because he had received only 10 years of education. He said his duty was to go to lectures and take notes and then go back to his squad and go over the notes with other men.

Batchelor said the Chinese were better disciplined than the North Koreans, that the Chinese "never mistreated us in any way."

In the early days, he said, the prisoners were short on food at times and were told that one of the reasons for the shortage was bombing attacks by the American Air Force.

When the Korean war ended, Batchelor first chose to stay with his Communist captors. Later, he changed his mind and returned to the U.N. side.

PAUL DOUGLAS, PRICE ATTACK G.O.P. IN TALKS ON THE EAST SIDE

Senator Charges Packing of NLRB With Members Hostile to Labor — 'Inflationary Trend' Assailed.

The Republican Administration's attitude toward labor was criticized by United States Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, in speeches yesterday at Labor day rallies in East St. Louis and three other East Side communities

Labor has suffered reverses during the last two years of Republican control of the Federal Government he told a crowd of several thousand persons at Jones Park, East St. Louis, at memorial services following a colorful parade through the business district.

Douglas was joined in his attack on the Administration by Congressman Melvin Price (Dem.), East St. Louis. Both men are seeking re-election this fall.

"The National Labor Relations Board has been packed with members hostile to labor," Douglas asserted. "This board has ruled that it is all right for an employer to question workers about union membership, provided he does not openly threaten them.

Ruling Enables Coercion.

"Such questioning is, in its very nature, coercive and should be as illegal as an employer demanding to know of an employe how he is to vote. In a democracy men should be free to join a union and to vote as their consciences direct them, without being exposed to tacit pressure or coercion from their employers."

Douglas said there was a tendency on the part of members of unions to take for granted the sacrifices of those who built the organizations. He urged all members to take an active interest in the affairs of their unions and attend meetings of the organizations. If they do, he said, "the ground will be cut out from under many of the criticisms now leveled at the unions."

The Senator urged liberalization of the Illinois unemployment law to provide higher benefits for a longer period of time. As originally intended, he said, benefits were to be about half the weekly earnings. At present, they are only about a third of average earnings.

He also urged increased benefits under the social security program for persons totally disabled and that an effort be made to work out "a better plan to help families meet the costs of prolonged sickness and major operations."

Price Assails Inflation.

Price accused the Republican administration of failing to halt an "inflationary trend."

"The main failure, in my opinion," he said, "has been the President's reluctance to preserve the domestic economy. It is time for Mr. Eisenhower to stop whistling in the dark and recognize the danger signals—the increasing cost of living, increasing unemployment and decreasing national payroll and agricultural income.

After attending the East St. Louis rally, Douglas and Price participated in a parade and Labor day observance in Granite City's Wilson Park. Similar celebration were held also in Belleville, Wood River and Bethalto.

MAN IS STABBED TO DEATH, ANOTHER INJURED IN DISPUTE

Marshall Melton, 1812 Lafayette avenue, was stabbed to death early yesterday in the 1500 block of South Broadway. Police said he was stabbed by Daniel Bullard, living in the 4000 block of North Broadway.

They said Melton and Bullard became involved in a dispute. Harvey Edwards, living in the 3500 block of South Broadway, attempted to stop the fight and was stabbed four times in the abdomen, police said.

Edwards and Bullard, who suffered a minor neck injury, were taken to City Hospital. Melton, 26 years old, was a chauffeur.

Hickey Tells Teachers of Their Role In Successful Racial Integration

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer

This scene at Delmar Harvard School, 6701 Delmar boulevard, University City, was being repeated at other St. Louis county schools as mothers began registering their children for the new school year today. Assisting the parents are MRS. JAMES DUFFY, left, kindergarten director, and MISS NANCY HORWITZ, co-teacher, both standing.

Says the Program Will Be Determined by Their Attitudes in the Classrooms.

Success of racial integration in the St. Louis public schools, on which a partial start will be made next Thursday in teachers' colleges and special schools, will be determined by the attitudes of classroom teachers, Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey said today.

Addressing the high school faculties at Roosevelt High School, he reminded them that the first big step toward integration will take place next February when racial segregation will end in the city's high schools.

"That integration be made to work smoothly and fairly is more than an obligation," he said. "It is a directive from your employer, the Board of Education. We also believe that it is an implied directive from your indirect employers, the people of the City of St. Louis.

Cites 'Wise Calmness.'

"The people of this city, for the most part, have accepted the fact that segregation is at an end with a wise calmness and a sincere intent to accept it gracefully. Our local people have always had a deep respect for the laws of our land, and rabble-rousers and hatred vendors have had little success."

Pointing out that the classroom teacher represents the important part of the educative process, he warned the assembled teachers:

"If you assume an apprehensive, defeatist attitude in your home or among your closest friends, that attitude will reflect itself, perhaps unconsciously, in your classroom teaching. The attitudes of you, the teachers, in the classrooms, will determine the general trend of conduct in the entire school system.

"I have confidence in your good judgment and in your integrity. We should not minimize the problem of integration or build it into a monster."

Reviews Steps.

Hickey reviewed some of the steps that have been in progress since 1945 to make the anticipated transition from segregated to integredated schools an easier process.

These included appointment of teacher groups to study the problems of intergroup relationships, formation of a city-wide students council which has visited all the high schools, establishment of a city-wide symphony orchestra of white and Negro students, staging of the Central High School centennial pageant with both races represented at Public Schools Stadium and track meets open to all high schools in the city.

Parochial Schools Open.

Although city schools will not resume until Thursday, Catholic and Lutheran schools in the city and St. Louis county and some public schools in the county began their new fall classes today.

Schools of the Board of Jewish Education, which receive financial support from the Jewish Federation of St. Louis, began their thirty-third year today.

The later opening of the city's schools was designed to give teachers and principals a two-day in-service training course in new methods being used this year for teaching the three Rs, the basic tools of learning.

As noted by Hickey in his speech to the teachers, racial integration of the elementary and technical high schools will not be under way until next fall.

Clayton and Kirkwood public schools are converting the first six grades to an integrated basis this fall. In Brentwood, Negro high school students may elect to attend Brentwood High School or continue at Douglass High School for Negroes in Webster Groves

St. Louis county districts opening today include Berkeley, Ferguson-Florissant (R-2), Jennings, Maplewood - Richmond Heights, Maryland Heights, Riverview Gardens, District R-9, University City, Wellston, West Walnut Manor, Jefferson Barracks, Scudder, Pattonville (R-3) and Hancock Place.

Opening tomorrow are Bayless, Eureka (R-6), Webster Groves, Kinloch and District R-8.

In addition to the St. Louis public schools, those resuming classes Thursday include Kirkwood (R-7), Affton, Normandy, Ritenour and Hazelwood (R-1) elementary.

Parkway Consolidated Schools open Friday and Brentwood, Clayton, Ladue, Valley Park and Hazelwood High School will resume Monday.

East Side Schools.

On the East Side, Alton, Collinsville and Granite City public schools opened today. Other Madison county schools are already conducting classes. Madison county parochial schools also resumed today.

East St. Louis District 189, which includes schools in East St. Louis, Washington Park, National City, Midway and Prospect Park, starts the school year tomorrow while Belleville High School resumes Friday and the Belleville elementary schools Monday.

As the school year began, Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, warned motorists of the added danger of accidents from the presence of large numbers of children on the streets and highways.

He pointed out that state law requires all drivers to stop when meeting or overtaking school busses that are loading or unloading. He said the law would be strictly enforced.

2-YEAR-OLD GIRL TOUCHES ELECTRIC WIRE, IS KILLED

Lynn Campbell, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Campbell of East Alton, died of electric shock Sunday in Staunton, Ill., when she touched an electric wire in the garage of her great-grandparents.

She was visiting her great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Burrell Purdy, while her parents were in Chattanooga, Tenn., over the Labor day holiday. Staunton is about 35 miles northeast of St. Louis.

A total of 650 persons registered to vote yesterday as the deadline passed for enrollment of voters before the Sept. 30 special election on the proposed city charter amendment to give St. Louis home rule authority to levy the earnings tax. Total registration for the election is 353,000.

Employes of the Board of Election Commissioners, who worked yesterday, a legal holiday, in accordance with a ruling of the Missouri attorney general's office, also handled 325 transfers of voters who had moved. Yesterday also was the final day for voters to transfer their registrations by mail.

Persons who are registered to vote and move before Sept. 20 may transfer their registrations by going in person to the election office at 208 South Twelfth boulevard on or before that date.

SAYS CITY HEALTH PROGRAM NEEDS EARNINGS TAX

Mrs. Brungard Tells Leaders of 50 Women's Clubs of What Might Happen.

If the city were deprived of revenue now produced by the municipal eearnings tax, it would b forced to slash public hospital services, drop the hygiene program in the parochial schools, eliminate meat inspection, discontinue the rat and mosquito control programs and resort to other drastic economies at the expense of public health, Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, director of public welfare, warned today.

Addressing representatives of 50 women's organizations at a luncheon at Hotel Jefferson, she appealed for support of the campaign to amend the city charter to provide home rult on the earnings tax. The proposed amendment will be submitted to the voters in a special election on Sept. 30.

The earnings tax, a levy of one-half of 1 per cent on gross income of individuals and net profits of business enterprises, brings in approximately $8,000,000 a year. The city's public welfare deparement, which operates on a budget of $16,000,000, plans to slash its expenditures by 25 per cent if the earnings tax is not made permanent, Mrs. Brungard explained.

"One of the forced economies would be reduction of beds at City Hospital from 1125 to 733," she said. "This means that we could take only cases of acute illness and emergency cases. This would curtail training of interns and nurses.

"It took years to build up our training programs to the point where we won accreditation by the American Medical Association and the American College of Surgeons, and we would lose that prized rating if we put these cuts into effect."

The nursing schools at City and Homer G. Phillips Hospitals would have to be closed, she continued. Outpatient clinic service at Homer Phillips would be dropped.

The hospitals' ambulance service would be eliminated or drastically curtailed.

Koch Hospital, which has a waiting list of 600, would eliminate five divisions, retaining only cases of acute tuberculosis and sending all other patients back to their homes.

Chronic Hospital (the old City Infirmary) would have to reduce its 1400 beds.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Powell B. McHaney, chairman of the campaign for the charter amendment, also appealed for a favorable vote.

The Bar Association of St. Louis, whose executive committee has indorsed the proposed charter amendment, is asking its members to join the campaign, it was announced by Carroll J. Donohue, president of the association.

St. Louis, operating with a balanced budget by taxing earnings, now levies this tax by special permission of the Legislature. Each time the authority granted from Jefferson City expires, the city faces a financial crisis.

If 60 per cent of those voting on Sept. 30 approve the charter amendment, the city will be spared these recurring crises and will be able to tax earnings as long as the Board of Aldermen considers revenue from this source necessary.

Woman Bullfighter Is in Serious Condition After Being Gored

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

PATRICIA McCORMICK being carried on horns of bull which gored her in bullfight ring at Ciudad Acuna, Mexico, Sunday.

DEL RIO, Texas, Sept. 7 (UP) —Matadora Patricia McCormick was in grave condition today from wounds suffered when a bull gored her Sunday in the ring at Ciudad Acuna, Mexico.

Pretty, blond, 24-year-old Miss McCormick, a former St. Louisan, had turned her back to the bull to bow to the crowd's applause when the bull unexpectedly turned, charged, and gored her in the groin. Miss McCormick was rushed across the Rio Grande, bleeding profusely from the deep wound. Dr. T. M. Johnson performed an emergency operation at Del Rio hospital.

Dr. Johnson allowed only her parents in the room. She was given four blood transfusions.

Miss McCormick, who quit her art studies at Texas Western College three years ago to become a professional bull fighter, had fought nearly 30 bulls. She killed the first one she was matched with Sunday with such skill that she won a loud ovation and was awarded the bull's ears.

She evaded a savage charge by the second bull and turned to receive the crowd's applause, apparently expecting the bull to pause a moment before charging again. But it turned nimbly and came at her from behind.

Miss McCormick was taken from the bull's horns by Alejandro Del Hierro, her tutor and a retired matador. Del Hierro jumped into the ring, ran to the bull and pulled the girl from the horns after it charged and lifted her into the air. An understudy matador drew the bull's attention with a cape and killed it

Del Hierro said he did not think of danger to himself. He said he "had no time for caution."

Miss McCormick's parents, who have seen their daughter fight only once—the first time—said they hoped she would give up bullfighting, "but it isn't necessarily our decision to make."

Miss McCormick was born in St. Louis when her parents were living in Wood River, Ill., where her father was an engineer for Shell Oil Co. They moved to Arkansas City, Kan., in 1933, to Edwardsville, Ill., in 1937, to St. Louis in 1942.

Miss McCormick's passion for bullfighting dates back to 1942 when she saw a fight in Mexico City while on a vacation with her parents. Thereafter at her home in St. Louis (Lucas-Hunt Village) she played at bullfighting on the lawn, with dogs.

Her parents now live in Big Spring, Tex.

PLAZA PROJECT FUND CONTRACT SIGNED IN CAPITAL

Commits Federal Government to Loan of $4,155,755 and Grant of $1,334,675.

The contract committing the Federal Government to a loan of $4,155,775 and a capital grant of $1,334,675 for rehabilitation of the plaza area has been signed in Washington, the St. Louis Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority was notified today.

Losing no time, commissioners of the municipal agency will meet in special session at 2 p.m. tomorrow to draw up a requisition for the first installment of federal funds.

Initial funds supplied by the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency will be used to purchase property in the area bounded roughly by Market, Olive, Fourteenth and Eighteenth streets, which is to be cleared for a public park and a private housing project.

Two independent real estate appraisals are required before property is acquired. The second survey will be completed Sept. 20, and land purchases will begin a few days later.

Demolition is to get under way about Jan. 1. With the federal aid the area of eight and one-half blocks is to be cleared next spring.

The city will construct a three-block park linking Memorial and Aloe Plazas, and the Urban Redevelopment Corporation of St. Louis plans to invest approximately $20,000,000 of private capital in erecting 1100 air-conditioned apartments for middle-income tenants.

INQUEST TO BE HELD IN DEATH OF MAN FOUND SHOT IN ROOM

An inquest will be held in the death of Lawrence Russell, 69 years old, whose body was found Sunday in his room at 1712 North Fortieth street, East St. Louis. The body was in a chair and there was a bullet wound in the head. A revolver lay nearby.

Mrs. Lena Morris, proprietor of the rooming house, found the body when she investigated after Russell, who was unemployed, failed to appear for breakfast.

Winchell 'Not Sure' Who Gave Data

wrote that he immediately contacted FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and told him of possessing the copy.

"The top G-man appeared angry. 'Where did you get it?' he demanded.

"'I can't tell you, Mr. Hoover,' he said. 'I just want to know if I make it public will you arrest me?'

"With the grimmest tones he ever used on me, he replied, 'Yes.'"

Long-time Friends.

Winchell and Hoover are long-time personal friends.

Winchell, who was sitting in the hearing room when the committee met after h noon recess, immediately took the stand.

The special committee weighing the censure charges against McCarthy made public Flanders' new charges at the end of the morning session.

In today's sworn testimony, Winchell said he was handed a copy of the document about May 6 "just outside" the doors of the Senate caucus room during a brief recess of the McCarthy-Army hearings.

"Who handed you the document?" Guy de Furia, assistant committee counsel, asked.

"I refuse to tell," Winchell replied.

"I will not reveal a source of information," he added under de Furia's continued questioning.

"I would not reveal my source of information of any news," he said again.

De Furia asked if Winchell had not made "certain statements" during a closed meeting with Watkins and other subcommittee members during the lunch hour.

"I did," agreed Winchell.

Denies Shifting Position.

De Furia asked Winchell if he now were "shifting" his position. "No," replied Winchell, who said he had told the committee earlier that he wouldn't disclose his news sources.

Watkins, however, indicated that Winchell had testified in executive session that he didn't know who gave him the document and asked him if he did know who it was.

Winchell then replied that he didn't, that he wasn't sure.

The columnist explained that many persons, some of them other newspapermen, gave him material during the McCarthy-army hearings.

He said that the paper which he believed to be a copy of the letter produced by McCarthy came to him in this way. He said it was folded up and was handed to him as he was talking with other newspapermen outside of the hearing room.

He testified he believed the person who gave it to him was in civilian clothes, was male and white, but said he had no idea of his age.

Winchell said he did not examine the paper which turned out to be the copy of the letter until he had gone back to the press table in the hearing room.

Watkins repeatedly pressed Winchell about the identity of the man who supplied the copy, but the witness insisted he was "not sure" about the person.

Informed Hoover.

Winchell testified that after he got the document he told FBI Director Hoover, "I have a copy of that letter, John."

Winchell testified he destroyed the letter after having it in his possession for about eight or 10 days. He said he had no doubt the letter he had was the same as the letter produced by McCarthy during the McCarthy-Army hearings.

After hearing Winchell the committee tentatively rested its "case" and recessed until tomorrow when McCarthy will start presenting his defense.

The public hearing this morning had wound up on a protest from McCarthy's lawyer that the committee's own counsel had fileda "vigorously partisan" brief on the legal issues in the case.

Flanders, it was disclosed, wrote a letter dated Sept. 2 to Chairman Watkins concerning McCarthy-Army hearing of the cummary of confidential FBI information about subversive risks at the Army's Fort Monmouth (N.J.) radar laboratory.

In the letter, made public by the committee, Flanders said it was his conclusion that either the person who obtained the document falsified it or McCarthy himself was responsible for falsifying it.

Forgery Charged.

"Someone forged a document which was offered as genuine before a Senate committee discharging its official duties and Senator McCarthy has the clues to the forgery which he has refused to divulge," Flanders wrote.

McCarthy declined to comment on the new Flanders statement.

McCarthy described the document during the McCarthy-Army hearings as a letter from Hoover to Army Intelligence.

Later the subcommittee heard testimony that Hoover denied writing any such letter. However, it was informed the document did contain excerpts from an interdepartmental memo prepared by the FBI.

Flanders pointed out in his letter that McCarthy refused to divulge the source of his letter "other than to say it was a young Army officer in intelligence work."

M'Carthy's Position.

"Senator McCarthy's position was that as the chairman of an investigating subcommittee he had a right to receive such information and he would protect his informers," Flanders said.

"There is no question that a Senator has the right to receive information as to wrongdoing and to protect his informant, when no crime has been committed in obtaining the information.

"In this case, however, violations of law are being covered up, and possibly committed by Senator McCarthy."

Flanders said McCarthy "was so heedless of the security of this document that, according to his testimony, he could not remember to how many of his staff he had shown it."

Flanders added that Winchell, whom he identified as a "gossip columnist," had revealed in a column that a copy of the "McCarthy letter" was given to him.

Flanders said the Army officer "who handed the information to Senator McCarthy" violated both his orders and his oath.

Flanders said it was important for the Watkins committee to find out who was responsible for the "doctoring" of the FBI memo into the form of a letter.

If the informant gave McCarthy "a forged and spurious document," then the Wisconsin Senator has a duty to reveal the name of the person, Flanders insisted.

If "Senator McCarthy or members of his staff were responsible for creating the form of the document," then McCarthy knew the letter was not genuine but presented it to the Mundt subcommittee as such anyway, Flanders said. He added that such an action would be "clearly contemptuous of the Senate and one of its committees."

Williams, counsel to McCarthy, argued to the committee that its counsel's brief on the legal issues was a "prosecutor's brief."

Committee counsel E. Wallace Chadwick replied that it represented an "honest effort" by himself and his staff to "produce an impartial review of the law."

Williams said that Chadwick had undertaken to answer some arguments that he himself had not been permitted to make fully on the opening day of the hearings a week ago.

He called this "not quite fair" in that it purported to be "an impartial brief."

Williams Cites 1948 Law.

Williams maintained that Chadwick, citing a law relating to unauthorized disclosure of confidential information, had read "only half the statute." He said also Chadwick had not brought out in his brief an act passed in 1948 which, Williams said, reaffirmed an earlier law "to guarantee" federal employes the right to petition Congress and furnish it with information they had.

The clash came just before Watkins recessed the public hearings this morning with an announcement that the committee would go into closed session.

Watkins said the group had been unable to locate some witnesses over the weekend to learn if they had pertinent testimony.

McCarthy, after a conference behind closed doors with the committee, announced he will begin his defense tomorrow morning.

"I will be a witness," McCarthy said, "but I won't be the first (defense) witness."

McCarthy and Williams said they expect to wind up their presentation some time Friday.

No Comment on Witnesses.

Williams fended off questions as to whether any Senator other than McCarthy might be called as a witness.

Chairman Watkins said the committee had made "some decisions" in its closed session, lasting about an hour, but that he would not say what they were. Watkins declined comment when asked if the committee had issued any subpenas at McCarthy's request, or had been asked to do so.

Chadwick's brief covered, among other things, various laws and regulations dealing with the handling and use of classified information, and cited the federal misprision law. This makes it a felony for a person having knowledge of a felony to fail to report it to proper authorities.

This bears on the accusation that McCarthy received and made use of confidential government information unlawfully obtained by others.

During the McCarthy-Army hearing, McCarthy said he obtained a summary of the FBI memo from a young Army Intelligence officer. He refused to identify the officer, saying he must protect persons who give him information about Communism and wrongdoing within the Government.

Army Denies Charge.

Army officials said at the time that any Army officer who gave the information to McCarthy had violated the law. Since then, the Army has announced that its own investigation has convinced it that no Army officer or civilian employe did in fact give the information to the Senator.

Chadwick's brief took issue also with a contention by Williams that the committee should throw out a charge that McCarthy was contemptuous of a Senate Elections subcommittee which investigated the Senator in 1951 and 1952.

Williams argued when these hearings began that the present Senate's jurisdiction did not go back beyond the convening of the present Congress early in 1953.

Disagreeing, Chadwick said the Senate is a continuing body since only one-third of its members are elected each two years.

Chadwick did not rule on whether the Senate subcommittee which investigated McCarthy's conduct in 1951-52 had power to subpena him. But, Chadwick said, the subcommittee had the power to request McCarthy to appear by means other than a subpena.

A general charge against McCarthy of contemptuous conduct hinges largely around his failure to appear before the so-called Hennings-Hayden-Hendrickson committee and testify as to his own activities despite numerous committee invitations.

No Decision on Points of Law.

Watkins told Williams that the opinions expressed in the legal brief were "only the views" of Chadwick and his assistant, Guy de Furia, and that "no decision" on the points of law had been made by the committee itself.

Williams said he had no objection to Chadwick's brief going into the record provided it was labeled "a prosecutor's brief."

Among other things, Williams said Chadwick had expressed the conclusion in the brief it was not important that McCarthy had not been subpenaed by the Senate Elections subcommittee investigating his financial affairs and other matters in 1951 and 1952.

"He arrived at this startling conclusion before hearing our defense," said Williams, who previously has taken the position that the Elections subcommittee had acted beyond the scope of its authority.

Chadwick told Williams that the legal brief was prepared by him under what he called the committee's strict injunction that its approach "be non-partisan."

Also put into the record was a May 27 order by President Eisenhower which McCarthy denounced during the McCarthy-Army hearing as a "gag."

Williams protested that it was irrelevant. Chadwick said the order, and a supporting memorandum by Attorney General Herbert Brownell, was offered for whatever bearing it might have on "the use, utilization or publication" of classified information.

Mr. Eisenhower's May 27 order, in the form of a letter to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, forbade participants in a high-level administration conference from testifying at the McCarthy-Army hearing as to what occurred at the conference.

Mr. Eisenhower cited the constitutional separation of powers, and said it was essential that member of the executive branch consult freely among themselves without their conversations being made public.

5 Classes of Charges.

The group tentatively covered last week the five classes of charges singled out for study, but left the way open for further evidence to be presented.

There were reports from sources close to McCarthy that he may question whether Senator Samuel Ervin (Dem.), North Carolina, is unprejudiced.

McCarthy himself declined to discuss the reports except to declare he has been told that Winchell mentioned Ervin in a broadcast Sunday night.

"I know nothing beyond what Winchell broadcast," he said.

McCarthy said Winchell read "something" from an article published Aug. 1 by the Winston-Salem (N.C.) Sentinel and Journal, quoting remarks attributed to Ervin.

McCarthy did not say what the remarks were.

A check of the file of the newspaper showed that on Aug. 1 it quoted Ervin as saying in an interview:

"I'm a lawyer, and as a lawyer I know you can't convict a man on hearsay evidence. Personally I've formed an unfavorable opinion of the junior Senator from Wisconsin since going to Washington, but I have no personal knowledge of the wrongdoing and improper conduct to which his opponents refer."

Reporters asked Ervin about it. He said he knows of no basis for a challenge of his impartiality.

He said he did write to the Sentinel and Journal but that he can think of nothing in the letter which would indicate bias.

"I wrote them that I did not favor removing him (McCarthy) from his committee chairmanships or expelling him from the Senate," Ervin said.

He said he had been quoted as making such a statement and the newspaper asked him about it.

"They asked why I took that position, and I wrote them and told them why."

Ervin's Comments.

Ervin said he is on record as declaring that "I would not vote to censure anyone except after hearings and due process of law. . . . I wouldn't vote to censure except on proof."

"I also have said I would not have voted for the Flanders resolution in its original form because in my opinion it did violence to the law of the land" by proposing censure without specific charges.

Senator Flanders introduced the censure resolution against McCarthy. Later, Flanders and Senators J. William Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas and Wayne Morse (Ind.), Oregon, filed specific charges which form the basis for the present hearings by the special six-member committee.

From the outset of the hearings, McCarthy has several times raised informally a question of the impartiality of Senator Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, senior Democrat on the committee.

He has pointed to a Denver Post story of last March quoting Johnson as saying all Democratic leaders "loathe" McCarthy.

Johnson has said he never said he personally loathed McCarthy, and Watkins has ruled that in any case the committee has no power to disqualify a member.

Less-Than-Capacity Crowd.

A less-than-capacity crowd turned out for the hearings in the big caucus room of the Senate office building.

Chairman Watkins, who has insisted on the same stern decorum in the hearings which would be maintained in a court, silenced the buzz of conversation among spectators with three raps of his gavel and called the session to order.

He announced the committee would "take judicial or legislative notice" of a 1953 report of a Senate Elections subcommittee raising questions about the propriety of some of McCarthy's financial dealings. One of the charges against McCarthy in the censure move is that he contemptuously did not answer these questions.

Watkins announced the committee would take notice of the controversial report "for the limited purpose of showing the nature" of the investigation "but not for determining the truth or falsity of the charges" the elections subcommittee had explored.

One reason for taking notice of it, Watkins said, is "to determine the jurisdiction of that committee" to conduct the inquiry at all.

KICKBACK CASES TO BE PUT BEFORE U.S. GRAND JURY

Concern Subcontractors on Defense Work — FHA Fraud Inquiry Also Sought.

Evidence in several cases of alleged kickbacks by subcontractors that cost the Government additional money on certain defense projects in the St. Louis area will be presented to the federal grand jury when it reconvenes Sept. 20, Assistant United States Attorney Forrest Boecker said today.

The prosecutor said he also is seeking clearance from the United States Attorney General's office to present evidence of possible FHA frauds in connection with the financing of a large St. Louis housing project.

Evidence on the alleged kickbacks will be presented as soon as the grand jury reconvenes, Boecker said, unless he is tied up with the fourth of a series of labor racketeering trials scheduled to start next Monday.

Kickbacks in 2 Forms.

The kickbacks, which inflated the cost of the projects to the Government, took two forms, Boecker said, on the basis of a preliminary study. Either the general contractor firm demanded and received a rebate from the subcontractor or an official of the firm demanded and received a rebate for himself from the subcontractor.

On the housing project, the federal inquiry involves the filing of allegedly false affidavits to obtain an FHA order on the banks to release Government-insured funds to the owner corporation, Boecker said.

The Government is in possession of the affidavits in which the owner corporation allegedly stated all outstanding obligations had been paid—a prerequisite to the release of funds by the banks to the company, he added. Information in the Government's hand indicates that a portion of the bills for subcontract work had not been paid at that time, but have been paid since then, he said.

Earlier Request Rejected.

In a previous case, United States Attorney Harry Richards sought Washington authorization to pursue an investigation of possible FHA frauds in another housing project but was turned down. Washington has not acted on the second request thus far.

Assistant United States Attorneys General Max Goldschein and Thomas E. DeWolfe will return to St. Louis this fall. Goldschein will direct the grand jury while DeWolfe will represent the Government on appeals by convicted labor racketeers before the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

First of the new trials involving labor racketeering, starting next Monday in the court of United States District Judge Roy W. Harper, will be that of Lawrence L. Callanan, former boss of the AFL Steamfitters Union, Local 562; George E. Seaton, business agent of Local 562; Carl J. (Dutch) Bianchi of the AFL Hoisting Engineers, Local 513, and L. A. Thompson, Cape Girardeau business agent of AFL Teamsters Local 574.

They are charged with extorting $6000 from the builder of a natural gas pipeline in April 1951.

"Mr. and Mrs. X were delighted to discover how much $15 a month could buy on our 101 charge account."

Vandervoorts budget counselor, Shirley Heher, tells the true story of how a young couple began a happy home.

Mr. and Mrs. X sat opposite my desk—a charming young couple with diamonds in their eyes, a trace of confetti, no doubt, in their luggage, a spanking new home and not much ready cash.

"How," they asked, "can we buy the furnishings we absolutely need for our new home?"

"Our 101 revolving charge account is made for you," I told them. You have Six Months to Pay instead of 30 days.

"You decide how much you'd like your payments to be each month; we will give you Six times that amount in credit. For example, if you decide to pay $15 each month, you have $90 credit at Vandervoorts. Each month you will receive a bill with original sales and credit slips enclosed. This automatically tells you how much of your $90 credit is still available for you to spend. Each monthly payment you make reduces the amount you owe and increases the amount you have available to spend.

"You receive a Charga-Plate®. You can raise or lower your credit at any time. There is a small service charge per month."

"It's so easy to pay this way," said Mrs. X. "And keeps our credit rating O.K.," added Mr. X.

25 of 28 KLM Crash Victims Said to Have Died From Fumes

Dutch Airliner Plunges in Shannon River —28 Survive—11 of Dead, 15 Among Saved Are Americans.

SHANNON AIRPORT, Ireland, Sept. 7 (AP)—The coroner's inquest into the deaths of 28 persons aboard a crashed Dutch KLM airliner was told yesterday that 25 victims trapped in the plane's cabin died of asphyxiation from gasoline fumes.

One passenger who escaped with 28 other survivors after the plane plowed into the muddy Shannon river Sunday, died later in a hospital from injuries. She was Mrs. Caroline Platz, of New York.

Two bodies have not been recovered.

Eleven of the dead and 15 of the survivors were Americans.

A salvage crew equipped with big balloons arrived here today to attempt to recover the airliner. Salvage experts plan to place the balloons inside the sunken fuselage, inflate them and during high tide tow the plane to the river bank.

—Dr. William Flynn, medical officer for Shannon airport, testified at the inquest yesterday that examination of the bodies found in the plane showed no evidence of drowning or injury. Thus, he concluded, they suffocated from the gasoline fumes.

Quick Action by Woman.

Adriaan Viruly, captain of the plane, said quick action on the part of Elizabeth Snyder, a 25-year-old New York business woman, "prevented a terrific explosion which would have torn the craft to bits."

As the plane was sinking into the river and gasoline fumes poured into the cabin, he said, Miss Snyder knocked a box of matches from the hands of a dazed passenger about to light a cigarette.

Miss Snyder related:

"I was sitting beside a man as the fumes filled the fuselage, and I had an impression I was going to faint.

"Then he reached into his pocket and came out with matches and a cigarette. His action seemed to arouse me, and without thinking about it I knocked the matches out of his hands. I don't believe the man realized what he was doing. It was a very tense moment for all of us."

The crash of the big plane, in early morning darkness only two miles from the airport, probably was caused by an instrument failure, KLM President A. J. Aler told reporters in Amsterdam after talking with surviving passengers and crewmen.

He said the seven cockpit crewmen, all of whom survived, agreed that the instruments showed the plane was climbing after its take-off when it apparently was not. All four engines were reported working normally.

The Irish government continued its investigation today into the delay of rescue workers in reaching the accident scene. The survivors said help did not come for about three hours, although they went down within sight of the airport lights. They made their way to the river bank in two rubber dinghies from the sinking plane and then struggled on foot across a mile-wide mud flat.

Second Crash.

It was the second KLM crash in two weeks. A Skymaster of the Dutch airline went down in the North Sea Aug. 23 as it approached Amsterdam, carrying all 21 persons aboard to their deaths.

The American dead in Sunday's crash:

Elaine Cooper, Bridgeport, Conn.; Wilbur H. Coultas, La Grange, Ill; Mrs. Elizabeth Ellis, Middleburg, Va.; Miss Louise Griffith, Farmington, Conn.; William Hodson, Barnegat Light, N. J.; Mrs. Maria Hyde, Staten Island, N. Y.; Mrs. Platz; Frits J. Polak, Middletown, N. Y.; Henry K. A. Schultz, Great Neck, N. Y.; Mrs. G. D. S. Thompson, Farmington, Conn. and William D. Tuller, Falls Church, Va.

American survivors:

Dr. Ernest H. Bettman, White Plains, N. Y.; Mrs. Elizabeth Carlin, San Francisco; David K. Ellis, British husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Ellis, who died in crash; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Farrington, St. Petersburg, Fla., and their two children, Charles Jr., and Charlotta; Richard F. Hart, Chicago; James and Edna Lammy, Berkley, Mich.; Ceres B. Mayer, New York City; Albert I. Reinfeld, South Orange, N. J.; Elizabeth Snyder, New York; and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Swallon, Des Moines, Ia.

Credits Stewardess With Saving Lives of Many Survivors.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (UP)—Dr. Ernest Bettman, the first survivor of the Royal Dutch KLM airliner crash to reach here, credited the plane's stewardess with saving the lives of many of the survivors.

He said stewardess Helga Loewenstein, a stateless anti-Nazi refugee, "was especially helpful."

"It was pitch dark," he said, "but I could hear her encouraging people. She was giving despairing people courage."

He said Miss Loewenstein herded passengers to safety through an escape hatch as gasoline, mud and water poured into the plane.

Miss Loewenstein never left the plane. She died in the fuselage after being overcome by gasoline fumes.

The pilot, Capt. Adriaan Viruly, also was extremely consoling, Bettman said, as he urged passengers to remain calm until a boat came.

"There was no panic, only fear," Bettman said.

FUGITIVE FROM 5 PRISONS PUT ON 'MOST WANTED' LIST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today added John Harry Allen, 44-year-old robber who has escaped from prisons in five states, to its list of "10 most wanted fugitives."

The FBI said Allen has boasted he will shoot an officer rather than be captured, and it added: "Since he faces countless years' imprisonment if captured, great caution should be exercised in approaching this fugitive."

Allen's latest break occurred March 25, when he scaled the wall of the Kansas state penitentiary at Lansing. He was identified as the armed man who robbed a market in Coffeyville, Kan., of more than $3400 on April 24.

Allen has served time in—and escaped from—the jail at Pocatello, Idaho; the Tennessee penitentiary at Nashville; the Kilby penitentiary in Montgomery, Ala., and the North Dakota state prison at Bismarck.

Takes Office As Welfare Aid.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Bradshaw Mintener, 52-year-old former vice president and general counsel of Pillsbury Mills, Inc., Minneapolis, took office today as one of the two Assistant Secretaries of Welfare. Mintener succeeds Russell Raymond Larmon, who is returning to his post as a professor at Dartmouth College.

Bank Holdup Witnesses

A. R. MEYER, teller who refused to obey robber's order.

MISS PATSY J. PARKS, who informed bank officials of holdup.

$31,130 STOLEN IN BANK HOLDUP ON SOUTH BROADWAY

was the largest bank holdup here since $34,702 was taken from the Mound City Trust Co., then at Union boulevard and St. Louis avenue, on March 3, 1925.

Account of Robbery.

Describing the robbery, Mrs. Waller said: "I was cashing some travelers' checks for William Johnson, and I still had the money in my hand.

"When I looked up, Johnson was no longer there, and this other man was there with a gun. I gave him the money I had in my hand. He said: 'Hand over the money in the cash drawer.'

"After he took the money, he just said: That's all," and walked out of the bank."

Meyer, the head teller, told a Post-Dispatch reporter: "I always wondered what I would do in case of a holdup, and now I know."

He said he felt his action in dropping to the floor of the cage was motivated chiefly by the fact that he had an unusually large amount of money on hand.

Miss Parks, the teller who informed Waldemer that the holdup was in progress, said her attention was first attracted to the robber by "the strange, blank expressio in his face."

Three boys told police they saw the robber's automobile pass the bank slowly three times before he parked and went in. They said they thought he was "an FBI man or a dectective."

The boys were Ronald and Kenneth Bolte, brothers, 7307 Pennsylvania avenue, and Raymond Menedez, 7104 Minnesota.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation immediately entered the investigation of today's robbery since the Southern Commercial and Savings Bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. The bank has insurance to cover losses by robbery.

POLICEMAN CATCHES DRIVER WHO STRUCK PEDESTRIAN

A man who said he was Rodney Earl Eaton, a machinist living in the 1100 block of North Eighth street, was arrested today a few minutes after Miss Johnnie Mae Jackson, Negro, 2901 Clark avenue, had been struck by an automobile, the driver of which failed to stop.

Patrolman Harry Lee said he saw the automobile enter the intersection at Jameton and Market streets, with the car straddling the middle stripe. The officer yelled a warning at Miss Jackson a moment before the car struck her.

Patrolman Lee told a witness to call police, and the officer waved down a passing automobile and pursued the fleeing machine. The policeman caught Eaton at Eighteenth and Market streets. He was charged with careless driving, driving while intoxicated, feloniously leaving the scene of an accident and suspected of feloniously wounding. The person who had been asked to call police instead turned in a fire alarm which brought firemen to the scene.

JOHN C. MOSBY OBTAINS DIVORCE FOR INDIGNITIES

John C. Mosby, president of C. V. Mosby Co., a publishing firm, 3207 Washington boulevard, obtained a divorce today in Circuit Judge Raymond E. LaDriere's court at Clayton. Mrs. Mosby, who lives at the Parkedge Hotel, 4907 West Pine boulevard, was not in court, but was represented by an attorney.

Mosby, who lives at 9801 Conway road, Ladue, charged general indignities. He was awarded custody of a daughter, Miss Highland Mary Mosby, 20 years old, now living in Acapulco, Mexico.

It was the second time the couple was divorced. In May 1949 Mrs. Mosby obtained a divorce in circuit court at Clayton. They were remarried Dec. 31, 1949, and separated last July 16. Attorneys for the Mosbys reported a property settlement was reached outside court.

Thrasher, 58 years old, suffered multiple head cuts and his wife, Viola, 54, received a broken hip when a machine, driven by their son, Clarence, crashed into the rear of another, state police reported. BYRNES IGNORES PARTY'S CHOICE FOR SENATE SEAT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, S.C., Sept. 7—Gov. James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of State under President Truman and a supporter of Republican candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower in the last presidential election, has named Charles E. Daniel, pot the choice of the state Democratic executive committee, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Burnet Maybank.

The term ends Jan. 2. The State Democratic Central Committee last week chose Edgar A. Brown, veteran state Senator, to replace Maybank, who had the nomination for re-election for the full six-year term, prior to his death. Nomination is tantamount to election in this tratditionally Democratic state.

Daniel, who is 59 years old, is the wealthy president of a large Greenville construction firm. He is married. The couple has no children.

Statement by Byrnes.

Byrnes said:

"I have appointed Mr. Daniel because of his splendid qualities and in recognition of the outstanding service he has rendered in bringing into the state new industries which have given employment to thousands of South Carolinians."

He added that Daniel "advises me he will not be a candidate" in the Nov. 2 general election.

Although Daniel will see his Senate seat only if the Senate is called back into session in connection with the censure move against Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, Byrnes said he wanted to give the state full representation even while no congressional house is in session.

Daniel had never held political office before but was largely responsible for persuading Mr. Eisenhower to visit the state during the 1952 presidential election.

In that year an independent slate of Eisenhower electors polled more than 150,000 votes in a campaign led by Byrnes himself, while Brown led the campaign for Adlai Stevenson, who carried the state and South Carolina's eight electoral votes.

Deadline Has Passed.

Since the deadline for certification of candidates was midnight last Friday, any candidate to oppose Brown will have to do so with a write-in campaign.

There has been strong speculation Byrnes may advocate such a campaign for former Gov. J. Strom Thurmond or University of South Carolina President Donald S. Russell.

Byrnes and a number of other political figures have expressed disappointment and indignation that the committee chose a nominee to succeed Maybank without calling a special primary.

Byrnes said he had agreed before the committee met to delay naming a successor to the unfinished term until a primary could be held to determine a party nominee for the full term, beginning in January. He said a member of the committee had asked him whether he would put off naming a man until after such a primary so he could then name to the short term the winner of the primary election.

"I told him I would," Byrnes said, but then the committee ruled out the primary and named Brown.

The close Senate division between and Democrats and Republicans will continue the same as it was before Maybank died—47 Democrats, 48 Republicans and one independent.

SOUTHEAST ASIA TREATY IS TO BE SIGNED TOMORROW

not play as active a role in SEATO as other members.

The source said that if the French proposal is accepted it may also be used to cover Indochina under economic provisions of the treaty.

The United States, the source declared, "is in a dilemma because of the premature release of the treaty working draft. This draft includes Laos, Cambodia and Free Viet Nam. It would be just like an invitation for the Communists to move in if those countries were removed now."

The Philippines presented a proposed amendment guaranteeing the principles of self-rule to the Asian peoples. It was probable the matter would be worked out in the early morning hours. The Filipinos said they did not care how the proposal was worded so long as the idea was made a part of the treaty.

Articles Approved Yesterday.

Articles reported approved yesterday were:

Nos. 1 and 6, which establish that the treaty was written in Manila and will not conflict with United Nations agreements.

No. 7, which establishes the Philippines Government as caretaker of credentials for prospective new members.

No. 9, which establishes Manila as the place for ratification papers to be filed with respective governments.

No. 10, which provides that written notice for withdrawing from the agreement must be posted with the Philippines Government. The treaty draft provides that nations must give one year's notice before withdrawing.

Dulles, in his speech at the opening of the conference, declared the United States has no direct territorial interests in Southeast Asia, then said:

"We are united by a common danger, the danger that stems from international Communism and its insatiable ambition . . . The danger manifests itself in many forms. One form is that of open armed aggression. We can greatly diminish that risk by making clear that an attack upon the treaty area would occasion a reaction so united, so strong and so well placed that the aggressor would lose more than it could hope to gain."

Mobile Striking Power.

The Secretary rephrased his earlier advocacy of "massive retaliation at a time and place of our own choosing" with these words:

"So far as the United States is concerned, its responsibilities are so vast and so far flung that we believe we serve best by developing the deterrent of mobile striking power, plus strategically placed reserves."

Dulles told the conference, "The opportunities of Communism will diminish if trade relationships help the free nations to strengthen their economies. . . . This conference would not do its duty toward the many who place hope in us if we did not leave here with a well-conceived resolve to unite our efforts with those of others to make the free countries of this area stronger and more vigorous, not only militarily, but also socially and economically."

Dulles said, "What we do is directed at no nation and no peoples."

Lord Reading placed Great Britain among those willing "to stand up and be counted" when he told the conference:

"If there have been in any quarter suggestions that the United Kingdom has lost interest in this particular area of the globe, or in the particular cause which brought us here, or at best desires what I may call a toothless treaty, I can only assert positively that nothing could be further from the truth.

"We wish to see an effective treaty such as will preserve the future safety and peaceful development of the nations of Southeast Asia and the west Pacific."

Defensive Nature Stressed.

The delegates of the United States, Britain, France and Australia all asserted that the proposed Southeast Asia alliance was defensive rather than aggressive in nature.

The delegates of Thailand, Pakistan and New Zealand joined with the Philippines in urging an alliance with military teeth.

Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand said, "The government and the people of Thailand are anxious to have as strong a pact as possible . . . as near as possible to that of NATO."

T. Clifton Webb of New Zealand protested his country does not believe that the collective security agreement "would in some way provoke the very aggression we hope to deter . . . On the contrary, there have been many occasions in the past when a firm indication of an intention to resist aggression might have stayed the hand of the aggressor."

Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan of Pakistan said, "There are no varieties of aggression."

Meanwhile, the Peiping radio broadcast attacks on the conference, labeling it a meeting "to push through the United States 'Asians fight Asians' policy."

The voice of Communist China declared a published draft of the treaty "confirms to the hilt that the proposed Southeast Asian bloc is an out-and-out military alignment of aggression."

JOHN F. GRACE, GALLAUDET SCHOOL PRINCIPAL, QUITS

John F. Grace, principal of Gallaudet public school for deaf children, 1616 South Grand boulevard, since 1936, has resigned to become superintendent of Texas School for the Deaf at Austin, it was announced today. The resignation will be effective between now and Nov. 1. His successor has not been designated.

Grace, a native of Waco, Tex., came here from Missouri School for the Deaf at Fulton, where he was a department head, and before that served in similar institutions in the East. Recently he has served also as principal of Wyman School, 1547 South Theresa avenue. He lives at 562 South Gore avenue, Webster Groves.

GAINS IN PROGRAM TO END BIAS CITED BY EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP) —President Eisenhower says the Administration is achieving "far-reaching results" aimed at ending discrimination among white and Negro workers.

Both Mr. Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon last night appealed to business and labor union leaders to step up their help in the Government's anti-discrimination program.

The President pointed up the program's progress in a special message prepared for a pamphlet outlining the problem and issued by the President's Committee on Government Contracts. In addition, leaders of all major companies holding federal contracts were sent letters by Nixon.

All Government contracts contain anti-discrimination clauses. The pamphlet said this promotes "the largest possible reserve of skilled manpower" and helps override "the charge of racial prejudice which is being hurled at us every day by the Communists."

Did you buy the soap?

Happiness, to a little baby, is a lot of simple things . . . like soothing, warm water to splash in, rainbow-colored soap bubbles and kind hands to hold him. You've helped make it possible for this little fellow to enjoy these things. He is one of many homeless infants who are cared for at the St. Anne Infant and Maternity Home . . . another charity supported by you through your Greater St. Louis Community Chest.

Some of the babies at St. Anne's are the children of unwed mothers. Here they are lovingly cared for until they can be placed in adoption or boarding homes where they will grow up to lead normal and happy lives. Other St. Anne's babies are here only temporarily because their parents are unable to care for them due to illness or separation. They are usually returned to their homes when the difficulty has passed.

Taking care of 168 babies, as St. Anne's did last year, presents some unusual problems. Babies are expensive little bundles. They need plenty of personal attention from people who have their interests at heart. At St. Anne's each baby is treated as an individual personality. They receive affectionate, intelligent care in small groups under the guidance of Sisters and trained workers.

As a result, the standards of child care at St. Anne's compare favorably with the standards established by leading child welfare groups throughout the United States. This brings up an important point about Chest-supported agencies: When an organization belongs to the Community Chest, you can be sure that your contribution is paying for service which meets approved standards.

BRITON BREAKS SOUND BARRIER UNINTENTIONALLY

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Britain's new P-1 jet interceptor fighter plane slipped through the sound barrier by "mistake" recently, Duncan Sandys, Minister of Supply, said yesterday.

"There was such complete absence of buffeting that the pilot, who had intended to fly supersonic, found he had got well beyond without noticing it," Sandys told the Society of British Aircraft Constructors. The Supply Ministry declined further elaboration today.

The P-1, built by the English Electric Co., is the first British jet to smash the sound barrier in level flight. The firm announced Aug. 17 that the P-1 had flown several times in level flight at speeds exceeding that of sound.

Some reports place the maximum speed of the plane at 1000 an hour.

JOHN S. LEAHY SR. DISBARRED FROM U.S. COURT PRACTICE

John S. Leahy Sr., St. Louis attorney, was disbarred from practice in federal courts under an order signed today by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper.

The order was entered after the district clerk's office received notification that the Missouri Supreme Court had accepted Leahy's surrender of his license to practice law, effective last July 1.

Leahy, widely-known lawyer and member of the bar for more than 56 years, had been under investigation by the Missouri Bar Advisory Committee, which advises the Supreme Court in disciplinary matters involving members of the Bar. The inquiry dealt with Leahy's handling of two estates of which he was trustee.

MAN SHOT TO DEATH IN YARD OF HIS HOME ON EAST SIDE

St. Clair county deputy sheriffs were investigating today the killing of Robert Dunn, who was found shot to death early Sunday in the yard of his home, 3901 Church road, Fireworks station, south of East St. Louis.

Dunn, 78 years old, a Negro who operated a small lumber yard, was struck in the heart by a bullet from a pistol. His wife said she last saw him at 10 p.m. Saturday when he went out to feed the hogs and horses after their return from a shopping trip to St. Louis.

Mrs. Dunn told deputies she was awakened at 2 a.m. Sunday by a shout from a man whose voice she did not recognize. She then heard a shot, she said, and found her husband's body in the yard.

eliminate needless delays and all influence angles, give everyone an equal opportunity and return city-owned property to the tax rolls instead of burdening the city treasury," the report stated.

Co-operation on Rackets.

While recognizing the weakness of state laws against labor racketeering, the report called upon federal prosecutors to give the Police Department and the Circuit Attorney's office any evidence they may have of violation of local laws by labor racketeers. The jurors said they had not been given evidence of some local violations discovered by the federal grand jury.

Serious overcrowding and understanding of the city's facilities for mental patients was described by the grand jury. It found two wards intended to accommodate 65 patients at Homer G. Phillips Hospital overflowing with 220 persons when the jurors paid a call. At Malcolm Bliss Psychopathic Hospital, facilities for 186 patients were being occupied by 286 when the jurors called.

The jury recommended that adequate facilities be set up for the city's Negro mental patients and that they be physically separated from Phillips Hospital.

It reported that the workhouse was faced with a problem of enforced idleness among inmates since work in the rock quarry was abandoned as an economy measure.

Impaneled by Circuit Judge William K. Koerner, the jury held 33 sessions through the months of June, July, August and part of September, hearing 284 witnesses.

INJURED CLIMBER RESCUED AFTER FALL ON MT. WHITNEY

LONE PINE, Calif., Sept. 7—Rescuers today brought down from 14,496-foot Mount Whitney an injured climber, Henry Mandolf of San Diego, who fell 200 feet to a ledge.

Mandolf suffered an arm fracture, abrasions and possible internal injuries as he lost his footing on an icy trail. He was trapped on the ledge for 25 hours in 18-degree cold before his 14-year-old companion, James Prichard of San Diego, walking all night to Whitney Portal for help, summoned forest rangers and sheriff deputies. An airplane spotted him and directed the 17-man searching party to the ledge.

8 FROM THIS AREA DIE IN WEEKEND AUTO ACCIDENTS

Three Killed in Crash South of Hayti, Mo.—Woman Fatally Hurt Near Waynesville.

Eight persons of the St. Louis area were killed in automobile accidents from Saturday night through yesterday.

The dead:

Miss Ruth Seel, 32 years old, 2124 Yale avenue, Maplewood, a long distance operator for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Robert Lee Edwards, 44, Negro, laborer, 5076 Vernon avenue.

Mrs. Robert Lee Edwards, 31, Negro, 5076 Vernan avenue.

Mrs. Minnie Swilling, 58, Negro, 4417 Elmbank avenue.

Homer J. Bennett, 31, Pacific, Mo.

Miss Seel died in Waynesville (Mo.) General Hospital Sunday of injuries suffered late Saturday in an accident 10 miles west of Waynesville on U.S. Highway 66.

A car driven by William J. Kelly, 6427 Hoffman avenue, in which Miss Seel was riding, went out of control on a curve, turned over and struck a tree, highway patrolmen reported. Kelly was seriously injured.

Killed Near Hayti.

Miss Swilling and the Edwards pair were killed when the automobile in which they were riding at a high rate of speed crashed against a bridge railing on U. S. Highway 61, highway patrolmen reported. The accident occurred three miles south of Hayti.

Slaten apparently was struck and killed by an automobile as he walked on a road near Pere Marquette State Park, Illinois state police reported. They said the motorist did not report the accident.

Denton was killed when the car in which he was riding skidded into a field and turned over near State Route 111 about a mile south of Roxana, Ill.

Bennett was found dead in his wrecked automobile at the bottom of a 20-foot embankment on Franklin county Highway F, a short distance south of Pacific.

Car Plunges off Bridge.

Damesworth was killed when the automobile in which he was riding struck a curb on the south side of MacArthur Bridge, careened to the north side and broke through a guard rail. The machine plunged about 100 feet to the ground. The accident occurred on the eastern approach to the bridge.

Driver of the car was Wilbur Cosby, 1410 South Eleventh street, who suffered serious injuries. Beside him in the front seat were John and Orville Fraley, brothers, 1515 Menard street. Damesworth was asleep in the rear seat. The Fraleys were thrown from the car when it struck the curb.

The Fraleys told police the machine was traveling about 70 miles an hour when the accident occurred. Cosby has been charged with destruction of city property.

Three persons were seriously injured yesterday when two automobiles collided at Arlington and Ridge avenues, police reported. They are: James Bailey, Negro, 3060 Sheridan avenue, Mrs. Norma Snyder, 4104A Gano avenue, and Mrs. Minnie Snyder, 5839 Etzel avenue.

Bailey was eastbound in Ridge and collided with the other car which was driven by Mrs. Norman Snyder.

Walter E. Koch, 617 Jackson avenue, was seriously injured Sunday when two automobiles collided in the 7600 block of Watson road, Affton. Also injured were: Blanche Evans, 1419 South Vandeventer avenue, a passenger in Koch's car; Matthias Horn Jr., 5712 Rosa avenue, driver of the other car, and Noel Kuhnert, 5144 Goethe avenue, a passenger in Horn's machine.

Truck Rams Auto.

Four persons were injured Sunday when a tractor-trailer truck rammed the rear of an automobile near Collinsville. The car, driven by Fred Landreth of Collinsville, struck a house trailer parked behind a tavern-restaurant.

The truck, driven by James E. Smith, Pataskala, O., continued on and struck the side of the tavern, knocking it two feet off its foundation. Smith and Landreth and Landreth's two young sons were injured.

RUINS OF ANCIENT INDIAN CITY FOUND IN ARGENTINA

SALTA, Argentina, Sept. 7 (AP)—Archeological explorers from Salta said yesterday they have found ruins of an ancient Indian city at the top of the Antofalla volcano, almost four miles above sea level. Amadeo Sirolli, director of the Salta museum of natural sciences, headed the 11-man expedition.

They said they found the ruins of 47 groups of houses of three or four rooms each, traces of fields with irrigation canals and a mound with steps which they supposed was an altar. Objects found in graves were reported characteristic of the Aymara Indian civilization. The Aymaras were conquered by the Incas in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries.

U.S. OPENS DOOR TO RUSSIA TO JOIN ATOM POOL

atomic power generation plant, at Shippingport near Pittsburgh.

Standing in a Denver television-radio studio, the President waved a radio-active wand over a capsule containing uranium. That generated an electrical impulse which put an earth-moving machine in motion some 1200 miles away in Pennsylvania.

Then, with a broad smile on his face, he turned to a television set and watched the machine go through its paces.

The six-nation agreement which the President disclosed is an outgrowth of a proposition he made to the United Nations last Dec. 8. But the present undertaking represents a substantial modification of the atomic pool idea he then advanced.

Mr. Eisenhower said the United States was willing to contribute atomic material to such a pool in a joint undertaking with other atomic powers—specifically including Russia. There followed a series of highly secret negotiations with Russia. In part, they were conducted personally by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Terms of Russians.

The Russians insisted on two points which from the American view were hopelessly unacceptable: (a) That Red China would have to be in on any formal talks to create such a pool, and (B) that the United States should, as a first step, join in outlawing the use of atomic weapons.

Dulles regarded this as an effort by the Russians to compel the United States to sit down with a nation with which, in Korea, it is still legally at war and also to get the United States to tie one hand behind its back by saying it would not use the weapons on which its major military strategy is now based.

The negotiations thus reached the point of collapse several months ago although the exchange of views continued between Moscow and Washington.

Mr. Eisenhower's U.N. pool plan was designed to accomplish several things—to seize the initiative on a great issue, to demonstrate America's peaceful intentions by deeds, to get the world thinking about the advantages instead of the terrors of the atom and to direct into productive channels at least a small amount of the great explosive reserve of atomic material.

The President's new plan manifestly can achieve only some of these purposes because of Russia's refusal to go along on terms acceptable to the United States.

Primarily it can achieve two things: It can demonstrate America's interest in atomic developments for peace to build up power sources in power-short areas. Also, it can provide a practical enterprise in which the United States and its principal allies work together to create something new and better in the world. This, at least, is a hopeful start at a time when the allied nations seem to be pulling steadily apart on critical world issues.

Uranium Requirements.

Indications are that the United States and Britain need not weaken their military strength in order to provide stocks of processed uranium for generating power. Informants say the amount of material required for power production even on a grand scale is very small in relation to the quantities of the same material required for bomb making.

In his Labor day speech Mr. Eisenhower declared also that:

1. The United States will set up an atomic reactor school in this country "to help train representatives of friendly nations in skills needed for their own atomic programs."

2. This Government will start talks Thursday "with our friends in Canada," and negotiations with other friendly nations "will swiftly follow."

3. The United States is about to negotiate with Belgium—in advance of that country's expected participation in the pool—on construction of an atomic reactor plant there.

West European Leaders Praise Atomic Pool Proposal.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 7 (UP)—West European leaders hailed President Eisenhower's plan for a free-world atomic pool today as "real progress after years of frustration."

Belgian authorities were especially enthusiastic about the plan, which envisions the construction of a joint United States-Belgian atomic power plant to augment this country's dwindling natural power resources.

Official sources in London said Britain "welcomes" the pool idea, and a Paris spokesman said France is "keenly interested."

A British Foreign Office statement expressed hope that the Russians, who have rejected every offer of atomic co-operation made by the United States, eevntually will agree to join the pool.

Informed sources here said the jointly-constructed plant probably will be located at Moll, near the big port of Antwerp, where a small atomic pile already is being built.

Red China Flood Relief Fund.

HONG KONG, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Communist Chinese China news service announced today the Peiping Government has allocated $64,000,000 for flood relief and loans to flood victims.

Former Labor Prime Minister Reports on What He Saw Behind the Iron Curtain

Clement Attlee Tells of Traffic Rise, Colossal Buildings to Impress People With Power—Fails to Come to Meeting of Minds on Democracy.

Britain's former Laborite Prime Minister, Clement R. Attlee, has just concluded a three-week tour of Communist China, which included a stopover in Moscow en route. Leading a Labor party delegation of nine, his aim was "to learn as much as I can about what conditions really are." Following is the first of a series of reports in which he gives his observations and his reactions to what he saw and heard.

By CLEMENT R. ATTLEE

HONG KONG.

IT HAD been 18 years since I was last in Russia, when I went by boat with Ambassador Maisky to Leningrad and then to Moscow. This time I flew with my colleagues to Stockholm and Helsinki and so to Moscow. From the plane one could see the collective farms, with their broad strips of common cultivation and small individual plots.

The striking things in the view of Moscow from the air are the lofty, towering buildings of the university and the new foreign office building. There were also visible numbers of great blocks of flats (apartment houses).

On our trip from the airport, I failed to recognize anything except the Kremlin, so great has been the development in the center of the city. Even the principal streets were unrecognizable.

Increase in Autos.

Two things, in particular, struck me.

First, the great increase in the traffic. On my former visit to Moscow there was an absence of automobiles, which gave the city a derelict appearance.

Secondly, there undoubtedly had been a great advance in the standard of dress. Last time, the people looked shabby and wore broken-down and worn-out footwear. They appeared drab. This time the women were all in light summer frocks and wore good shoes. They looked now as if they belonged where formerly they seemed out of place.

There is no doubt that there has been a marked rise in the standard of life. The children, in particular, looked well fed. The shops had a good supply of wares, though I gathered that the quality was poor and that there was not much variety.

I was most hospitably entertained by Ambassador and Lady Hayter at our Embassy, which still is in the old house with a fine view of the Kremlin.

There is a vivid contrast between the old and the new in Moscow.

There are great blocks of flats and offices towering up along broad streets, while behind these structures are the old pre-revolution buildings, crumbling and out of repair, and lots of old wooden buildings on their last legs. The housing problem is appalling. There is intense overcrowding, and it will, judging by the housing program explained to us by the mayor, take many years to overcome this.

The feeling I got was that here is a government that felt it must impress the people with its power. The actual wants of ordinary men and women had to give way to this. For instance, the colossal foreign office building must have absorbed an amount of labor and material that might have been used for more social purposes. This is no doubt a matter of policy, but I remember having the same feeling about the Moscow underground railway, which contrasted so violently with the slums.

Imposing Stalin Allee.

Similarly, I saw recently in East Berlin the imposing Stalin Allee and the neglect to repair the ruins of war in the rest of the eastern sector. I have been told, however, that in Moscow these great buildings are a source of pride to the people. They certainly give a sense of power.

This, too, was shown in the imposing agricultural exhibition which has now become a permanent feature of Moscow. It is finely laid out. Here are individual pavilions of the constituent republics, structures built in the national architecture of each republic. The exhibits seem of good quality.

I could not fail to notice the out-of-town visitors to Moscow, where some 30,000 a day are brought in for a stay of some days. Here one saw peasant people, often in national dress in family groups, wandering around. There was no regimentation, and we mingled with the crowd.

Here again I must make a general observation. I certainly got the impression of greater cheerfulness and less obvious control than on my previous visit. I am quite sure it would be easy to establish good personal relations and for friendships to be made among the Russian common people.

On the evening of our arrival in Moscow we went to dinner with Mr. Malenkov at a villa in the country which is used for government hospitality. Here I met Mr. Molotov and Mr. Vishinsky, whom I had known before, and Mr. Malenkov, Mr. Kruschev, Mr. Mikoyan and Mr. Shvernik, whose acquaintance I made for the first time. There were plenty of interpreters and conversation was generally punctuated at intervals with toasts, as is the Russian custom, when we all made little speeches.

There was quite a lively discussion on a hypothetical question propounded by Aneurin Bevan and taken up with much vigor by Mr. Kruschev, a very downright person. Talk was free, but I get the impression that, though he did not speak very much, Mr. Malenkov was the dominating personality. Naturally at such gatherings there is a good deal of conventional sentiment, but I sensed a reflection of greater easement or good fellowship brought about by the Geneva conference.

Embassy Reception.

Next day there was a reception at our Embassy for the diplomatic corps. I was pleased to meet such old friends as Mr. K. P. Menon of India and Mr. Maung Ohn of Burma, as well as sundry foreign representatives whom I also had seen before.

In the evening, our Russian hosts of the day before came to dinner at the embassy, an unusual event. We had plenty of time for talk after dinner, as we did not break up until 1:30. We got into groups and eventually I found myself engaged in a long argument with Mr. Mikoyan on the subject of freedom and democracy.

It soon became clear that we could not find common ground in our discussion. When I tried to explain what we meant in England by democracy and individual freedom, I was referred to economics.

I was reminded of the man in Wells's story, "The Country of the Blind," who tried to explain what sight was, but when he told of the sky he assured the reader that overhead was a smooth dome. In like manner, all my talk of freedom was met by a reference to dialectical materialism. Mr. Mikoyan in his turn was shocked at my views, which he had thought not to be genuine but only put out for propaganda.

It is well to remember this and to realize that there is this great mental gulf between the hard-shell Communist and the West. We don't speak the same language.

The difference between the British and Russian conceptions of democratic government was brought before us very forcibly in our visit to the Kremlin. I had not before seen the old cathedrals and the collections of armor, coaches and the other relics of czarist days and was glad of this opportunity.

What struck us all, however, was the Hall of the Soviets.

Here was what corresponded to our Houses of Parliament, but anything less like a debating chamber could not be imagined. It is a very long room, with some 2000 seats, dominated by a platform and a pulpit. Here was a place to which people came, not to discuss, but to receive their orders. One could not imagine an opposition voice being raised.

More Personal Contacts.

We left Moscow with the conviction that the great need was for more personal contacts between our peoples.

In particular, we felt that more Russians should come to Britain to see for themselves what things are like and what kind of people live in the West.

We expressed a strong wish that Mr. Malenkov should come over to London. It must be realized that the present generation of men and women in high positions in Russia have grown up under the present regime and have had no personal acquaintance with the West.

We sensed that there was great hostility to the United States, and made it clear that while we wished to be good friends with the Russians and Chinese, we had no intention of breaking with old friends. We desired to be friends with all nations.

In such a short visit I could not get more than a very superficial view, but, as I have stated, I do feel that there is a lessening of strain in international relations.

We were cordially entertained in Moscow and also in Sverdloff, Nova Simbirsk and Irkutsk where we touched down on our way to China.

The views of Siberia that we got from the plane revealed a greater variety of scenery than I had expected, including some attractive country.

Finally we came to Mongolia, flying over wild country and later stark desert. We met the leaders of the Mongolian Republic at Alta Baru who entertained us at lunch. Our conversation had to be translated from Mongolian into Chinese and then from Chinese into English.

Atmosphere at Manila Parley Relaxed; No Reds Present to Make Propaganda

Conference Getting Much Done as Result —Dulles Lays U.S. Position on Line, Cites Asian Desire to Be Rid of Colonialism.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

MANILA, Sept. 7.

THE atmosphere at the Southeast Asia regional security conference is quite different from that in Berlin and Geneva, where the two most recent conferences were held.

The reason for the difference is that there are no Communists, at least overtly, present to turn the conference into a propaganda forum.

The big news from most of the postwar International Conferences has been news of disagreement. The big news here is that almost complete agreement has been reached on the wording of the articles for a Southeast Asia Security Pact in two days of relaxed discussion by the principal delegates and four days of preliminary effort by the working groups.

As a result of a hard day's work in shirt sleeves in two closed sessions, agreement has been reached on the wording of the 10 articles in the United States's third draft of the treaty, an eleventh article has been agreed to and a twelfth, proposed by the Philippine delegation, will be considered and probably adopted with some modifications tomorrow morning.

A final closed session is called for 9 a.m. Wednesday to complete the treaty. An open session is scheduled at 4 p.m. for the official signing. To accomplish this Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will have to do a lot of fast footwork with the various delegations to compromise the differences that still exist.

Another Hot Day.

Again today the weather was hot and humid. Dulles had his coat off and his sleeves rolled up. The Filipinos were in comfortable, coatless informal attire. The impeccable Lord Reading, the chief British delegate who is substituting for Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, still insisted on wearing his coat, but he did remove his monocle occationally. The French delegation retained their jackets and discomfort.

The main areas of discussion, disagreement and compromise were: 1. The application of Articles III and IV, which deal with economic intent and aid against aggression, to the Associated States of Laos, Cambodia and South Viet Nam: 2. Whether the treaty should be directed specifically against "Communist" aggression; 3. The areas to be covered by the treaty; 4. Whether the treaty should beof the NATO type, with aggression against one considered to be aggression against all, or like the Anzus treaties, which provide for action in accordance with constitutional processes, and 5. Finally and still unresolved, whether to adopt an anti-colonial twelfth article proposed by the Philippine delegation which would affirm the right of self-determination of the peoples of Southeast Asia.

The problem of applying the statement of economic intent of Article III and resistance to aggression in Article IV to Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam was solved by a French proposal for a separate protocol which would throw the mantlye of protection over them. Under the truce agreed to at Geneva these states cannot enter into such an alliance.

The first controversial part of Article IV was concerned with the American delegation's desire to limit the treaty's effect to "Communist" aggression only. The American position was that other minor agressions in the area did not constitute a threat to the United States, whereas renewed Communist aggression would increase Communist power and be such a threat.

This disagreement was finally compromised by eliminating the word "Communist" and by reaching agreement that the United States could include a statement of understanding to Article IV to the effect that as far as the United States is concerned it applied to Communist aggression.

The other question about article IV was brought about by the desire of the Philippine republic and Thailand to have the NATO provisions of an attack on one being considered an attack on all included, instead of acting "to meet the common Eisenhower '56 Choice of Most in G.O.P.

8 Out of 10 Want Him to Run — 6 of 10 Democrats for Stevenson.

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J., Sept. 7.

A CROSS-COUNTRY poll of voters of both parties shows that President Eisenhower is today the overwhelming choice of the Republicans, eight out of 10, to head the ticket in 1956, and Adlai E. Stevenson the choice of the Democrats, six out of 10. If Mr. Eisenhower bows out of the race, the poll shows that Vice President Richard M. Nixon is the Republicans' second choice.

Republican voters were first asked:

"Here is a list of men who have been mentioned as possible Presidential candidates in 1956 for the Republican party. Which one would you like to see nominated as the Republican candidate for President in 1956?"

79 Pct. for Eisenhower.

President Eisenhower was selected as first choice by 79 per cent of all persons who classified themselves as Republicans.

Those mentioning Mr. Eisenhower were then asked:

"And who would be your second choice?"

Richard M. Nixon	35%
Thomas E. Dewey	22
Harold E. Stassen	21
John W. Bricker	6

Cominform Journal Gives Japan and SEATO Same No. 1 Priority as It Does to Germany and EDC.

VIENNA, Sept. 7 (AP).

WORLD COMMUNISM apparently got new orders from the Cominform yesterday: Speed up efforts to wreck any Western alliance in Southeast Asia and win Japan away from United States influence.

Japan and the West's Southeast Asia plans received the same No. 1 priority as Germany and the European Defense Community in Communist thinking when the Cominform's weekly Journal printed two equal-length editorials on its front page.

Praise for France.

One editorial praised France's rejection of EDC and claimed the "glorious French Communist party" had headed the fight. But it said that the struggle against German rearmament was not ended.

The second editorial called for an international fight against the "revival of Japanese militarism." It asserted that the United States was making "tremendous efforts to involve Japan in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization."

It said: "The policy of militarizing Japan and drawing it into aggressive military pacts of the SEATO type runs counter not only to the vital interests of the Japanese people but also to the interests of other Asian peoples and in the first place to the peoples of China and Korea."

Diplomats here said the editorials made it appear that the Cominform plans to build up the bogey of Japanese militarism as much as possible.

"It seems the Communists hope to scare the Southeast Asians in the same way they have terrified many Europeans about German rearmament and thus prevent a SEATO alliance," commented one western observer.

Aims for Japan.

The editorial set forth the Kremlin's aims regarding Japan:

No participation in SEATO or other military blocs, withdrawal of American occupation troops, cancellation of all treaties and agreements between Japan and the United States, the liquidation of monopolies and the creation of a "peace-loving democratic state"—a Communist term applied to all Soviet satellites.

The editorial said "American schemes of reviving Japanese militarism and transforming Japan into a springboard for American aggression" were meeting steadily mounting resistance in Japan.

In its editorial on Europe, the Cominform Journal declared Russia's proposal for a general European collective security agreement was the only answer to German rearmament. It called on European Communists to do all they could to prevent formation of a German army under some alternative agreement now that France has rejected EDC.

Giri Resignation Accepted.

NEW DELHI, Sept. 7 (AP)—President Rajendra Prasad accepted today the resignation of India's Labor Minister, Viraha Venkata Giri, who submitted his resignation eight days ago to protest the Government's decision modifying a labor tribunal award granting bank employes a pay raise.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Thoughts of Two Cities

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

During the 16 years I have lived in St. Louis I have had many occasions to be proud of my adopted city, but never more so than on Aug. 28 when I read the editorial, "Regardless of Race." I hope somehow this editorial, commenting favorably on the city's decision to treat emergency patients at the nearest city hospital, will be reprinted in the French newspapers.

Last summer I spent six weeks in Paris, and because of the utility strike I was forced to see most of the city on foot. This necessitated a number of rest periods spent on benches in charming gardens and parks and along the busy Parisian thoroughfares.

In this manner I met and conversed with many people who were curious about me, America and our way of life.

As I write this I have before me an article from the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune of Aug. 13, 1953, that tells of "Race Violence Flaring in a Chicago Housing Project."

On Aug. 13, also during my rest periods, I learned how thoroughly the Parisians read, chewed and digested their newspapers, especially those articles dealing with racial differences. Unsolicited they offered sympathy and many solutions to what they considered my problem.

At least five citizens suggested I become a first-class citizen of France and renounce my second-class citizenship in America. Evening found me completely exhausted from trying to defend the American way.

Now comes another August and another year, and I am sorry not to be resting again in Paris so I can hear the comments of Parisians as they review the progress of America's second-class citizens during 1954.

So long as you publish editorials like "Regardless of Race," I will be forever proud to raise my voice with Mr. Irving Berlin in "God Bless America." RUTH B. SCOTT.

Housing for the Elderly

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If the city eventually decides to build some low-rent housing for the elderly, I hope the planners do not make the mistake of putting in concrete floors. That is very bad for those of us with rheumatism and leg and foot trouble. Wood flooring is what the elderly ought to have. I do hope this is considered.

A LONG-TIME READER.

Taxes and Madison County

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Higher taxes for everyone living in Madison county will be the net result of the purchase of McKinley Bridge by the Bi-State Development Agency. The plan to lease the rail facilities back to the railroads will mean a saving in taxes to them, also at the expense of the taxpayers of Madison county who will be forced to make up the difference.

Instead of more government agencies going into business, they should be getting out so that these businesses may pay their fair share in taxes.

Public ownership of Chain of Rocks canal's harbor facilities through the Bi-State Agency is generating exactly the same net results. Granite City Steel Co. advanced the necessary funds. It will get its money back; it will have harbor facilities available at lower cost because it will be tax free, which means higher taxes for Madison county taxpayers.

PAT URBAN.

No Jeans in Germany

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I see where Col. John H. Dilley of the U.S. Army in Frankfurt, Germany, has issued an order banning wives and daughters of the U.S. Army personnel from wearing blue-jeans, barebacks, halter-type sunsuits and shorts on the streets or in public. Some of the attire seen simply was not in good taste. Good for the colonel, and let us get behind him. Such a man is needed to issue the same order on this side of the pond.

F. M. TURNER.

Keeping the County Green

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Here's a tip for St. Louis county residents. During the summer months put a by-pass valve on sinks, baths and wash basins, and run the water to your grass and flowers.

This would result in a saving of millions of gallons of water and help keep your city green and beautiful as well as keeping temperatures lower through evaporation.

There is nothing harmful to plants in such water.

GEORGE PHIPPS.

As to An Ad

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I strongly object to your publication of the advertisement of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce plugging for the so-called Right to Work act. You do good work fighting for the rights of the people, and then you go and print an ad like that one. I never expected it of you. I hope you will expose the vicious right-to-work scheme for what it really is.

D. W. SCHEVER.

Weekend of Tension

A weekend of tension in the Far East has passed, and it seems likely that the incidents which brought about the tension will be isolated, like so many other incidents before them, to prevent further trouble.

The United States has asked the United Nations Security Council to investigate the Russian downing of any American Navy patrol plane off the Siberian coast in the Sea of Japan. This incident follows the pattern of numerous others, both in Asia and in Europe. Like the others it is outrageous from the American point of view. Even so it will probably be minimized by mutual consent if the pattern of preceding occurences of the type prevails.

In some of these boundary clashes in the past it has seemed clear that the American plane, accidentally or otherwise, got too close to Soviet-controlled areas. In the present case the State Department strongly maintains that the Navy plane was 40 miles off the coast, over the open sea.

If proof could be had, it would undoubtedly support that contention. Since objective evidence beyond the claims of the two sides is almost impossible to come by in such an incident, proof is difficult to establish.

In the end this shooting scrape, like others before it, will probably go down as one more consequence of cold war tensions and trigger-happy border nervousness. Only the eventual reduction of the tension and the nervousness can bring safety from similar clashes.

Communist Chinese attacks on Quemoy, Nationalist bombing of the Reds in retaliation, and Communist bomber flights over Formosa all did their bit to increase the tension over the long weekend. On Quemoy two of the casualties were American observers, and Seventh fleet ships are close enough to the shooting to create a constant danger of deeper American involvement.

If the Chinese Communists had wanted an all-out war with America, however, they could have had one in Korea or perhaps in Indochina. The fact that they agreed to armistices in those war zones strongly suggests that the threats to Formosa have propaganda rather than military objectives. Certainly the Reds have been plainly warned by the Eisenhower Administration what an attack on Formosa will mean. It will mean fighting by all American forces, with a heavy obligation on the U.N. to give full support to Formosa's defenses.

That is the only stand which this country can take in the present circumstances. If our diplomacy is wise, however, we must at the same time work toward the creation of different circumstances in which the shooting can stop and the border tensions can decline. A broad Far Eastern political settlement, including a fair disposition of the Formosa question, should remain an ultimate objective.

As we look to U.N. to investigate the shooting down of our Navy plane, as we look to U.N. to support any military defense of Formosa, so we should look to U.N. to take the lead in a political settlement. Such a settlement cannot be discussed, however, so long as Communist guns and bombs are exploding.

Another Oppenheimer Puzzle

The analysis of the Oppenheimer case which we print in condensed form under the cartoon today contains one most interesting point which, so far as we know, has not been made before.

Professor Kalven points out, on the basis of his study of the transcript of the case, that Dr. Oppenheimer had not only been cleared three times in prior administrations, but was actually cleared by a security re-check during the Eisenhower Administration last July. After the Eisenhower Administration set up its own standards for security, Dr. Oppenheimer's file was studied by Dr. Walter G. Whitman of the Department of Defense, who concluded that Dr. Oppenheimer should be reappointed as a consultant,

This is not only new but rather startling information. The Atomic Energy Commission, in its very first public statement about the Oppenheimer case last April 13, gave the distinct impression that the case was reopened because, under the new Administration, the security regulations had been changed. The AEC, moreover, made no public mention of the fact that such a review had already taken place at the Department of Defense and had resulted in a decision in favor of Dr. Oppenheimer.

Professor Kalven concludes that the real trigger for the case was a letter written by William L. Borden, former director of the congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, to J. Edgar Hoover last November. Mr. Borden charged that "more probably than not J. Robert Oppenheimer is an agent of the Soviet Union." The charge was not remotely proved, nor even given credence, at any stage of the hearings. How then could it weigh more, in causing the case to be reopened, than all the detailed security reviews, including one as recently as last July? This is only one puzzle of a puzzling case whose motivations still have not been adequately clarified.

Where Mr. Dwyer Can Lead

If St. Louisans approve the earnings tax amendment to the City Charter at the Sept. 30 special election, they will expect leaders of both political parties to co-operate fully toward making local government more efficient and economical.

The greatest advance that can be made in this direction is to bring the so-called "county" offices under municipal control. Under the Missouri Constitution, St. Louis is recognized as both a city and a county. As a result, it is equipped with two layers of government—municipal and county—both supported by city taxpayers.

The municipality controls spending in the municipal offices, and municipal employes are covered by a merit plan. But the city has little control over spending in its county offices, where employment is governed by the spoils system.

Thus it is that Sheriff Tozer can fire two of his deputies, not on the basis of merit, but purely because he disagrees with their politics. And that is why the son of an alderman can draw $350 a month for two days a week as a deputy jury commissioner while serving on active duty at the naval air station at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

It is possible that the city can take control over these havens for the spoilsmen if, when it gets around to writing a whole new charter, it claims the power. Still, it would be much simpler if the Missouri Legislature in the coming session were to adopt legislation granting this very control.

Leadership for such a measure would have to come from the central committees of both parties. The chairman of the Democratic City Central Committee is John J. Dwyer, who also happens to be City Treasurer. His is a county office and his employes are under the spoils system, not the merit system. Would it be asking too much for Mr. Dwyer to take the lead in petitioning the Legislature for an enabling act?

Courage in a Scientist

In a time when keeping quiet is the rule among many university and college administrators and teachers, Dr. G. M. Gilbert of Michigan State College has had the courage of his convictions both as a scientist and as a citizen. Dr. Gilbert—former prison psychologist at the Nuernberg war crimes trials and now associate professor of psychology at Michigan State College—has called on Senator McCarthy to undergo psychological examination "in his own interest as well as that of the country he professes to defend."

Speaking in New York before the sixty-second annual meeting of the American Psychological Association, Dr. Gilbert defined a demagogue as "a person who seeks notoriety and power by exploiting the fears and desires of the people." Then, summarizing his own observations, he said he was "forced to agree with many observers here and abroad who regard Senator McCarthy as America's outstanding example of the unscrupulous demagogue."

What the American people do not know, Dr. Gilbert said, is whether Senator McCarthy's "anti-Communist self-righteousness is sincere or auto-suggestive or downright cynical." The psychologist then ventured to suggest that "Senator McCarthy himself isn't sure and would give a lot to know."

A great weakness in the United States is our tendency to see the mote in our neighbor's eye, but not the beam in our own. Dr. Gilbert pointed this out in connection with McCarthyism. He told his fellow scientists:

> We ridicule Soviet biologists and musicians, for example, for bowing to the Communist party line in science and art. We bitterly reproached German intellectuals for not standing up to their Nazi demagogues, at least in the early stages when only freedom of opinion was being stifled by torture and death in concentration camps.

In an effort to find out why a freedom-loving people did not stop Hitler while there was yet time, Dr. Gilbert questioned many German citizens and found that they said almost in unison: "You don't recognize creeping totalitarianism until it is too late."

Since, in his words, there is already "creeping thought control and bellicose demagoguery in America," Dr. Gilbert used the German experience as a lesson for this country. Less bold academic men should be encouraged to step out and be counted when they hear him say: "We must regard the intellectuals' willingness to stand up to the threat of creeping thought control and super-patriotic intimidation as one of the tests of America's fitness to survive with its freedoms intact."

No Baskets

Canadian football, as demonstrated on television on Saturday afternoons, turns out to be a spectator sport of enlarged dimensions, like the field it is played upon. Many American football fans like it, but our coaches—a conservative and tradition-minded crew—take a dim view of the game even on a clear TV screen.

The Canadians use five backs, a wide field and deep end zone which invites forward passes. They allow three downs to make 10 yards but no downfield blocking. The result, as we saw it, was often a double lateral followed by a forward pass.

One American coach says he thinks those rules remove some of the strategic mysteries from the game. "If you don't make six or seven yards on the first down," he says, "you have to pass on second." Just as likely, though, a Canadian team will pass on first or third, or any time at all. All the game lacks is tip-in shots.

We do not know whether the Canadians devised this wide-open game chiefly to please the spectators, or just to be different from their southern neighbors—a point on which they understandably insist. In any case their football game is a remarkable blend—something like a Canadian cigarette advertised as English style with pure Virginia tobacco.

What a Reform

President Eisenhower has signed a bill which he hails as the first step since 1952 toward "correcting injustices" in immigration policy. This blows up the actual event by the square of the cube root.

What the bill does is to circumvent the immigration law's restrictions in order to admit 385 Basque sheepherders. The measure is intended to help the sheep business and any injustices it might correct are purely coincidental.

No doubt the sheep industry needs more herders and the Basques will prove useful citizens. But their entry does nothing to wipe out the axle-deep curbs on immigration which the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act contains.

There is a special irony in this situation. Senator McCarran of Nevada was co-author of the immigration law. Senator McCarran also sponsored the new special bill to get around that law by admitting the sheepherders, evidently to benefit his state.

When President Eisenhower asked Congress to correct injustices in the McCarran law, Congress did nothing and the President did not repeat his request in his second State of the Union message. When Senator McCarran asked Congress to help the Nevada sheep business and, incidentally, 385 Basques, Congress did the job neatly and quickly in its closing hours.

That is hardly an Administration victory, or a basic reform in immigration policy.

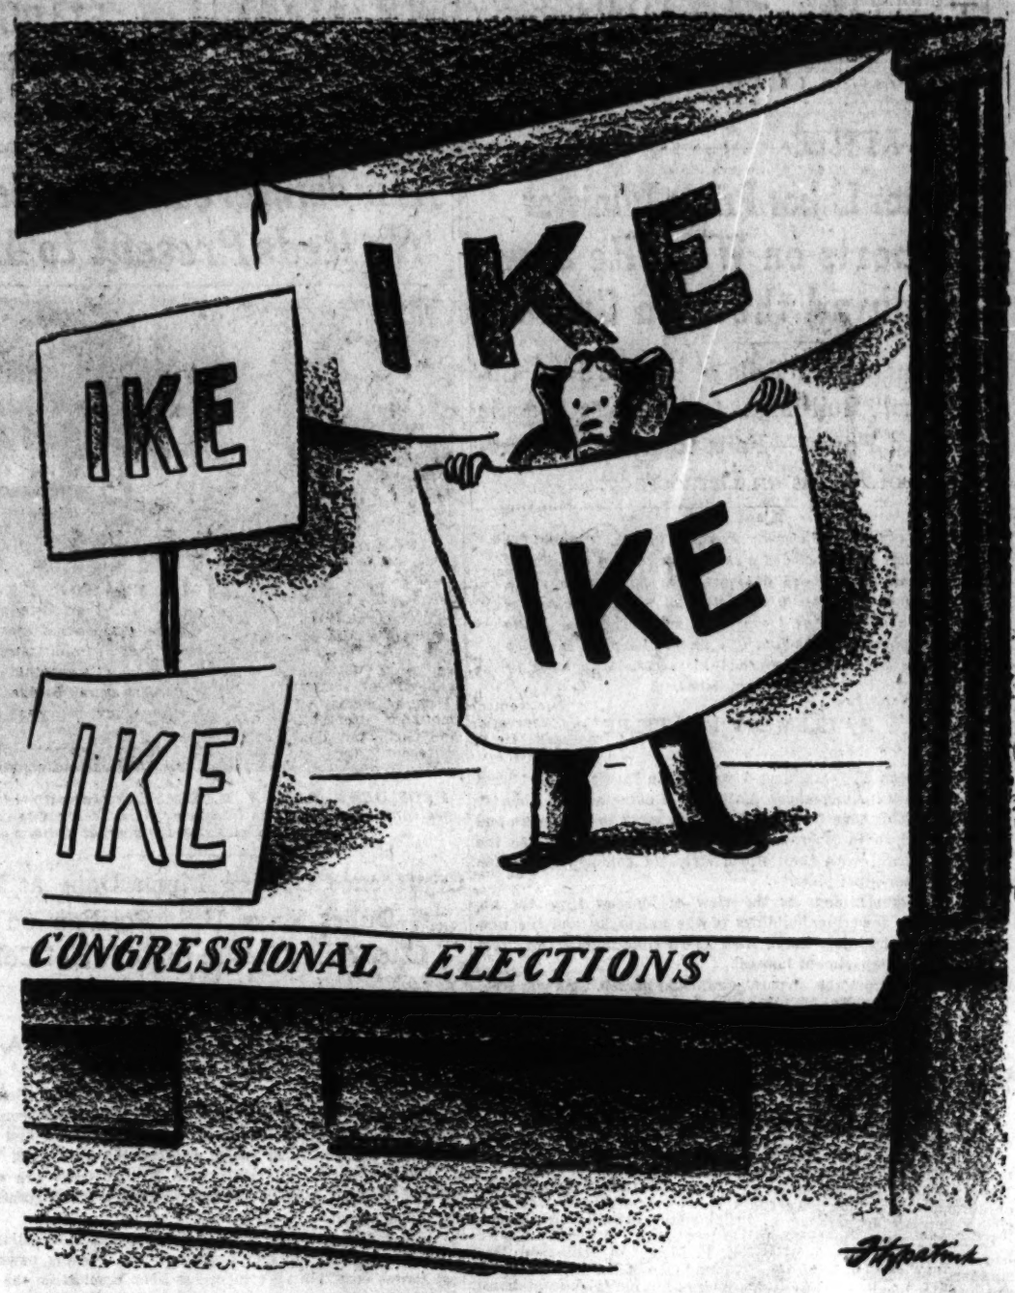

Tragedy in the River Shannon

The crash of the Dutch K.L.M. airliner in Ireland's Shannon river estuary, killing 28 of the 56 persons aboard, is a tragedy relieved only by the fact that a quick-thinking woman passenger prevented a holocaust that would have been fatal to all on the plane.

Miss Elizabeth Snyder, 28, of New York City, knocked a box of matches from the hands of a fellow passenger who was trying to light a cigarette as gasoline fumes from a ruptured tank poured into the sinking plane. The captain of the airliner credited her with preventing a terrific explosion.

The president of K.L.M. says that failure of instruments to indicate the correct altitude of the big Super-Constellation might well be the cause of the accident which occurred only two minutes after takeoff. As the plane was not badly damaged it is almost certain that inquiry will establish the reason for the crash.

It would seem to be equally important to determine the reason why the airport did not learn of the accident which occurred about 4 a.m. and within sight of the field's lights, until a co-pilot staggered back to the airport with the news.

DRESSING UP THE WINDOW

Fresh Look at Oppenheimer

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Professor in the University of Chicago Law School, after weighing case of noted scientist dismissed as security risk, concludes security system was real loser; cites mystery surrounding initiation of case, holds evidence of character defects is inadequate.

Harry Kalven Jr. in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists

On June 29, 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission handed down its decision denying clearance to Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer. The Commission's action climaxed what had become the most widely publicized, and quite possibly the most important, loyalty-security case of our time.

The central issue in the case is one of weighing numerous instances in an unusually complex and busy life history against incompletely defined standards of loyalty and security. It is therefore very much in an area of judgments about which wide disagreements are possible and difficult to resolve.

J. Robert Oppenheimer

My own view is that by its manner of affirming, the Atomic Energy Commission has made the adverse decision of the Gray Board less tenable and less persuasive; that the significant differences between the Gray Board and the commissioners show that the criteria of the security system are now dangerously undefined; and that the decision of the Commission is in the end explainable only as a most serious error of judgment in applying standards or as the implicit use of general security standards so stringent and puritanical as to give cause for genuine alarm.

An Error of Judgment

The first error of judgment was that charges were filed at all. It is not perfectly clear how this came to pass.

The inquiry was not initiated because of the Eisenhower Security Order 10450 (which replaced the Truman loyalty program and applied to all agencies, including the Commission.)

Dr. Walter G. Whitman, as chairman of the Research and Development Board of the Department of Defense, was asked to review the matter of Oppenheimer's clearance under the new security system. He did so in July 1953 and after "prayerfully" thinking it over, unqualifiedly recommended that he be reappointed as a consultant.

According to Commissioner Campbell's opinion, the impetus came from William L. Borden's letter in November 1953. Mr. Borden after leaving Government service as executive director of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy felt it his duty to send Mr. J. Edgar Hoover a letter stating his conclusions as to Mr. Oppenheimer.

Mr. Hoover prepared a summary of the files and sent it and the Borden letter to interested agencies, and the President.

Dispute Over H-Bomb

The striking thing is that Mr. Borden reached conclusions about Oppenheimer of unparalleled severity and that no official passing on the case since has even remotely suggested that Mr. Borden's conclusions were well founded.

The one new element Mr. Borden introduced was Dr. Oppenheimer's position in the H-bomb controversy.

But Gen. Nichols and all of the commissioners in their final decision carefully and explicitly reject the H-bomb controversy as irrelevant.

My own paradoxical hunch is that had Dr. Oppenheimer originally been charged with what he was finally found guilty of by the Commission, he would never have been subjected to a loyalty-security hearing.

The structure of the majority opinion is simple and clear. The Atomic Energy Act of 1946 speaks in terms of "character, associations and loyalty."

The majority rest their case chiefly on proof of fundamental defects of character. They never specify precisely what the defect of character is, but the instances all involve conduct which the Commission construes as deliberate misrepresentation, and Gen. Nichols more bluntly puts the items under the heading: veracity. The conclusion therefore is that the eminent Dr. Oppenheimer is no longer "entitled to the confidence of the Government and this Commission" because he is a liar.

It must be emphasized that the Gray Board going over the same record and having heard the case did not find this point. It must be emphasized that an enormously distinguished group of 31 men who had worked intimately with Oppenheimer expressed unqualified confidence in his integrity.

Chevalier Case Analyzed

What then is the evidence to support this? The great instance, of course, is the Chevalier case.

Counsel for Oppenheimer readily admit that this incident reflects a serious mistake by Oppenheimer. It is clear that Oppenheimer was too slow in bringing the matter to the attention of intelligence officers, that he should not have impeded their investigation by refusing to name Chevalier, and that he should have told the story accurately when he told it.

But if this is the point, the incident was 11 years ago and it is not conceivable Oppenheimer would do this sort of thing today, a point which many of his witnesses stressed.

Gen. Groves regarded the incident as a display of the schoolboy attitude of protecting a friend. Whatever it shows, it does not show that Oppenheimer is a liar.

No matter how seriously one takes the Chevalier incident it does not, I think, save the majority judgment. For they themselves thought it needed corroboration and in seeking that corroboration from the Peters, Lambert, Weinberg, Seaborg and Lomanitz incidents, they make all too apparent the quality of their judgment.

I find it disgraceful that a responsible Government body would solemnly present these five instances as bearing on fundamental defects of character sufficient to make a man a security risk. Everyone may agree, as the majority hopes, that honesty is the best policy, but I do not think that many will agree that these five instances are any evidence of lying.

Security System on Trial

The majority opinion is equally striking with respect to the matters it does not mention. The issue was not, as the majority sometimes appears to have thought, the punishment of Oppenheimer for past misconduct. It was solely an issue of predicting his future conduct in security terms. And in making such a prediction it is surely not appropriate to consider only the adverse items. The Commission's job was to weigh as judges, not to build as prosecutors.

They had overwhelming additional and positive evidence as to Oppenheimer's character, devotion and performance which to my mind simply dwarfs their derogatory data—if they were trying to reach a sound prediction as to his future reliability.

The Gray report recognized that the security system was on trial along with Dr. Oppenheimer. It is the security system and not Dr. Oppenheimer that, in the end, has lost its case.

A Boy, a Dog and a Gun

There was a boy nicknamed Skeeter and an old man called Uncle Jesse who lived in a cabin on the edge of a swamp that drained into the Pascagoula river in Mississippi, and a dog given the name of Lady that lived with them for a while. It is life as lived by these three and their little world that James Street has put into a book of beauty and understanding rarely achieved by authors who write about boys, old men and dogs.

There is magic and promise of more magic to come in the first line of chapter one: "The swamp was sleeping the night away." There's the swish of the river around the cypress knees, the hum of insects, the low rumbling of the bullfrogs and the high cry of the wildcats. The boy, wide awake as he sat on the cabin steps, heard a haunting laugh that echoed across the bog and startled all night creatures into silence and then the swamp lay as still as unborn time.

James Street

That was the world in which the boy and man lived and into which a dog came to be loved for a while and lost at last and mourned, the world to which James Street admits us to abide with these three for a while and remember them after the tale is told.

The boy was 9 years old and "sprouting up." Then and after, there were two things that he wanted, a .20 gauge gun for himself and store-bought teeth, called Roebuckers, for Uncle Jesse. The gun would cost $25. Next year, maybe, if they sold enough cordwood or cypress knees or alligator hides that they got from the swamp, he would have his gun, for Uncle Jesse wouldn't deny him if they had the money. But it was always next year.

The Roebuckers would cost $65. It would take a miracle to get them. The miracle happened when Skeeter got his dog, for Lady was valuable and there was a big reward for her, but the hurt of parting with her was a high price to pay for a gun and a set of teeth.

There was happiness for the boy, though, in having the dog for a while after he found her, lost and running wild in the swamp, and training her to do his bidding. From day-bust to coming moondown they hunted and played together and were as happy as a boy and a dog could be.

In summer time one day was like the next but by and by the red moon wasted and the circle went away and autumn crept down from the north and brought the dry winds that blew the clouds high. The winter would come and for Uncle Jesse that would be the end and he wouldn't need his Roebuckers any more, but the boy would go on, happy with his .20 gauge and finding consolation somehow for the goodbye he had had to say to his Lady.

James Street says he was born near a Mississippi swamp. It gave him something which now he in his turn gives back, naturally and with affection, in "Goodbye, My Lady."

Robots and Such

SCIENCE-FICTION THINKING MACHINES, edited by Groff Conklin. (Vanguard Press, 367 pgs., $3.50.)

As the title indicates, this collection includes stories of robots, androids (artificially-made life) and computers. In keeping with Mr. Conklin's record of past accomplishments, it is a very good anthology indeed. Some of the stories have appeared in other collections, but one appears for the first time in 30 years. This is Karel Capek's play, "R.U.R.," the work which gave the name "robot" to mechanical men.

There have been many, many stories of robots in just the last 15 years of science fiction, and this book contains 22 of the best. JOHN S. HARRIS.

THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON.

SENATOR BURNET MAYBANK of South Carolina, who died suddenly last week, left behind a legacy in an observation he once made. It is well worth thinking about in this time when management of our government is under direction of men lacking somewhat in boldness and imagination. It was this:

"No government ever went broke developing for the people their own natural resources."

The late Senator, former Governor of his state, former Mayor of Charlestown, a long-time advocate of public power, came to know from personal experience just what he boiled down there, in so few words, which is simply that development by the Government, representing all our people, of our great river systems and watersheds for production of cheap electric power, flood control, reclamation and navigation, is a paying proposition.

Senator Maybank

Pays in Cash, Too.

The philosopher, the humanitarian, the poet like to talk and sing of the enrichment of human life deriving from proper conservation and development of our natural heritage — our water and our land. They think in terms of intangible values that come from more fertile farms, protected from threats of flood and drouth and erosion. That means happy homes. That result is further brought about by the blessings of electricity to light farm homes, to serve radio and television, as well as labor-saving devices of all sorts in the house and barn.

All of those come from rivers controlled and harnessed and working for the people who live along their waters and in their valleys.

A Memorial.

But, beyond that, such integrated river development pays off in cold cash, which is pointed out for the benefit of the hard-headed. It increases the incomes of farmers, it attracts new industries that give jobs to many people. The owners of the industries, in their profits, and the workers, in salaries and wages, realize cold cash. So does the government. For it gets its share in income tax revenues.

Consequently, the Government is repaid many, many times for every multi-purpose public development of our rivers and watersheds it has undertaken. That can be demonstrated, as it has been, for individual projects here and there.

This is all so obvious that it seems a bit silly to explain it. It's only simple arithmetic.

Senator Maybank knew that, as do many of our public men who have contact with the people and with the land and the rivers. In his own state there is a memorial to him. That is the Santee-Cooper project which harnessed the waters of the Santee and Cooper rivers. It is just one of many which our native American boldness, imagination and enterprise have raised up in the last two decades to conserve and enrich our natural heritage.

Identified With Housing.

We around Washington got to know Burnet Maybank back in the days when he was Mayor of Charleston, chairman of his state's public service authority, and later as Governor. He was here now and again in the interest of the "little TVA," as the Santee-Cooper project was called.

From that interest he went on to another interest, conservation of our human resources. He directed his energies into efforts to clean out unsightly, unhealthy and costly slums and put in their places nice inexpensive housing units, with the Federal Government co-operating with local governments and private interests. When he died he was identified nationally with the slum clearance-public housing movement.

On his passing, it is worthwhile to ponder Burnet Maybank's recognition of the simple truths in conservation.

People Are Richer.

For they have been lost sight of by some who now are in authority here in matters of conservation—public officials who never seem to raise their eyes above the cash register to look out upon the land and the rivers, and see what has been done for both in great public projects that are sprinkled from Georgia and South Carolina and Tennessee to the Pacific Northwest.

Some of those now in authority here seem to see development of our rivers only in terms of profits for a few corporations. They would curtail any further development of a public sort. They cannot see, as Senator Maybank did, that our people and their government are richer through integrated development of our river systems as only the Government can do it; richer in every way, including the cold cash. For what he said—and here he spoke out as the true conservative he was—is certainly true:

SCULPTURE, PAINTING EXHIBITS OPEN HERE

First Solo Shows Here by Clark Fitz-Gerald, Dorothy Underhill.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Ever since some sculptors turned from marble to metal several years ago to be "experimental," a competitor has had to take up welding to be in the swim. Just how much in the swim is one ex-St. Louisan can be seen at the Hotel Chase swimming pool, where Clark Fitz-Gerald, having duly finished a vocational school welding course, is showing 24 pieces, all welded.

This is Fitz-Gerald's first one-man exhibit at a public place, though he held a previous solo display at his home when he lived in Kirkwood. He is well represented in the City Art Museum and other public and private collections.

His show is fashionable, of course, but it is much more than that. By turns his work is whimsical, allusive, always ingenious and sometimes creative. True, he seems to follow Giacometti in attentuation of forms in "Girl," but the technique is different. And "Ash Seed" suggests Brancusi in its streamlining, yet it is actually a faithful, if heroic, portrait from nature.

Museum Loans Included.

Many another piece skillfully exploits varied metals' ductility, strength or color to produce naturalistic or expressive effects. "King of the Hill," lent by the Phillips Andover (Mass.) Academy's Addison Gallery, simulates wind-caused movement of a mobile plant surmounted by a dragonfly.

From the Ogunquit (Me.) Art Museum, there is a fantasic and amusing "Creature That Comes Out in the Spring," made, after the fashion of Fred Dreher, from old machine parts, including a rust-chipped mower-blade.

Other unlikely bits of realism, which must be manipulated to be believed, include "El Guerrero," a fighting cock, "Dragonfly" and "Contraposto," in which schools of fish collide at angles that may be altered through a series of adjustments. The show will close Sept. 13.

Dorothy Underhill Exhibit.

A one-week exhibition of paintings by Dorothy Underhill opened with a reception Sunday at McCaughen & Burr galleries' Clayton branch, 7748 Forsyth boulevard. The artist lives in Glen Cove, L. I., and is represented in the Smith College collection but paints where she pleases, most recently in Mexico, with Italy and Spain next on her itinerary. She is a sister of Mrs. George H. Kahle, 534 Olive court, Webster Groves.

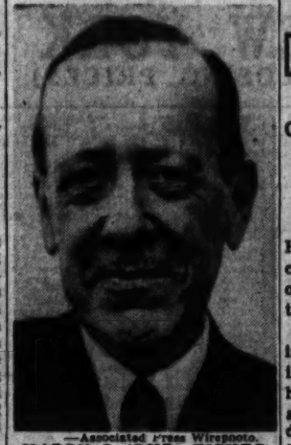

Miss Underhill majored in art history at Smith College and took up painting in earnest after her graduation. For her first show here, she has chosen 20 oil and six casein paintings dating from the last six of her nine years as a serious artist.

Her stylistic evolution within this period is from designed (but never descriptive) realism, as in the Italianate "Taxco Houses" and the opulent-textured "Coyacan," to semi-abstract and geometric cubist works like "The Cross."

Dates of the pictures reflect steady growth in chromatic richness and sensitivity and in strength of design. These formal values have been her major concern. She achieves her most popular successes, however, when these virtues are present in pictures that are also strong in human values, such as the mother and son in the appealing, subtle and softly shaded "San Miguelitos."

Special September shows at the City Art Museum comprise 66 classic and modern drawings from the private collection of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Ames of Springfield, Mo., and 40 paintings by the members of the St. Louis chapter of the American Art Alliance.

'BUD' FISHER DIES, DREW 'MUTT AND JEFF'

Cartoon Began by Giving Tips on Races, Had 'Phenomenal' Luck.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (UP)—Harry Conway (Bud) Fisher, creator of Mutt and Jeff, died of cancer at Roosevelt Hospital today. He was 69 years old.

Mr. Fisher's "Mutt" appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle in 1907. He incorporated in it his tips on the races at a bay area track. He had what was described as a "phenomenal streak of luck," mushrooming Mutt's bankroll daily, and the newspaper's circulation rose with it.

Before leaving the San Francisco Chronicle for the rival San Francisco Examiner, a Hearst newspaper, Mr. Fisher lettered onto his last strip the words: "Copyright — 1908 — by H. C. Fisher." That line won him rights many years later to the characters and the strip in a law suit that followed his departure from the Hearst syndicate.

Mr. Fisher was born in Chicago, April 3, 1885. He attended high school there, ran on a famous relay team, and then went west with aspirations for a prize fighting career.

He was knocked out in his first and only professional fight and went to work for the Chronicle art department.

Mr. Fisher was first married to Pauline Welch, from whom he was divorced in 1917. In 1925 he was briefly married to the Countess Ardita de Beaumont, whom he met and married on shipboard. The couple was legally separated in 1927.

Mr. Fisher served in both the United States and British armies in World War I, taking Mutt and Jeff with him through service.

He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1899 and saw service in the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection, the Cuban pacification campaign and the occupation of Vera Cruz in addition to service in both World Wars.

In addition to command of individual vessels ranging from troop transports to battleships during his career, Adm. INTERLINGUA, NEW SCIENCE TONGUE, TO GET A TRYOUT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Interlingua, the new international language of science, will be used here next week at the world Congress 6c Cardiology which is expected to attract physicians and researchers from more than 40 countries. They will discuss latest advances in the field of heart and blood vessel diseases.

The gathering, to be held Sept. 12-17, is being combined with the sessions of the American Heart Association. As a step toward helping doctors from different countries understand one another, abstracts of scientific papers will be published in Interlingua.

This is a combination of common elements of the western languages now in use—principally Spanish, French, Italian and Portuguese. It is described by Congress officials as a language "almost immediately familiar to anyone who has any knowledge of these (other) tongues."

Officials said its grammar is simple and it does not use regional idioms. As used at a medical meeting, Interlingua is more easily recognizeable to physicians familiar with technical terms and Latin derivations. It has been in use for some time in some scientific journals.

AIRCRAFTS, STEELS BRACE STOCK UPTURN

In Many Areas, Gains of 1 to Around 3 Points Are Frequent—Rails Lag.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—The stock market made a strong showing today in the steels, aircrafts, and coppers while the rest of the list turned in a more moderate performance.

There were no severely depressed key areas, but the railroads were quite laggard.

Gains from 1 to around 3 points were frequent. Losses of around a point marked the outside range on the lower side of the scale.

The market was 10 issues broader than last Friday's at 1119 issues. There were 562 gainers, 299 losers and 258 unchanged. There were 50 new 1954 highs and 5 new lows.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 2.27 points higher at 345.37 at the close, the 20 railroads gained .04 of a point at 114.95 and the 15 utilities rose .15 to 60.72).

Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .5 of a point to 131.9. The industrial stock index rose 1.4 points and utilities up .1 of a point. Rail index lost .1 of a point.

Trading was brisk in early stages, but the pace dwindled later. Business amounted to an aggregate 1,860,000 shares. That compares with 1,630,000 shares traded Friday in an advancing market. Both totals are well below the daily average so far this year.

Among the individually strong stocks were International Telephone and American Cable & Radio, and also higher were Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Vanadium, Atlas Corp., U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Anaconda Copper, Union Carbide, Westinghouse Electric and Seaboard Railroad.

Lower were New York Central, Southern Pacific, Standard Oil (N.J.), American Woolen, International Paper and Homestake Mining.

International Telephone opened late on a block of 60,000 shares up 1¾ at 24 and then lost some of its gain, and American Cable & Radio opened late on a block of 30,000 shares up 1⅛ at 7⅝ and then advanced a little more. Both stocks were mentioned favorably by a radio-television commentator, Wall Street brokers said.

Higher with the steels and aircrafts were most motors, rubbers, coppers, distillers, and electrical equipments. In the depressed class were the railroads, oils and chemicals.

LACLEDE-CHRISTY CO. VOTES STOCK DIVIDEND OF 25 PCT.

A 25 per cent stock dividend was voted yesterday by directors of Laclede-Christy Co., whose management is resisting efforts of H. K. Porter Co. of Pittsburgh to acquire controlling stock interest in the firm.

In a letter to stockholders announcing the dividend, J. D. Streett, president of Laclede-Christy, urged rejection of the Porter proposal to buy 80 per cent of outstanding stock at $20 a share.

Streett said negotiations have been under way for a possible merger of the Laclede-Christy firm, refractory manufacturers at 2000 Hampton avenue, with "an established and well-known company." The stock dividend will be paid to shareholders of record Sept. 16. The firm said it plans to continue paying annual dividends of $1 a share.

SMALL SIZE EGGS WEAK

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE ROW, Sept. 7 —The butter, egg and poultry markets as reported by the "St. Louis Daily Market Reporter":

Eggs were steady to slightly stronger on top quality. Consumer "A" and "AAs" showing some advance from inside prices quoted last week. Mediums and small stock plentiful and draggy still, with most dealers now 30c or less on the mediums.

Comparatively light run of fowl as usual the day after holiday and most local receivers held prices to a 14½ to 15½c level and there was limited interest from processors. However, some dressing plants out of market at over 14c and one load hatchery hens (about 20% barebacks) bought at 13c. Fryers in ample supply and steady.

WHEAT, RYE STRONG SPOTS IN GRAIN LIST

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 (AP)—Grains moved higher on the Board of Trade today with wheat and rye again standing out with largest gains. All rye futures made new seasonal highs, as did March, May and July wheat. Buying in these two cereals was based in part on deteriorating crop conditions in Canada, primarily a result of rush damage. Rains over the weekend in the Dominion were not considered favorable from the standpoint of checking the spread of rust. September soybeans fell 7 cents at the start as weather in the Midwest over the Labor day holiday was considered highly favorable for growth of the new crop. Later, the September future came back to around the previous close and deferred deliveries scored gains. Feed grains firmed in sympathy with the rest of the market although September corn lagged most of the session.

EAST ST. LOUIS TAX RATE HIKE BEING VOTED ON TODAY

East St. Louis polling places will be open until 5 p.m. today for balloting on a city tax increase of 10.36 cents on each $100 of valuation, a $200,000 bond issue and three unopposed candidates for city offices.

A simple majority is required for approval of the bond proposal and for the tax increase, in the general corporate fund, from 24.64 to 35 cents on the $100. The general corporate fund tax now is at the legal maximum permissible without a referendum. Proceeds go mostly for police and fire protection. Total city tax now is 92 cents on the $100.

The city has had deficits since 1950 and has issued judgment refunding bonds annually to meet operating costs. The tax increase would provide an additional $190,000 a year income.

The bond proposal is for construction of a combination fire station and city garage in the south part of the city.

Candidates on the ballot, all incumbents seeking re-election, are City Judges J. E. Fleming and Joseph A. Troy and Henry L. Behnen, clerk of the city court.

FOUR FAMILIES FLEE FLAT IN EARLY MORNING BLAZE

Four families were routed early today from a flat at 1537-39 South Second street by fire which caused an estimated $5600 damage.

The fire started in the second-floor residence of Thomas Gray, where fuel oil ignited, police reported. Damage to the building was estimated at $4000 and to the contents $1600.

LONDON MARKET FIRM

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—The London Stock Market had a brisk day today and closed firmly with industrial shares taking the lead.

Aircraft shares were all higher, reflecting optimism as a result of Britain's big air show at Farnborough. Rolls Royce soared 4 shillings on news of its "flying bedstead" experimental plane.

After early profit taking, store shares were again in demand.

WHY GO HALF-WAY

when you switch cigarettes?

You see more and more people smoking king-size cigarettes.

You see more and more smokers lighting up cigarettes with filters.

But you also get something that only King Sanos can give you.

You get less nicotine and less tar in King Sano smoke than you get in the smoke of any other cigarette—for a special reason.

We remove nicotine—we remove natural tar—from the tobacco before King Sanos are made.

That's why you get extra pleasure and extra peace of mind when you switch to King Sano — well worth the extra pennies you pay for this ultimate cigarette.

danger in accordance with their constitutional processes."

Fear Fatal Delay.

The Philippines and Thailand both felt that "constitutional processes" would involve delays during which they might be wiped out as the constitutional processes were gone through.

Dulles said he believed the problem had been greatly magnified. He felt the formula gave adequate protection. He made the point that he did not think anyone would like to abolish the constitutional processes of all the states. The language used, he said, goes back to the Monroe Doctrine and it is an illusion to think that one formula would make any real difference in the degree of protection more than another.

Prince Wan of Thailand pleaded for the stronger formula. The Philippine delegation asked for permission to make a statement in the morning. They unquestionably will agree with Dulles's position, but want to make their position clear.

Article VIII, which defines the area covered by the pact, was modified so that West Pakistan comes within the area as well as Laos, Cambodia and Free Viet Nam. It appears also, although this is not clear at present, that Burma is included even though not a signatory, as is also the Federation of Malaya.

Article XI, proposed by Dulles, was a courtesy addition making the French text equally binding with the English text.

Article XII, proposed by the Philippine delegation, stated that "the parties recognize and will uphold the right of self-determination" of the peoples of Southeast Asia.

Reasons for U.S. Stand.

There were two good reasons why the United States wanted to use the term Communist aggression. The first was that we do not want the treaty to be so broad as to justify intervention by its terms in a dispute between India and Pakistan, for example, or between Burma and Thailand. The second and more important reason was that it is intended to interpret Communist aggression as covering revolutionary and subversive Communist aggression as well as overt military aggression. It is considered that covert aggression is at the present time a greater danger than open military aggression.

As to the dispute over whether to have a NATO-like organization, Dulles remembers clearly the difficulties with the Senate over the specific commitment made to NATO and the question raised as to whether these commitments did not, in effect, deprive the Congress of its war-making powers and place them on the Executive. Consequently he prefers the less ostensibly binding phraseology which would require consultation in accordance with the nations' constitutional processes in event of an aggression against any one of the treaty signatories.

Under the terms proposed by the United States, an eight-nation council would be formed to implement the treaty. If it were necessary later to adopt a military organization and to arrange for base rights, as in NATO, this would evolve as the need became apparent, in the American view.

This will be satisfactory to the Philippines in view of the fact that the United States already has and is occupying bases in the Philippines and in view of Dulles's statement that the United States will react automatically in case of an aggression against the Philippine Republic.

But it is not satisfactory to Thailand. The Thais have offered bases to the United States. Diplomats interpret this offer as asking the $64 question, which is: Is the United States serious in its willingness to defend Southeast Asia? If it is, it will put troops and aircraft in Thailand which, in the Thai view, is the next most endangered nation, after South Viet Nam and Cambodia, in Southeast Asia. If the United States does not accept and implement this offer, then many believe that Thailand, a weak nation, may try to make some accommodation with the Communists.

The third unresolved question referred to the ministers by the working groups is the area to be covered. Should South Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia, which are not signatories, be included? The Philippine delegation argues that only signatories should be included. This is part of the Philippine campaign against colonialism, since France will be a signatory, but not its Indochinese colonies.

The Philippine delegation attempted and failed to get the working group to adopt an anti-colonial statement. This would have been a direct slap at the British, French and Australian members, since they have Far Eastern colonies.

This indicates the difficulties of the United States position. It opposes colonialism, but cannot alienate its allies in pushing too hard and fast against it.

There will be a declaration on the economic side, but the United States will not make any specific economic commitment. There is no change in plans for economic aid to Colombo powers.

In the fourth meeting of the Philippine - American council, which took place last week, agreement was made by the United States to furnish the hardware for and to train four Filipino divisions. The Filipinos wanted the United States to supply military soft goods, but this was not acceded to.

Help will be given toward forming a Filipino air force and navy, but this will not go so far as to supply modern jet fighters and installations and anything but the smallest naval ships. The United States has too many demands around the world to accede to all such requests.

President Ramon S. Magsaysay also had grandiose ideas about civil defense, which were not agreed to. It is recognized that Magsaysay has a dificult political situation to contend with and that civil defense would provide him with a lot of patronage. But his program was not considered justified by the present dangers.

It is astounding to find so much doubt in the Philippines about the intention of the United States to act instantly in their defense in case of aggression.

The fact that we have bases and forces here would make an attack on the Philippines an attack on the United States. Nor do the Filipinos appear to realize that aggression against the Philipine Republic must come by sea and there is no effective enemy naval power in the Pacific, such as Japan was in 1941.

Their fears team from the inability of the United States to prevent the Japanese invasion, from our half victory and half defeat in Korea and from the surrender to the Communists in Indochina.

While most of the formal speeches of the ministers avoided areas of disagreement, Secretary Dulles laid the United States position on the line. He said that one aspect of the problem should always be remembered, "that is the yearning of the Asian peoples to be free from colonialism." He thus put the United States on record in this area against the colonial remnants still held by France, Britain and Australia. Dulles also made it clear that the United States was not planning to put bases and garrisons in other areas in Southeast Asia.

"Our responsibilities are so vast," he said, "and so far flung that we believe we serve best by developing the deterrent of mobile striking power, plus strategically placed reserves." He also called attention to the danger of subversion and indirect aggression.

WOMAN FOILS HOLDUP WITH FISTS, COAT RACK

Armed Man and Companion Flee Sandwich Shop — Suspects Arrested by Police.

Mrs. Irene Pemrick, who has no fear of holdup men, was recovering today from a bruised right temple suffered early yesterday when she routed two robbers from the White Mill Sandwich Shop, 1547 North Broadway, where she is night manager.

It was the second holdup attempt foiled by the 32-year-old, 129-pound brunette within a month.

Police are holding two men identified by Mrs. Pemrick and a waitress, Mrs. Eva Hansen, as the robbers who entered the restaurant at 3:20 a.m. yesterday. One of the men displayed a revolver and announced: "This is a holdup."

"I said: 'Get out of here,'" Mrs. Pemrick told the Post-Dispatch. "Then I grabbed the short fellow—the one who didn't have a gun—and hit him in the stomach. I kept him between me and the other robber, and once in a while I'd give him another belt.

"The taller fellow said he was going to kill me, but I figured he wouldn't shoot with his buddy in front of me. Finally, the bigger man said: 'Hit her.' I didn't believe the little guy would do it, but he did. I didn't have time to dodge.

"Then I got mad. I grabbed a clothes rack and started swinging, and they both went out the door. They had handkerchiefs over their faces, but one lost his, and I jerked the one off the robber who was armed."

A few minutes later, Police Sgt. Harry Cohen and Patrolman John McGuire, riding in a scout car, saw an automobile speeding east on Hebert street near Twentieth street. The other car was forced to the curb at Tenth street and St. Louis avenue, where four men jumped out and ran.

With the assistance of other policemen, Cohen and McGuire arrested the four occupants of the machine, which had been stolen.

One was Louis Webb, ex-convict, who admitted, police said, that he and a companion attempted to rob the restaurant while the other two men waited for them in the stolen car. Mrs. Pemrick identified Webb as the smaller robber and his companion as the man with the revolver.

About a month ago, another man tried to rob the North Broadway sandwich shop. Mrs. Pemrick, who lives at 1731 Simpson place, said: "He came behind the counter and started to reach inside his shirt for a pistol. I collared him, whipped him and threw him out."

ROBBERY OF INDIANA BANK DURING LUNCHTIME ADMITTED

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Sept. 7 (UP)—Arthur J. Akers, Memphis, Ind., today admitted the sneak thief robbery of a Henryville (Ind.) bank last Friday while bank employes were out to lunch.

The bank says $22,720 was taken. Akers insisted he took only about $13,000. He confessed robbing the bank after questioning by federal and state police.

360 AUTO DEATHS OVER LABOR DAY —SIX-YEAR LOW

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 (AP)—Traffic fatalities on Labor day weekend were the lowest in six years and below the predicted 390 dead. There were 360 persons lost their lives on the highways, according to the latest figures, during the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday. Labor day last year 405 were killed on the highways; the highest toll was 461 in 1951.

President Eisenhower had appealed to motorists to "fool the experts" by careful driving.

The total holiday death toll from all causes was 535, compared with 574 last year and a record high of 658 in 1951. Ninety-two persons lost their lives by drowning and 83 were killed in miscellaneous accidents.

In Missouri 14 were killed on highways, four drowned and five died in miscellaneous accidents; Illinois listed 20 traffic deaths, six by drowning and four from other causes. Michigan, which had called out national guardsmen to help patrol the highways this weekend after a particularly bad Fourth of July record, listed 20 dead, 15 less than on the Fourth.

An Associated Press survey over a non-holiday period of 78 hours, from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 20, to midnight, Aug. 23, showed 346 persons killed in traffic accidents, 43 drowned and 104 killed in various types of accidents. The total was 493.

Christmas Planning Early.

GERRISH, N.H. (UP) — The women and youngsters here have an eye to the future. They have planted seeds for an additional 800,000 evergreens to be used for Christmas trees and building material. The trees will be ripe for cutting 35 to 50 years from now.

U.S. Technicians Nearly Gave Up Hope of Being Released by Reds

5 Say Indochina Communists Withheld News About Armistice 20 Days—In Japan for Checkup.

TOKYO, Sept. 7 (AP)—Five American technicians captured by the Communists in Indochina said today they were not sure they would ever be released and were not told about the armistice until 20 days after it was signed.

The Americans were captured while swimming in the Gulf of Tonkin last June 14. They were freed Aug. 31 in an exchange of war prisoners.

Now undergoing checkups at a military hospital here, the five said today their treatment and prison conditions were "pretty good."

They told newspapermen at an interview that French war prisoners were surprised to see them and had not heard that any Americans were in Indochina.

The United States technicians were sent to Indochina to service planes during the battle for Dien Bien Phu.

Pfc. Leonard R. Sroufed of Chicago, said he observed his own birthday, his wife's birthday and a wedding anniversary while a prisoner of the Reds.

"I almost squeezed in my son's birthday, but they were generous and let us free," Sroufed said.

The Chicagoan said he and the other Americans tried to escape soon after their capture "but they threatened to pull the pins on a couple of grenades when we made a fuss. They threatened to blow up our truck."

Pfc. Donald E. Moran, of Flint, Mich., said all five were questioned by three Vietminh officers in a Communist-occupied village the day they were caught.

"They spoke some English and asked the routine questions about what our jobs were and where we came from, but we refused to answer," he said.

Army officials refused to let reporters ask questions about possible Communist brainwashing attempts.

Airman 3-C Giacamo Appice, of Elizabeth, N.J., said he and the others never really hoped they would get home. But the Reds told them they were being sent to "freedom camp" just after telling them about the armistice signing.

All of the Americans said there was enough food—rice three times a day and a chicken to divide among themselves.

Airman 3-C Jerry Schuller, of Cleveland, O., said he acted as cook and even baked a rice cake on Sroufek's birthday. Schuller said he plans to rejoin his Japanese wife, Sukino, soon.

Also freed by the Reds was Airman 3-C Ciro Salas, of Los Angeles.

HADDIX'S WIN LIFTS CARDS' HOPES FOR FOURTH PLACE

BIRDS THINK THEY'LL BEAT OUT PHILLIES AND REDLEGS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—Now that they have won two in a row for the first time since they beat the Cincinnati Redlegs at home on Aug. 21 and 22, the St. Louis Cardinals were nursing ambitions to get higher than sixth place in the National League as they rested here today before meeting the skidding Dodgers in Brooklyn Ebbets Field Wednesday night and Thursday afternoon.

As they loafed the Cards were two and half games behind the Redlegs for fifth place and three and a half lengths back of the fourth-place Phillies.

Fourth place is the highest the Cards possibly can finish this year because they now are 18 games behind the third-place Dodgers and have only 18 more games to play with the Dodgers having only 17 games remaining on their schedule.

But Manager Eddie Stanky and his Redbirds believe they still can overhaul the Redlegs and Phillies. They'll have to have help from other teams to pass the Redlegs because they are through playing that team for the year.

Haddix Gains No. 16.

Their 8-1 victory at Cincinnati yesterday was the fourteenth success at the expense of Redlegs this season. They lost eight decisions to Cincinnati. That is slightly inferior to what the Cards did to the Redlegs last year when they beat them 15 of 22 games.

The Cardinals have only two games left with the Phils and seemingly will have to win both to make real headway toward overtaking that team.

But now that Harvey Haddix has shaken off his slump, the Redbirds are mighty optimistic about what they'll do in their final 18 games.

Harvey finally bagged victory No. 16 yesterday on his eighth attempt to pitch his first win since July 30. For a while it appeared he might not make it, even though he and his mates started in early putting runs on the scoreboard one at a time.

Both Cotton Deal and Al Brazle were warming up in the bullpen in the second, third and fourth innings but Harvey managed to pitch out of trouble in all three frames and the rest of the route pitched like the old Haddix.

Cincy Gets Run in Fourth.

He walked two and tossed up a single to John Temple after two were out in the second but fortunately had his mound opponent, Joe Nuxhall, up there at the dish with the bags loaded. Nuxhall was easy.

Singles by Charley Harmon, Roy McMillan and Bob Borkowski filled the bases with one out in the third, but Haddix then fanned Jim Greengrass and Wally Post hit into a forceout.

A single by Temple, a double by Andy Seminick and a sacrifice fly by Harmon in the fourth after Nuxhall had fanned, netted the lone run Haddix gave up. After that just two Reds got on base. McMillan doubled with two out in the seventh and Temple opened his club's ninth with a single.

Ray Jablonski, a demon hitter against the Redlegs this year, drove in the first Cardinal run with a single. He also drove in two more, one with a sacrifice fly in the sixth and another with a single in the eighth. Alex Grammas brought in a run with a fly in the third and in the fifth followed up a two-out triple by Joe Cunningham with a double to drive in another.

Haddix was the only Cardinal who failed to hit safely and he connected for a sacrifice fly, in the seventh, one of the seven innings in which the Redbirds dented home plate.

Redbird Notes.

Gordon Jones will pitch against the Dodgers Wednesday night and Vic Raschi will tackle them Thursday.

On the season the Cardinals outscored the Redlegs, 139 to 129, and compiled a team batting average of .301 against Cincinnati's very ordinary pitching staff vis 237 hits, 21 of them homers, in 786 swings.

Ted Kluszewski, home run and runs-batted-in leader of the majors, sat out Monday's game because of a twisted left ankle but expects to play in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

Cunningham would like to play in Cincinnati's park all the time. In the five games he has played there, Joe connected for 11 hits, three of them homers, and drove in 14 runs in 19 tries, a .579 pace.

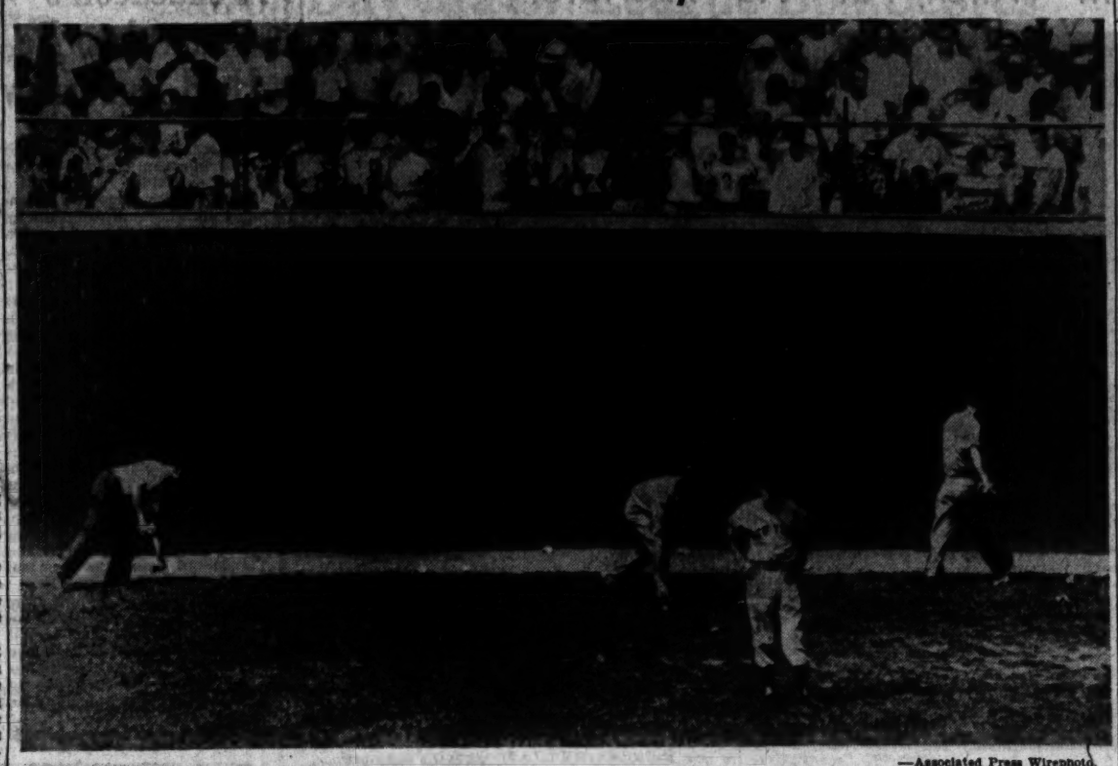

St. Louis Team Is Consolation Victor In Jewish Softball

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 7—The St. Louis Fixture Mart, representing the Y.M.H.A., yesterday won the Midwest Sectional Jewish Welfare Board consolation softball championship with a 9-7 victory over Youngstown, O. Gus Morganstern hit a three-run homer to provide the St. Louis team with its margin of victory.

The St. Louisans were defeated by Cincinnati, 18-7, in a first-round game Sunday, then came back to wallop Indianapolis, 16-6, and nip Youngstown. Herb Gotfstein pitched both victories.

Louisville and Columbus also fielded teams in the two-day tournament.

Bottle-and-Can Protest by Phillie Fans

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Brandywine in Final.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Brandywine Polo Club of Kenneth Square, Pa., and Meadowbrook C.C.C. meet Sunday at the Oak Brook Polo Club at suburban Hinsdale for the National Open championship. Brandywine moved into the final with a convincing 10-7 triumph over Oak Brook yesterday. Meadowbrook, with two players each from Detroit and Westbury, Long Island, defeated Milwaukee Sunday, 7-3.

Braves Go Into Second Place, Trail Giants by Four Games, After Winning Nine Straight

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—Baseball fans who took a holiday over the long Labor day weekend came back to find a lot went on while they were gone.

First off, there's a new team in second place in the National League. The amazing Milwaukee Braves edged ahead of Brooklyn as their winning streak reached nine games and Brooklyn lost its first doubleheader to Pittsburgh in 3½ seasons.

The first place teams are the same, but the New York Giants' margin shrank while Cleveland's lengthened during the weekend.

The Giants were six games ahead of Brooklyn and 6½ in front of Milwaukee going into Sunday's action. But they now lead Milwaukee by only four lengths and Brooklyn by five. The Giants and Brooklyn both lost two out of three. Milwaukee won four.

Cleveland picked up a full game on New York Sunday, stayed even yesterday and now leads the Yankees by 4½. The Indians won two out of three, running their season's winning total to 98 games. No Cleveland team ever has won more. The Yankees lost two out of three.

There's a new leader in the American League batting race. Bobby Avila, Cleveland's hustling second baseman, caught Irv Noren of the Yankees with four hits Sunday and passed him with four more yesterday. He's hitting .337 to Noren's .333.

Roberts Chalks Up No. 20.

In yesterday's games Milwaukee defeated Chicago, 13-2 and 6-1. Pittsburgh beat Brooklyn, 9-6 in 12 innings and 9-7. The Giants whipped Philadelphia, 8-4, but Robin Roberts came back to win his twentieth game in the nightcap, 5-4, in 11 innings. St. Louis drubbed Cincinnati, 8-1.

Bob Lemon of the Indians became the first pitcher in either league to win 21 games, beating Baltimore, 6-1, in the first game. Then the Orioles came back to nip the Indians, 3-2, in 10 innings. The Yankees came from behind to edge Boston, 6-5, in the first game, but blew a 7-0 lead and lost the nightcap, 8-7. Detroit won two from Chicago, 9-1 and 3-2, the second game going 10 innings. Washington defeated Philadelphia, 8-1, and the Athletics shaded the Senators, 3-2, for a split.

Eddie Mathews, now fully recovered after being sidelined for almost two weeks by injuries, sparkled in the Milwaukee triumphs. He hit his thirty-fifth home run, a double and six singles and walked once before finally being retired in his last time at bat.

The onrushing Braves drew the day's largest crowd—43,207—and ran their season's total attendance to 2,001,091, tops in both leagues. Only the Yankees and Indians ever have drawn more than 2,000,000 fans in a year.

Roberts, the Phillies' strong-armed righthander, became the first pitcher since Carl Hubbel to reach the 20-game mark in five consecutive seasons. He made it when fleet-footed Richie Ashburn scampered home from second base on an infield single by Granny Hamner.

Pirates Humble Dodgers.

Trailing by five runs early in the game, the Pirates beat the Dodgers in the first contest when Billy Loes walked two men in the twelfth with the bases loaded and Curt Roberts laid down a squeeze bunt which scored a third man.

Five runs in the first inning against Don Newcombe put the Pirates on the winning trail in the second game and the Dodgers couldn't catch up despite home runs by Roy Campanella, Jackie Robinson and Sandy Amoros.

At Baltimore, Lemon's hitting support in the first game came mainly from Al Smith, who banged two doubles and two singles. Dick Kryhoski's bases-loaded single in the tenth inning of the Nightcap prevented a Cleveland sweep and marked the Orioles' first victory over the Indians in 18 games.

Andy Carey's bases-loaded single in the last of the ninth climaxed the Yankees' uphill climb against Boston in the opener at Yankee Stadium. Jim Piersall's two-run homer in the eighth gave the Red Sox the runs they needed to capture the second game. Ted Williams collected four straight hits in the nightcap and six during the afternoon.

Ned Garver held the White Sox to four hits in Detroit's first victory. Harvey Kuenn singled home the winning run in the tenth inning of the second game after Minnie Minoso had tied the score in the ninth with a homer.

Mickey Vernon drove in five runs with a home run, a triple and a single in Washington's victory. Elmer Valo's eighth inning triple scored Bill Wilson with the run that gave the Athletics a split.

Glenn Warner Dies; Retired Football Coach

PALO ALTO, Calif., Sept. 7 (UP)—Former Football Coach Glenn S. (Pop) Warner died at noon today in Palo Alto hospital.

At his bedside were his wife, Mrs. Tibb Warner; a niece, Mrs. Jane Warner Scofield of Seattle; his old-time friend and coaching assistant Ben Winkelman, and Mrs. Winkelman.

Death came after the veteran of 44 years of coaching had battled a throat ailment for more than a year. He entered the hospital for the last time July 24 after suffering a relapse from an operation.

Warner earned the title of "football's greatest strategist" during the golden years he coached at Carlisle University and Stanford by devising his famed "Warner system" of dazzling reverses which have become the stock in trade of every modern gridiron team.

It was at Carlisle that he and the great Indian star Jim Thorpe made football history together. Thorpe died in 1952.

Warner was at his prime when he coached at Stanford from 1924 through 1932. During that nine-year span the Cardinals won 72 games, lost 13 and tied 11. They reached the Rose Bowl three times under his direction.

He left Stanford in 1933 to coach at Temple University in Philadelphia for five years and concluded his long career as an advisory coach to Dud de Groot at San Jose State in 1939 and 1940.

Warner also coached at Cornell, Georgia and Pittsburgh before coming to Stanford.

The body will be returned to his native Springville, N.Y., for cremation following funeral services here.

Roberts in 20-Win Club for the Fifth Consecutive Season

PHILADELPHIA Sept. 7 (UP)—Robin Roberts has renewed his membership in the "20 Victories Club" for the fifth straight season.

The Philadelphia Phillies' star righthander gained win No. 20 for 1954 when the Phils scored a run in the bottom of the eleventh inning to beat the Giants, 5-4, in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader. In the last four seasons, Roberts won in succession 20, 21, 28, and 23.

Seixas Named to Davis Cup Team After Victory in Nationals

Crash Helmet Needed As Bean-Ball Guard.

BASEBALL players who dislike the idea of wearing head protectors of any kind when batting, are wondering if they will soon be asked to go to the plate wearing crash helmets. . . . Many have balked even at the fibroid liners used at present in baseball caps.

That the current protection seems inadequate became evident following the near-fatal skull-fracture suffered by Cass Michaels, White Sox third sacker, when hit in the head last week by Pitcher Marion Fricano of the Athletics.

White Sox General Manager Frank Lane reports that he already has taken up with sporting goods manufacturers the development of a head protector that will do the job. . . . If one is found, wearing it should become mandatory.

IT seems queer that baseball players are reluctant to adopt protective devices. . . . Apparently they think them a sign of weakness.

"Reluctance on the part of some players to wear protectors is a sort of false pride," Lane explains in the Chicago Sun-Times Sunday. . . . "These dissenters seem to think protectors denote lack of courage. . . . But nobody ever heard of an automobile race driver who had his courage questioned for wearing one."

"Something must be done," Lane added, 'because there's no way of legislating out the bean ball."

Lane probably means that you can't impute a lethal motive to the pitcher, whenever he happens to throw one high and inside to a batter. . . . He relies on his skill to avoid hitting the batter. . . . The hitter, no doubt, thinks his reflexes are fast enough to enable him to draw back from crowding the plate in time.

It is doubtful if one of all the bean balls thrown through the years was meant to injure the batter.

Seats of the Mighty Can Get Mighty Hot.

ANDY CREVOLIN of Alhambra, Cal., on August 31 occupied the top spot in racing circles. . . . He was leading all winning owners with a total of $656,830. . . . His Derby winner Determine and his great handicap horse, Imbros, were the one, two high money-winners of the country. . . . Trailing were such famous stables as the Hasty House Farm, the King Ranch and the thoroughbred "empire," Calumet Farm. . . . This was the top of the world for Andy.

Now look at him—he's suspended in California. . . . He was investigated by the Illinois Racing Board. . . . And he has more of the same kind of grief just ahead. . . . All because he blew his whistle on his turf associates. . . . He had some un-nice things to say about racing which were caught by a tape recorder. . . . His future? . . . The abyss yawns.

Andy apologized for exercising one of his four freedoms—freedom of speech. . . . But he still owes a more abject apology, it seems, to Determine and Imbros. . . . He truly insulted real thoroughbreds, if his tape recorder didn't err.

WE note in the T.R.A. bulletin referred to above, that the Hasty House Farm's stable is only two places below Crevolin in the same T.R.A. list of winning owners. . . . It owns, among other good ones, the Preakness winner Hasty Road. . . . The Hasty Farm earnings totaled then $552,168.

That's a high rating, too. . . . But we also note that the victory of Hasty House Farm's Mister Black has been under investigation, due to tests which revealed the presence of a stimulant in Mister's system the day of the race. . . . The object of the investigation is to find who did it—the veterinarian (he administered medicine), the trainer or his assistant, or some groom or transient visitor.

* * *

However, it all may come out in the wash. . . . Mr. Crevolin's case may add up to mere indiscreet popoffs. . . . and Hasty House Farm's owners seem in the clear. . . . And maybe Determine and Hasty Road will yet meet to decide the three-year-old championship.

Even Tallulah Joins The Willie Mays Parade.

"WHAT Is So Rare As a Willie Mays" is the way Tallulah Bankhead, a rare celebrity in her own right, captions a Sept. 21 Look article in praise of Leo Durocher's center-fielder, spearhead of the Giants' drive toward a pennant.

We might suggest that Leo has something pretty rare in Johnny Antonelli, the pitcher whose loss must have grieved Charlie Grimm, manager of the contending Braves.

There have been and are a lot of answers to Tallulah's "what-is-so-rare" poser. . . . In fact, the idea was adapted from a guy who thought differently—Poet James Russell Lowell, who began one of his famous efforts: "What is so rare as a day in June?"

There are several thousand comebacks to Tallulah's "what-is-so-rare-as" come-on, such as:

A 100-cent dollar. . . . Another Jack Dempsey. . . . Peace on Earth. . . . A U.S. Davis Cup team that can win in Australia . . . A 30-game pitcher (by Eddie Stanky). . . . A double eagle (believed obsolete). . . . A hit over the third baseman into RIGHT field . . . (Mr. Mockler will know what we mean.) . . . One will get you 20 that it won't happen again.

Wins Over Hartwig in Four Sets

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 7 (UP)—Newly-crowned national tennis champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and three other players have been named to represent the United States in American zone Davis Cup finals against Mexico.

Going with Seixas to the matches at Mexico City, Oct. 2-4, will be 1953 National Champion Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, O., National Clay Courts Champion Bernard Bartzen of Dallas, Tex., and Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J.

Billy Talbert of New York, who captained the American Davis Cup team in last year's finals against Australia, will captain the squad for the Mexico matches. Should the United States defeat Mexico the United States Davis Cup committee then will select the players who will go to Australia to meet Sweden in the interzone final for the right to challenge Australia.

Finally Click.

The turning in a long, long road of disappointment and frustration has come at last for two veterans—Vic Seixas and Doris Hart.

For 31-year-old Vic and 29-year-old Doris have at last won the national championship they had come close to winning a total of seven times before.

Moreover, in addition to winning the singles titles in yesterday's final round at Forest Hills, they each scored a "grand slam"—Seixas winning a share in the men's doubles crown, Miss Hart a share in the women's doubles crown, and then joining for still a third championship in mixed doubles.

Seixas, who had lost out in the final twice before, grinned sheepishly and joked, "I guess it was old-timers' day at Forest Hills."

Miss Hart, who had been beaten in the final round here five times, was mighty tired after her triple triumph and she said in a low voice, "This is something I've always wanted."

For Seixas, the "end of the rainbow" came when he rallied for a first-set walloping to whip Rex Hartwig, the favored Australian, in surprisingly easy fashion, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Seixas won his semifinal match from Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., 6-3, 12-14, 8-6, 6-2, while Hartwig advanced at Ken Rosewall's expense, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Hart succeeded to the title left vacant when 1953 champion Maureen Connolly broke a leg in a riding accident by fighting off three match points to defeat Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-8, 6-1, 8-6.

Seixas, who was competing in the National tourney for the fourteenth time, seemed almost certainly headed to another disappointment as Hartwig breezed through the first set. The 25-year-old Aussie, rated third among the stars from "down under" but only coming into his own, put on one of the most impressive shot displays of modern times in that opening set.

Vic Puts on Rally.

But Seixas, former Air Force fighter pilot from Philadelphia, surprised the crowd of 14,000 jamming the concrete bowl by rallying in the second set. From then on it was all Seixas as he pulled out all the stops in a powerful all-court game and at the end it was a surprise to discover that his victory had taken only 82 minutes.

For the gangling Miss Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., the long-sought National title climaxes a story-book career. At the age of three, she suffered a leg injury which almost necessitated amputation. At 12, she underwent another series of leg operations.

She took up tennis to develop her legs and her health. It was on those legs that she outlasted the 31-year-old Miss Brough, who won the title here in 1947, in a gruelling match played under a broiling sun.

Three times the blond Miss Brough stood just one point away from victory. Three times Miss Hart fought her off. After the third failure, something seemed to go out of Louise's game—she lost her zip.

Until then Miss Brough had seemed to be bearing up under the strain and the heat better than Doris. But Doris suddenly found a new reserve of energy. Her service never has been too hard, but suddenly it began to crackle and it accounted for two aces as she won the final game.

"It didn't look like I would do it for a while, did it?" she asked. Then she and Seixas won the mixed doubles by beating Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont of Wilmington, Del., and Ken Rosewall of Australia, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

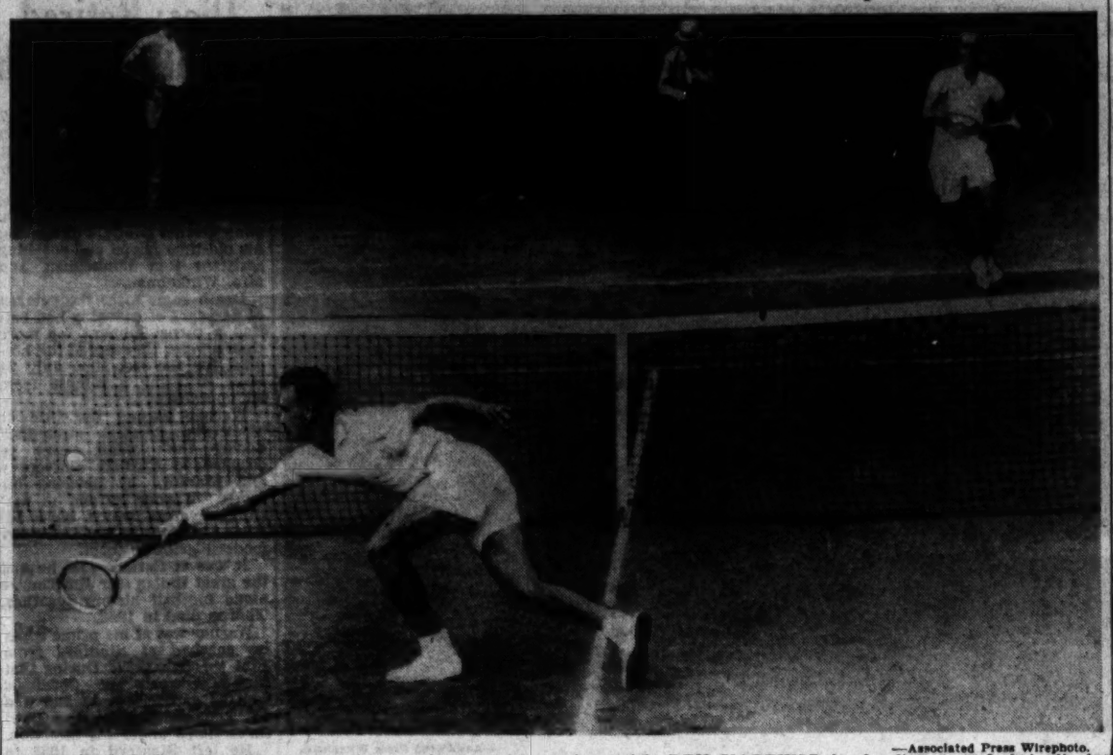

Previously, Miss Hart had won the women's doubles with Shirley Fry of Akron, O., and Seixas had joined with Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, O., to win the men's doubles.

St. Louisan Again Heads Basket Loop

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 7 (AP)—Holding its annual convention here, the Women's Basketball Association, has re-elected P. E. Pop Meyer of St. Louis as its president.

James Finley of Bonner Springs, Kan., was named central vice president and Alan J. Bronfman of Kansas City, executive director.

Form Which Put 'Vic' in Victory

VIC SEIXAS, Philadelphia, made a nice backhand return to Australia's REX HARTWIG in the first set of their final match in the National tennis singles at Forest Hills. Seixas lost that set, 3-6, but won the next three, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, for his first national title.

Maplewood's Legion Team To Arrive Home Late Today

By John J. Archibald
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

EN ROUTE TO ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7—A long and exciting baseball season comes to an end for the Maplewood team late today when the club arrives in Union Station. The third best American Legion junior baseball team in the United States is scheduled to be in at 5:55 p.m. aboard the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio from Chicago.

The boys were naturally downcast after being eliminated in their third game of the Legion's world series at Yakima, Wash., but took some consolation when San Diego, the team with which they split a pair of games, went on to win the national championship. Maplewood whipped the Californians, 8-2, in the opening game. Gastonia, N.C., defeated Maplewood, 5-3, then San Diego rebounded to stop the St. Louis County entry, 6-3, while benefiting by 17 bases on balls.

Maplewood players had more than one reason for pulling for San Diego. However, the two teams were quartered in the same hotel in Yakima, and developed a strong off-the-field friendship.

During Saturday night's game between San Diego and Gastonia, the Maplewood players got on the roof of the packed stadium and cheered for the Californians. San Diego won, 3-2, in 11 innings.

Maplewood had to leave after that game, but they sent San Diego a telegram from the train Sunday, urging them on to victory. San Diego did win, 7-2, and Monday morning the Maplewood team received a telegram from the fathers of two San Diego players, telling them of the victory.

The team returned to St. Louis by way of Chicago, where the boys had a layover of several hours this morning.

Maplewood Notes.

Four of the Maplewood players have graduated from high school—Wayne Thompson, Bob Sadowski, Bob (Sparky) Harris and Ralph Stauber. The only member of the starting nine who will be eligible for Legion play next year is Second Baseman Marshall Whitecotton. Whitey, by the way, was highly regarded by baseball men who observed him at Yakima.

Lou Brissie, the Legion's National Baseball Commissioner, said that one particular picture of the Maplewood team would appear in all Legion baseball publications next year. This shot shows the Missourians of Coach Pete Palumbo rushing across the field to congratulate San Diego after the Californians had just defeated them and eliminated them from the tournament. Brissie said that this example of sportsmanship typified all that the program stood for.

Brissie has inaugurated a policy at the Legion finals which tends to take away some of the sting of defeat for the clubs which are eliminated. Each loser is given a private steak dinner before they leave, and the commissioner attends this affair. Players are given small gold baseballs, which may be engraved later, in addition to numerous other souvenirs.

Altogether, the Maplewood players traveled about 6600 miles by rail to their various tournaments. Several of the boys had never been aboard a train before. The team had a season record of 25 wins and four losses. The season will come to an official close Friday night, when the Maplewood Post will hold a dinner-dance for players, girl friends and parents starting at 6:30.

Toronto Club Wins Flag in International

TORONTO, Sept. 7 (UP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs, who hadn't finished higher than fourth in the International League the last three years, rewarded their patient owner, Jack Kent Cooke, with his first pennant today.

Cooke, who has invested heavily in the club since he bought it in 1951, promised the citizens of Toronto a pennant. Since then he's been looking around for his "type" of players—proven International League performers and not washed up major leaguers.

The Leafs dropped the second game, 4-1, but the second-place Montreal Royals split a double header with the lowly Ottawa Athletics, winning the nightcap, 2-0, after dropping the opener, 5-4, to kill their last remaining hopes of catching the front-running Leafs.

The split left the Royals seven and one-half games back with eight games to play. Thus if Montreal wins all of its remaining games it will finish with 92 victories, still one less than what the Leafs already have won.

The pennant is the first for the Leafs in 11 years and is their ninth since coming into the league in 1886, the league's third year of operation.

In other games, the Syracuse Chiefs and Buffalo Bisons split a pair of games, the Bisons winning the opener, 3-2, and the Chiefs the second game, 5-2; and the Richmond Virginians jeopardized the Cuban Sugar Kings's hold on fourth-place by downing Havana in a single night game, 6-2.

Kutis 1 Up in Muny Title Play

Kutis will go into next Sunday's Muny baseball title series with a one game lead as a result of its 17-4 victory over Cupples in the first contest of the series at Fairgrounds Park. Manager Al Mick's club made 17 hits in its easy victory.

Rich Loeser, on the hill for the winners, yielded only four hits. However, he was a bit wild, walking seven batters. He struck out six.

The attendance was announced at 588.

In other activity, Scullin won from the Eighteenth Ward Democrats, 17-11, to take second place in the Industrial League at Tandy Playgrounds.

With Catcher Jack Fischer getting five hits, including three homers, St. Joseph of Clayton drubbed the Immaculate Conception team, 20-3, to win the C.Y.C. junior division title. St. Agatha took a one-game lead in the juvenile series, defeating St. Philip Neri, 4-2.

The Waterson's Boys Club drubbed the Wade A.C., 10-1, in the semifinals of the Khoury League senior series. Joe Nix of the winners allowed five hits, while Jim Foerstel had three hits. The Watersons play the Royals in the title game next Sunday.

MONDAY'S STARS

By the Associated Press.

BATTING — EDDIE MATHEWS, Milwaukee Braves, was on base nine successive times, collecting his thirty-fifth home run, a double, six singles and a walk as the Braves moved into second place with 13-2 and 6-1 sweep of the Chicago Cubs.

PITCHING — ROBIN ROBERTS, Philadelphia Phillies, won his twentieth game, becoming the first pitcher to win 20 or more in five consecutive seasons since Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants, as he defeated the Giants 5-4 in 11 innings of the second game.

Stranahan to Join Ranks of 'Pro' Golfers

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (UP)—Frank Stranahan, one of the world's top amateur golfers, was en route today to Brazil and a new career as a professional golfer.

The millionaire from Toledo, O., who twice won the British amateur championship but failed in every attempt to win the United States championship, announced the change in his status just before leaving by plane yesterday for Brazil.

"I have always wanted to be a professional golfer and play the professional golfers on their own terms," explained Stranahan. "I have no further desire to play in amateur tournaments, although I have enjoyed my associations. I feel much happier playing as a professional golfer."

Stranahan won the British amateur title in 1948 and again in 1950 and once finished runner-up in the British championship. He won the Canadian amateur championship in 1947 and 1948. But only once in his many attempts to capture the United States crown did he reach the final round and then, in 1950, he was beaten by Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N.Y.

Almost all major tournaments are based on match play, and Stranahan never has preferred this type of competition.

Despite his amateur status, Stranahan has often competed in open tuornaments against the top professionals and has won four major open tourneys — at Miami, Kansas City, Durham, N.C., and Fort Wayne.

Eagles' Pihos to Play At Right End Against Chicago Cards Here

Pete Pihos of the Philadelphia Eagles football team can play any position but will be at right end when Jim Trimble's Quaker City team opposes the Chicago Cardinals Saturday night at Oakland Stadium in a benefit preseason contest.

The Eagles improved on their 1952 record last year in the National Football League and Trimble attributes the step-up in team performance to Pihos's great comeback. After sharing second place in '52, the Eagles won the runner-up spot outright last year by routing the champion Cleveland Browns, 42-27, in the season final.

A member of Bo McMillin's only Western Conference champions at Indiana in 1946, Pihos has spent his pro career of seven years with the Eagles. Last year, playing chiefly on offense, the 30-year-old Hoosier led the N.F.L. in pass reception with 63 catches for 1049 yards and 11 touchdowns. He has been named to all four All-Pro Bowl games in Los Anegles at the end of the season.

Bobby Walston, another great pass receiver, will start at the other end spot in the second annual charity game here. A portion of the proceeds again will go to the building and scholarship funds of Fontbonne College and St. Joseph's Academy.

The Eagles, who dropped their first two games, whipped the Green Bay Packers, 24 to 13, Saturday night to run their present winning streak to three straight. The Cardinals won their first two contests and then lost three in a row. They were spanked by the Rams at Los Angeles Saturday, 51 to 17.

San Diego New Legion Champ

YAKIMA, Wash., Sept. 7 (AP)—San Diego won the American Legion "Little World Series" of baseball Sunday, defeating Gastonia, N.C., 7-2, in the finals of the tournament here.

It was a come-from-behind victory for the San Diegoans, who bounced back from the losers' bracket to defeat Gastonia in the first game of the finals, 3-2, in 11 innings, Saturday night.

Aaron Breaks Ankle Sliding Into Base

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7 (UP)—Outfielder Hank Aaron fractured his right ankle sliding into third base during the second game of the Milwaukee-Cincinnati doubleheader Sunday and will be "out for the rest of the season."

Dr. Charles Lucks, team physician, said "Aaron fractured his leg and definitely will be out the rest of the season." He said it may be necessary to put a screw in the ankle.

Archdeacon's Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Maurice J. Archdeacon, former major league outfielder, will be held at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning from the Sullivan Funeral Home, 2849 North Euclid, to St. Luke Catholic Church in Richmond Heights. Burial will be in Memorial Park Cermetery.

Archdeacon, who was 55 years old, died of complications Sunday morning, following a long illness.

Archdeacon, who was born in St. Louis, played with the Chicago White Sox in 1923, '24 and '25. One of the fastest men in the game, he established a circling the bases record of 13.4 seconds while playing with Rochester in 1921. This mark was lowered to 13.3 by Evar Swanson at Columbus in 1931. As a member of the White Sox, he hit .402 in 22 games; .319 in 95 and .111 for 10 games in his final campaign.

Archdeacon was bought from Rochester by the Sox for a reported $50,000 after he had hit .357 and pilfered 55 bases in the 1923 season. During his minor league career he stole 225 in five seasons before coming to the big tent.

His career ended in 1933 when he was player-manager of Dubuque in the Mississippi Valley League. He did part time scouting for the New York Yankees and was a full-time scout for the Browns until the club was moved to Baltimore.

Meaux Rides Both Ends of $325 Daily Double at Cahokia Downs

Lot-A-Filly Home First In Feature

Clarence Meaux, leading rider at Cahokia Downs, with 31 firsts to his credit, became the third jockey of the meeting to bring home both ends of the daily double.

Meaux performed the feat before a holiday crowd of 9710 that wagered $399,312 (tops for the meeting). He started by scoring with Madam Cross ($12.60) and then came back with Hasty Hank ($42.60) in the second. The double was worth $325.40 for $2.

Previously Tommy Murphy and Dale Dow had won both ends of the double.

Top prices of the day, however, came in the final two races. In the eighth, Carters Oats, scoring its second victory in 16 starts this year, paid off at $73.20 for $2, with Great Eagle, finishing in the money for the first time in 12 starts, paying $64.80 to place. Great Eagle was 81 to 1 to win. Wonder Worker paid $59.60 for $2 in winning the ninth. Wonder Worker set a track record of 2:50 3-5 for the mile and five furlongs.

Mrs. R. N. Amlung's Lot-A-Filly, with Bruce Brinkley in the saddle, overcoming interference in the stretch drew out to win the mile and one-sixteenth feature by more than two lengths from Galway Boy. Harry Lou was third. Brinkley, who will ride out the meeting and then decide whether or not he will return to school, made up plenty of ground after the half mile post had been passed. The Amlung entry paid $23.60 to win.

Three horses made it victory No. 3 of the meeting. They were: Rugged Boy ($6.80); Brown Pirate ($8.20) and Desefolks ($16).

Wiesler Is Recalled By New York Yanks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—The New York Yankees have recalled 11 players from their minor league farms, but none will report to the parent club until next spring at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Seven are pitchers, three are catchers and the other is Outfielder Art Schultz, a righthanded hitter who had a .284 average at Kansas City of the American Association. All have been in spring training with the Yanks before.

Former Wrestler Tillet, Manager Die Same Day

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 (UP) — Maurice (The Angel) Tillet and the man who discovered the hulking wrestler in Singapore 15 years ago and became his manager both died Saturday just a few hours apart.

Tillet, 53 years old, billed in his wrestling appearances as a "throwback to the Neanderthal age" because of his broad, rough face and squat figure, died of a kidney ailment.

Karl Pojello, 62, who said he found The Angel "scaring tigers" in Singapore and brought him to this country in 1940, died of cancer.

Ft. Wood Only Unbeaten Club In Army Meet

FORT CARSON, Colo., Sept. 7 (AP)—An unearned run in the last of the eighth broke a tie game last night and Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., squeezed by Fort Carson 7-6 in the Fifth Army baseball tournament here.

Fort Riley, Kan., eliminated Headquarters Fifth Army of Chicago 9-7 and Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., ousted Granite City (Ill.) Engineer Depot 7-6 in other action.

Three New York Yankee exfarmhands struck the big blows for Wood. A single by Whitey Herzog, a double by Jerry Lumpe and Pete Vitale's triple powered Wood to its early lead.

The Headquarters team blew a 6-1 lead when Riley poured across six tallies in the sixth inning.

Righthander Bill Stough of Lorain, O., weathered a late Granite City rally to gain the decision for Harrison. The winners were out-hit, 10-7, but bunched their safeties to hand Granite City its second tourney loss.

Four home runs and triple powered Fort Riley, Kan., to an 11-4 victory over Fitzsimons Army Hospital of Denver Sunday.

The loss knocked the Denver military team from the double-elimination meet.

Granite City (Ill.) Engineers Depot ousted Fort Leavenworth, Kan., 16-6, and Fort Carson blanked Fort Benjamin Harrison (Ind.), 10-0, behind the one-hit pitching of John Kazmarowicz of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Women Find a Way.

THE old question of whether match or medal play is the best way to determine a golf champion perhaps has best been settled by the women's professional golf association. It simply will determine its annual champion by a combination of the two methods.

Betty Hicks, tournament chairman for the association, explained the setup for the first women's PGA championship to be played next year at Fort Wayne, Ind., July 14-17.

"The plan is to play 54 holes of medal play the first three days and then on Sunday the No. 1 and No. 2 finishers in medal play will meet at 36-hole match play for the title," said Miss Hicks.

"In addition the balance of the field will play 18-hole matches the final day with the No. 3 and No. 4 medal play finishers meeting, and so on down the line.

"There will be a $6000 purse plus bonuses in this tournament and we hope to establish it as second in status only to the National Open—or at least make it comparable in importance with the Titleholders and Women's Western Open championships."

There were several reasons for the adoption of this new type of tournament, Miss Hicks said.

"The objective is to determine a real champion and the combination of both types of play should do that," she said. "Then, too, we would like to avoid such situations as have been occasionally encountered—that is arrange it so that the eventual winner never can be as good as 'in' before the final day of the tournament. That happens once in a while when, for instance, Babe (Mrs. Zaharias) might have a 10-stroke lead going into the final day's play.

"And, thirdly, we avoid the situation that sometimes develops in all-match-play events which may wind up with a final match that has low public interest."

Water for Glen Echo.

THE dry condition of Glen Echo for the St. Louis Women's Open tournament starting Friday is a source of some embarrassment for members, but Miss Hicks has assured that the women professionals will not be disappointed.

"We have to expect that this time of year and actually the conditions and the type of course may help the scoring. The greens are holding well, the course is not too long and it's just the kind of test the girls will like," she said.

Glen Echo is looking forward to future seasons, however, when it will have a watering system. Pro Don Clarkson said installation of the irrigation project is scheduled for November.

When the watering system is completed the lake near No. 15 will be used as a reservoir, and because of natural drainage, it should provide a good maintenance of water supply.

A Zaharias Story.

EXTENT of the comeback by Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias from an operation for cancer in the spring of 1953 is emphasized in a recent U.S.G.A. Journal article by Joe Day, executive director of the organization.

"Rarely has any golfer in a national competition dominated the proceedings as thoroughly as Mrs. Zaharias did (in the National Women's Open at Peabody, Mass., last July)," Dey recalled.

"Here she was, trying to make a comeback after her operation last year. She was opposed to the best women golfers in the game. She was playing a really exacting (Salem C.C.) course which stretched to nearly 6400 yards, with a women's par of 72. She faced 36 holes on the last day.

"Her winning score of 291 was twelve strokes better than the next score. At that she went three over par on the last three holes, and thus only three over par for the 72 holes. She did not have anything higher than a 5 on her card."

Edwardsville Is Inter-City Winner

Edwardsville's late rallies yesterday enabled it to defeat Collinsville, 6-5, in 11 innings and clinch the all-season championship of the Inter-City Baseball League.

After a two-run outburst in the eighth and three more in the ninth, Edwardsville pushed across the winning run in the eleventh on Olin Clawson's triple and a single by Paul Nickell.

In other season-ending games, the Smallings defeated Troy, 12-0; Sacred Heart walloped Glen Carbon, 11-2, and Pontoon Beach trounced Venice-Madison, 16-0.

Edwardsville finished with a 15-6 record, while the Smallings and Pontoon Beach were tied for second with 14-7; Sacred Heart had 13-8, Troy and Collinsville 11-10, Venice-Madison 6-15 and Glen Carbon 0-21.

Low Blows Cost Ted 2 Rounds

BROOKLYN, Sept. 7 (UP)—Jesse Turner of St. Louis and Ted Olla of Milwaukee, Wis., fought to a 10-round draw last night in a televised bout at the Eastern Parkway Arena.

Olla, who scaled 163¼ pounds to Turner's 159, was penalized the fifth and ninth rounds by Referee Mark Conn for low blows.

There were no knockdowns in the grueling bout but Olla bled from the nose in the fifth round after being tagged with hard rights to the face.

Judge Joe Eppy scored the bout five rounds for each boxer but gave Turner a slight edge in points, 7-5. Judge Arthur Suskind saw it 6-4 in Olla's favor, while Referee Conn scored it 4-4-2 in rounds and gave each fighter seven points.

Olla, the 2 to 1 favorite, concentrated on Turner's body and had the St. Louis boxer in trouble in the eighth round when he forced him into the ropes with a two-fisted attack.

Turner's best round was the fifth which Olla eventually lost for low punches. After Olla tagged him with a left hook to the stomach, Turner unloosed a two-fisted barrage to Olla's head and had the Milwaukee battler hanging on near the close of the round. Turner connected repeatedly with short rights to the head and followed up with punishing left hooks.

The crowd of 500, which paid $1200 to watch the fight, saw both boxers handing on in the last two rounds as both began to show the effects of the hard-fought earlier rounds. Nearly everyone seemed to be satisfied with the decision.

Davis Beats Savoie.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (UP) — Fourth-ranking Featherweight Contender Teddy (Red Top) Davis of Hartford, Conn., scored a unanimous 10-round decision last night over Former Canadian Champion Armand Savoie of Montreal in a widely-televised bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

Davis, who weighed 133¼ pounds to Savoie's 136, entered the ring as the 11-5 favorite and won the nod from all three officials.

Referee Jack Watson scored seven rounds for Davis, two for Savoie and one even. Judge Frank Forbes had it 6-4 and Judge Nick Gamboli's card 5-4-1. Davis' margin would have been greater, but the seventh round was taken away from him because of two low left hooks.

Davis proved too fast and too persistent for Savoie, keeping his left jab flicking in the Canadian's face and scoring heavily in the in-fighting. There were no knockdowns, but Davis had the better of the exchanges.

In the fourth round, Savoie landed with several looping hooks and Davis came back with long rights. Davis had the edge in the punching session. Again in the eighth, Davis came out on top in a punching exchange begun by Savoie.

It was the fifty-seventh victory in 99 ring appearances for Davis, who holds the lightweight championship of New England as a result of his fifth-round knockout victory over Georgie Monroe on May 25, and it was his third victory in as many fights this season.

Savoie, not as sharp as he was in the days when he held the Canadian lightweight title, now has lost four of six starts this year. It was his eighteenth defeat in 69 bouts.

Ed Furgol Ties For Seventh in Akron Tourney

AKRON, O., Sept. 7—Ed Furgol, Clayton, Mo., National Open champion, came back with three sub-par rounds after a first round 73 to finish tied for seventh in the Rubber City open golf tournament which ended Sunday.

Furgol's 276, good for a four-way tie, was 11 strokes off the pace set by Tommy Bolt of Houston, Tex., who won the tournament with 265.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, St. Louis pro, tied for nineteenth with 281. He collected $200 as his share of the $15,000 prize money.

Bolt was 23 under par for the 6620-yard Firestone Country Club par-72 layout as he won by five strokes over fellow Texan Fred Hawkins of El Paso. Bolt's first place award of $2400 gave him $16,152 for the year and placed him sixth in the P.G.A. money-won list.

The torrid Texan, who fired a course record 63 in the third round, finished with eight birdies and 10 pars for a 64 as he won going away.

Hawkins picked up $1800 for four sub-par rounds and a 170 total, and Fred Wampler of Indianapolis received $1400 for his third-place finish at 271.

Four strokes back of Wampler, tied at 275, were Earl Stewart of Dallas, a former National intercollegiate champion; Dave Douglas of Grossingers, N. Y., the tournament's thin man; and Ed Oliver of Lemont, Ill., the most corpulent of the competitors. Each of the three won $1000.

Open champion Furgol came within eight inches of a hole in one on the 330-yard third hole where his drive rolled onto the green and almost into the cup.

Bitter Commentary

Are You Afraid Of Teen-Agers?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP).

HOW many people in America today are afraid of teen-agers? Physically afraid, I mean. Teen-agers in every generation have annoyed or amused their elders, and generally been written off as pretty worthless (unless there happened to be a war on, and they were needed to carry guns).

HAL BOYLE

Of course, this never was really true and few really believed it. If every crop of teen-agers was worse than the one before, the human race would have lost out long ago.

But is does seem some strange kind of mental bug is infecting our young. Parental authority is crumbling. Juvenile delinquency is growing. The kid gangs of yore used to think they were pretty daring when they made a midnight raid on a watermelon patch; the kid gangs today have gone a long step farther. They want to rob a grocery store, steal a car, carry a shiv, ambush a grown-up and kick him into a pulp.

THE OTHER NIGHT I was walking with my wife on a Manhattan street. A group of teen-age boys approached in full uniform—T-shirts and blue jeans. They were laughing, mauling each other and shouting boisterously, as cubs have done since time began.

"Don't say anything to them," said Frances, clutching my arm nervously.

"Say anything to them? I don't even know those kids."

THE KIDS PASSED BY without even noticing us. They kept right on mauling each other and making those boisterous teen-age sounds that put the nerves of some forgetful adults on edge. But I remember being that age very well myself—the wilderness when you are half-boy, half-man, and feeling pretty much at sea inside. And so I knew why they were so noisy—because in their hearts they felt insecure, just as a child whistles passing a lonely graveyard in the dark.

But I also knew what my wife was thinking. She was thinking of the rash of headlines about teen-age gangs beating up and killing casual passersby here. Since then I have heard several women say they were afraid to go out unescorted in the evening, and men complain "nobody's really safe on the street at night anymore because of those crazy kids."

IF THAT IS THE SITUATION here, then the same feeling must exist—to a smaller or greater extent—in dozens of other cities across the United States. For New York has no monopoly on kid gangs or juvenile delinquency.

How many adult Americans right now are actually physically afraid of teen-agers? Undoubtedly more than at any previous period.

But it is a bitter commentary on our civilization that so many of us should regard in fear today the generation that is our only hope of tomorrow.

You can't condemn all teen-agers because a few learn the art of mayhem before they learn a trade, and get their laughs by clobbering strangers unconscious and dumping them into a river. The frightening thing is these examples of brutality aren't isolated.

BY THE TIME these kill-for-thrills teen-agers explode, it is too late. Neither the storm shelter of psychiatry nor the electric chair offers much of a real solution then.

It isn't a repair job. It's a problem of prevention. Some folks feel that if you switch a child often enough when it is young you won't have to pull an electric switch on it later, but that makes it altogether too simple. Science must find a way to detect early in life the children with dynamite caps in their brains, and society must share with their parents the responsibility of seeing they are helped to go right at a time when they can still be helped—before they explode and blow their own lives, and perhaps other lives, to pieces.

IRVING HOFFMAN, the very nearsighted publicity counsel, took off for a round-the-globe jaunt, armed with this letter of introduction from a top M-G-M executive: "You will like this fellow—but since his income is bigger than all of ours combined, there's no need of entertaining him. Order him the very best of foods and wines—but let him grab the check. Make sure, however, that he is wearing his glasses, since obviously he is quite incapable of contacting the check without them." Hoffman also is equipped with a suitcase full of cards to mail his myriad friends from all over the globe. Every one depicts the Grand Canyon of Arizona.

Big ears, short legs, and a quizzical expression are the outstanding characteristics of this Dog of the Week presented by the Humane Society shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue. It is available for adoption on application, in person, at the shelter.

The Dean

Speaks Up

Color and Clothes

By Adele Starbird

MEN always have opinions about women's clothes in general, and about a certain woman's clothes in particular. Sir Hartley Shawcross said in London that it is difficult nowadays to know whether a woman is dressed for an opera or an operation.

DEAN STARBIRD

One result of this situation is that the nudists don't seem to have much future. So many people are wearing the irreducible minimum that the nudists have lost their publicity value. They may have to resort to full dress in order to attract attention.

Sir Hartley went on to say that no woman in England should have so many clothes that she could come up to her husband and ask him what she should wear tonight. Maybe the English wife does consult her husband about her choice of a frock. American wives do not; they are the only women in the world who dress for the critical admiration of other women.

This is just as well, for few American men know what they like. It is a foolish woman who lets herself be guided by what a man tells her he likes. There isn't a man in a hundred who knows even what his favorite color is. But I know! It is pink. Somebody ought to do a statistical study of how many proposals have been addressed to pink dresses.

Pink spells femininity. It is less blatant than red, more provocative than blue. It looks alluring, but safe—a dangerous combination. Tell any man to dress up as a woman for a skit, and he will come out in pink. But ask him what his favorite color is, and he will swear it is blue. He really thinks so.

HOWEVER, men have given some excellent advice to women. There was a poet, George Herbert, who wrote a long time ago a better soap ad than anything modern I know. It went like this:

Affect in things about thee cleanliness,
That all may board thee, as a flowre.
Slovens take up their stock of noisomnesse
Beforehand, and anticipate their last houre.
Let thy mindes sweetnesse have his operation
Upon thy body, clothes, and habitation.

That's a strong statement about slovens, comparing the ill-groomed person to an unpleasant cadaver. And I like the connection he makes between the sweetness, or clean fragrance, of the mind, and its expression in external things.

I CAN'T BELIEVE that there is a close connection between clothing and morals, for some of the most notorious periods in history were characterized by enveloping and elaborate clothes.

On the contrary, George Bernard Shaw said that the complete coverage of the nineties was the most dangerously seductive dress a woman could wear. Victor Hugo made the same point about "the covered look."

The most alluring woman I ever saw on the stage was Raquel Meller, the Spanish diseuse. She was always clothed from her ears down to her feet. It was her coquetry that was irresistible, and her power of suggestion.

So it is probable that Shaw and Hugo had a point, and that the modern girl in her shorts and halter has discarded her mystery along with her yardage. Modesty is a potent lure.

He Makes It Difficult to Forget

Lawrence Craner Turns 'Remember the Day, Inc.' Into Prosperous Venture

By Virginia Irwin
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.

WHEN Lawrence M. Craner found himself in the doghouse after failing for 10 years in a row to remember his own wedding anniversary, he decided to do something about it. What Craner did was to go into the "remembering" business.

Now the proprietor of a prospering venture called "Remember the Day, Inc.," Craner already has some 800 clients—folks who want him to remind them not to forget an amazing assortment of things. He not only helps his clients remember wedding anniversaries and birthdays, he keeps them from forgetting dentists' appointments and dates on which income tax installments are due. One man has Craner remind him regularly to get a haircut.

"Years ago," Craner said in his small office on Lexington avenue here, "all the important dates were kept in the family Bible, but now that practice has gone out of fashion. Furthermore the pace of life has stepped up, leaving the average man in a pickle. We estimate that there are about 140 important dates in one man's life each year, dates ranging in importance from his mother-in-law's birthday to his monthly lodge meeting and no mere man could possibly remember them all."

Craner charges a fee of $1 to join his organization. A customer can send in as many names and dates as he wants. Five days before each date listed, the customer gets a reminder from Craner that there's a "day to remember" coming up. He also gets an order form in case he wants Craner to order flowers for the occasion. If the customer orders flowers, his membership fee is credited toward the purchase. Craner collects his money in commission from some 25 florists and nurseries, firms scattered around the country which thought Craner had a good idea in this remembering business and jumped at the idea of sponsoring him.

"Although most people like to send flowers on important occasions, a customer doesn't have to stick to flowers," Craner pointed out. "One fellow with a wife in the hospital about to have a baby had us send her some goose livers, caviar, Swedish meatballs and kosher pickles."

LAWRENCE M. CRANER . . . HE WENT INTO THE REMEMBERING BUSINESS.

THE BULK of Craner's business is, of course, reminding people of birthdays and anniversaries. He has one client, an insurance agent, who has supplied the birthdays of more than 400 customers and instructed Craner to send a single red rose to each customer on his natal day.

"I like to think that I am helping to put some of the graciousness back not only into everyday living but into business as well," says the man whose bad memory brought him a bright idea for a novel business. "In recent years it's come to the point where the only people we ever remembered were those who owed us money. I hope to see 'Remember the Day' change that. Remembrance is a gracious way of saying 'thank you.'

"For instance, I liked a request I got the other day. A young man had been paid quite a compliment by his boss. To show his appreciation he had me send the boss's wife a dish garden."

Although only about three months old, "Remember the Day" has taken care of some odd remembrances. One woman in New York has asked Craner to send her husband a bouquet of flowers on a certain day each month to remind him that she loves him. Her husband's present address is Sing Sing.

A LONG ISLAND man has instructed that his wife be reminded once a month to have a mole removed from her left shoulder. A young man recently married has asked that his mother-in-law be remembered on each mother's day with a cactus plant. Craner doesn't know whether the mother-in-law is fond of cactus plants or whether it's the young man's idea of a subtle way to give her the needle.

Craner's favorite order came from a G.I. about to be shipped overseas. The G.I. instructed that each of his five different girl friends be remembered with flowers once a month.

"The flowers are a wrist corsage, a shoulder corsage, a bouquet, a rose for the hair and a nosegay of violets," Craner said. "I like to speculate on the personalities of those five girls, especially the one who gets the nosegay of violets."

Once a member of the New York City Park Commission, Craner is finding a lot of fun and satisfaction in his new business.

"I think the world would be a lot happier place if we all did a little more remembering on important occasions," he said. "And that comes from a guy who should know, a guy who for 10 straight years forgot his own wedding anniversary."

Secrets of Charm

The Look in Your Eye

EYES right! When speaking of beauty, that means proper emphasis with eye shadow, eyebrow pencil, and mascara. Use them with a light touch, and see how much more expressive your eyes become.

Eye shadow should be just what it's called—a faint, elusive shadow that is never obvious in itself, but serves as a background for shining eyes.

Choose shadow by your own eye color: for blue eyes, blue shadow; for gray-blue eyes, gray-blue; for brown or hazel eyes, brown or green. Only on special occasion should you dramatize by a non-match.

APPLY EYE shadow to the center of your lids, fading it gradually upward and outward toward your brows. If your eyes are close-set, concentrate the shadow toward the outer corners of your lids to "stretch" the space between your eyes. If eyes are more prominent than you'd like leave more shadow on the center of the lids.

Next step, eyebrows. Apply eyebrow pencil to the hairs of your brows in gentle, feathery strokes. Avoid touching it to the skin unless your brows are sparse, or need extension. If so, apply pencil directly to your skin with short, light strokes. Blend in the make-up with your little finger to achieve a soft, natural effect.

Step three is mascara. Begin at the base of your lashes to apply it with a barely moistened brush, swooping upward and outward to the tips. Wait a second for lashes to dry, then use a clean, dry brush to separate the lashes and remove any surplus mascara. An eyelash curler with rubber bow that is removable—for cleaning—is an aid to even application of mascara. Adds glamour, too.

NEVER TOUCH mascara to your lower lashes, no matter how sparse or light they appear. Instead, use a soft, shadowy pencil. Draw an almost invisible line from a point just below the outside edge of the cornea to the outside corner of your eye. Don't let it get smudgy or fuzzy, or you'll acquire dark circles faster than fatigue will bring them.

If you do have the circle problem, your solution is a lighter foundation than your usual shade. Smooth it up under the lower lid, over the circles, out to the edge of your lower lashes. Apply this light coat, and blend it with your regular foundation, before you start to make up your eyes.

When all's done, take a look in your mirror. See how expressive your eyes are? Bet you're glad you discovered how really sparkling you can be!

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

FALSE. German psychologist M. Zelig found men could think offhand of only a few good things about women—attractive, kind, beautiful, etc. But men were good sports, vigorous, generous, logical, fair-minded, understanding and possessed of all the virtues and then some. Girls, men just can't resist telling the truth!

Answer to Question 2.

Anybody with an interest in the conservation of our soil, water, wildlife—and, indeed our own future lives on this planet—should understand this. When you see a butterfly, a tree, a rose, you should know that all are related and depend on each other for existence. In a fascinating book, "The Web of Life," nature student John Storer shows how nature is a great loom, weaving all things into one grand pattern which we call life. A book for school children, or anybody.

Answer to Question 3.

True. In his book, "Principles of Human Relations," Norman R. F. Maier relates that a business machine was introduced in one office. Employes were asked to study its effectiveness. They readily accepted the machine. In another office the same machine was introduced arbitrarily. Employe resistance continued for months.

School Year Is New Part Of Your Life

By Elinor Williams

A NEW part of your life—that's what the beginning of a new school year is, whether you're in junior high school or a senior with a diploma coming up in a few months.

So why not make it a big year? It'll help if you take a few, simple basic good manners along with you—they're easy to remember and a cinch to do, yet they'll give you more ease, more confidence and make you more attractive to everybody, girls, boys and grown-ups. They lead to more popularity, more friends, more fun all your life, because good manners show consideration for others.

Here they are . . . a mere handful, yet terrifically important because they show others what kind of person you really are:

1—Please.
2—Thank you.
3—"How do you do" and shake hands when you are introduced. Look at the person and repeat her or his name . . . "How do you do, Mrs. Smith."
4—"Thank you; it was lots of fun" or "Thank you; it was a lovely party" to the hostess when you leave a party, dance or any get-together where you were a guest.
5—Stand up when older people, men or women, enter the room or join your group. Remain standing until the older ones are seated; provide a chair for them, if necessary.

That's it! Easy, isn't it? Begin to make them a habit today.

Tweed Suits

Tweeds are continuing to be featured for many different types of dresses and suits. Among the most striking of the youthful suits is a black and white tweed model which has a bloused jacket and a straight skirt. The skirt buttons down the front and is finished with black braid. Jacket also is braid-trimmed. The suit has its own blouse, made of black jersey that has a tie neckline.

Left-Handers

By Glen R. Shepherd, M.D.

ARE you turning your child into a left-handed cripple? When children are born, they are neither right-handed nor left-handed.

That is the new idea finding acceptance among doctors and psychologists. Since our civilization—our tools and toys—is designed for right-handed people, children should be encouraged to be right-handed. This should start after the first year.

A one-sided pattern begins to develop at about 18 months of age. It continues for many years as one-sided skills are learned—catching a ball, using the knife and fork, using a crayon, and the many other tools of living.

IF YOU LET A CHILD CHOOSE FOR HIMSELF, he may accidentally select the wrong side. Encouraging him to use his right hand must be patient and gentle, not forceful.

If you strike him for using the left hand or use forceful language and tone of voice, you may simply make the child rebel. Then he might become left-handed in defiance and develop other personality difficulties.

But gently taking the knife out of his left hand and putting it in his right, and doing the same with the pencil or crayon, won't lead to any difficulties, unless the child's home life leads to contrariness. The personality reaction to lack of love, affection or security can result in left-handedness or in stuttering.

Guiding the child into becoming right-handed must start early. Handedness becomes more ingrained with each passing year. Each new activity offers an opportunity for right-sided training.

Medical authorities now claim that retraining that is done kindly and patiently is always possible in childhood and even later (as among the war-injured) without any ill effects occurring.

I RECEIVED A LETTER some time ago from the president of a Texas county department of education. He said, "I am a left-hander who has always resented being left-handed. In a way, I have never forgiven my father and mother for allowing me to be left-handed.

"We are all familiar with the right-handed scissors, tin snips, catcher's mitt, fishing reel, golf club, pencil sharpener, can opener, ice cream dipper, and many other things all made for right-handed people. In some cases they are impossible for a left-hander to use.

"Heavy-industry tools and presses cost tens to hundreds of thousands of dollars each and they are all designed for right-handed operators. Through erroneous teaching and training, an increasing number of people are deliberately made cripples in so far as their usefulness in certain industries is concerned."

That is how one intelligent man afflicted for a lifetime with left-handedness feels. Medical authorities agree with him in another of his paragraphs:

"If we leave the choice of handedness to the child, we are guilty of neglect, the same as if we fed it improperly, failed to bathe it or negligently exposed it to a dangerous disease. In the early formative years, we should choose right-handedness for it and not wait until the infant makes a bad choice, then try to retrain it."

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

MY problem is my husband. He drinks heavily which I wouldn't mind if he didn't curse and usually beat the children and me, and throw things. The oldest girl is 10 and she and the younger ones are all starting the same thing whenever they have fights. You would think his mother would tell him to stop. Instead she tells me she doesn't know why he should since he buys the drinks with his own money. He keeps all the money every week and I have to tell him which bills are due. That makes me feel like a beggar. I blame his family because when he comes back from visiting them he finds fault with me and the children. My mother-in-law always did talk against me. Now she is beginning to talk against my children.

MRS. B.D.

I agree his mother is to blame for letting him get started toward an abusive, ugly brand of conduct. But don't shift all the responsibility for your home to her shoulders. Don't ask her to make him straighten up and fly right. That's your job now. And if you don't want your four children to follow in his footsteps as they grow older, you'd better do something about it right now. If he won't listen to you, seek professional help about your next step. But you certainly don't have to let yourself and the children be kicked around because Mama puts her okay on such conduct.

Dear Martha:

With school starting again I will have some free time. Is there some place a housewife and mother can go one or two days a week for recreation? Is there some kind of work I can volunteer to do during school hours?

DAILY READER.

Child's Personality

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

ARE you responsible for forming your child's personality? And can you change him if you don't like him the way he is? Is it all, or is it mostly all, up to you? Can you take the credit if your son or daughter grows up to have a mature, "well-adjusted," effective personality? Conversely, is it your fault or the fault of his early childhood experiences if he turns out, as an adult, to be immature, socially inadequate, unhappy?

In other words, is the child's basic personality, or individuality, inborn, or is it fashioned from his life experiences?

Some child specialists, nowadays, say the child's individuality develops as a reaction to the emotional climate of the home. Thus a happy, outgoing family situation gives you a happy, outgoing child. A shy, inhibited, asocial family situation gives you a shy, inhibited, asocial child.

MOST OF YOU AS PARENTS do not agree with these specialists. Nor do we. You realize, as do we, that a happy home atmosphere is all to the good, but you know from your own experience that even the happiest home atmosphere is not enough to make some children happy and smooth functioning. And, on the other hand, many of you have children who have grown up to be extremely happy, well-adjusted individuals in spite of the most unfavorable childhood circumstances.

YOU TELL US THIS as many of you do, with surprise, pleasure and considerable interest with statements similar to this one: "We have three children and every single one of them is almost completely different from the others. Goodness knows, we treat them all alike. In fact, we bend over backward to be fair and to give them all equal privileges and equal love.

"But almost from the minute they were born they have been so utterly different from each other. The youngest one is so easy-going, friendly, comfortable. He loves everybody. Never has any trouble. The middle one is a rascal. Always on the go. Always getting into trouble. And the other one just doesn't seem to belong to this family at all. He's a real scholar. Always has his nose in a book. Always studying and working. Hardly seems to care for people at all."

Social Problems

By Emily Post

(With school opening this week, Emily Post turns to the etiquette problems of those in their teens.)

"THE rooms in our house are situated in a long, straight through line, with a closed-in porch, living room, dining room and kitchen. When my boy friend comes to the house, we usually sit in the closed-in porch. My parents often sit in the kitchen.

"When he arrives, they think that he should go out into the kitchen to greet them before sitting down with me. I think it is their place, as owners of the house, to come out and greet him. We are having quite an argument over this and would like you to settle it."

If he is a constant visitor in your house, he certainly does not have to find your mother and father to greet them (still less, they him) every time he comes to the house.

"MY DAUGHTER has been invited with a young man a number of times to dinner at the beautiful house of his friends, Mr. and Mrs. X, who are very prominent elderly people. The young man also has invited them (and my daughter) to dine in a restaurant several times. I think my daughter should now make some attempt to return their many kindnesses and I have suggested inviting them here. She thinks not, and I believe she is reluctant because our house is not furnished in the latest style. It is, however, a perfectly nice house and her father and I should be glad to entertain them. But she insists it is not necessary, nor even suitable, for her to try to make any return."

The fact that you have offered is all that is necessary and I think you would do better to let your daughter use her own judgment as to her obligation. You might remember that very few older people either expect, or actually want, any return from those who are very young.

He Broke Through the Iron Curtain

Polish Sailor Describes His Dramatic Last-Minute Escape to Freedom in England

By Antoni Klimowicz

ANTONI KLIMOWICZ, a 24-year-old Polish sailor, chose a bizarre and dangerous escape route from behind the Iron Curtain. He stowed away on a freighter and made it to London harbor before being discovered by British dock workers and taken into custody by his ship's Communist crew. In this second and last installment of his first-hand account, Klimowicz details the violent climax of his daring break-out into freedom.

ARMS LOCKED, LONDON POLICE LEAD ANTONI KLIMOWICZ THROUGH CROWDS ON THE DOCKS MOMENTS AFTER THE POLE HAD BEEN FREED FROM THE SHIP WHERE COMMUNISTS HAD HELD HIM DESPITE HIS PLEA FOR ASYLUM.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

MEMBERS of my ship's crew took me into the captain's cabin and asked many questions, with the accompaniment of prods and pushes and threats. As firmly as I could, I told them that I wanted to be put ashore and to be delivered to the British police. I did not wish to go back to Poland; I wanted to be a free man.

Only one thought was going through my brain: had the British abandoned me?

There was a slight bustle at the door of the cabin. One of the ship's officers came in, bringing with him a quiet, unobtrusive-looking man in civilian clothes. The man looked at me questioningly. He addressed the captain in good Polish and declared he was a British immigration officer. Was it true that there was a man asking for asylum?

I shook free and before any of them could speak, I uttered my plea for asylum and handed over my papers.

Wonder of wonders! The British official took the papers. Over the protests of the captain, he replied that the matter was up to the decision of his superiors, and it was his duty to report it. Then he left.

The ship's officers were furious with me, and showed it. I was a traitor, criminal, and I would get my just desserts when the ship anchored at Gdynia—with me on board. There was no hope for me; the British would never dare to take me off a Polish ship. Finally they took me down into a small cabin below the waterline, with a strong lock on the door, and a heavily barred window. There I was left, never alone. There was always some member of the crew with me.

I learned what would happen to me and to my family, who also would have to suffer for my bid for freedom. I was told that I could consider myself lost. Still I did not believe it—not even when they told me two days later, on Friday, that the British could not take any action.

An official of the Polish consulate in London came to see me, and sang a different tune. He told me that I had made a mistake, but I was a young man and did not understand. There was still time for me to return to the true fold.

"You are obviously a clever and enterprising young man," the man from the consulate said. "Such men deserve all possible assistance in our democratic country. What about sending you to school, to make you an officer, or an engineer? What would you say about that?"

Stubbornly, firmly, I repeated, I did not wish to go back. I wanted to be delivered to the British.

"The British will put you in prison," the man said. "They always do that to stowaways."

"I prefer to go to a British prison rather than return to Poland!" I shouted.

They took all my clothes away from me, and I was left naked, wrapped in a blanket. From time to time, various faces thrust themselves between the bars of the cabin window, angry faces, jeering faces spitting abuse. Once a man peered in who did not look like a Pole. And then a woman who made a terrible face at me.

The man did not say a word, but only stared with the deepest contempt and hatred in his eyes. Later when I was free, I was shown their photographs: They were Dr. Joseph Cort and his wife, Americans sailing for "political asylum" in Czechoslovakia.

Late Friday night, I suddenly felt the motionless ship stirring. From her depths arose a deep rumble; the engines were in motion. My heart was suddenly in my throat. I felt a wild hammering against my ribs, my mouth went dry. A sailor who sat with me in cabin cell laughed abruptly.

"There you are," he said, "you are going back."

I was going back. The words were like a death knell. I lay upon my bunk and stared into the darkness of the cell.

I could not expect a miracle, I thought. If I were some important man—a lawyer, a professor, an artist—they would have to make a greater effort to save me. But who am I? Just a sailor.

I lay motionless, weaving some some vague thoughts in my head. And then suddenly, without warning, the engines stopped. After a while they started again. They went on for perhaps half an hour and again stopped. I do not think that I have ever prayed as hard in my life as I prayed then.

MORNING came, and with it another Polish official, smiling and polite. Would I sign a declaration that I was returning willingly, he asked? He was ready to promise that nothing unpleasant would happen to me.

I replied wearily that I wanted to be left in England. I felt that something important was going on outside, and that it was connected with me. The sailors who came to my cabin or peered through the window looked preoccupied and slightly uneasy. They still insulted me, but without that triumphant air which they previously assumed.

Hours dragged on and still nothing happened. Now it was Saturday. When hope is nearly extinct, waiting hurts physically. Dusk fell gently, and the light was put on in my cabin.

Suddenly I heard quick steps in the corridor. Someone was barking orders. The sailor with me left the cabin quickly, switching off the light. I heard a key grinding in the lock.

Wildly I rushed to the door and hammered at it with my fists. Even if rescuers were coming, they would not find me. I was locked in, hidden, buried.

I heard the political officer shouting at me: "Be quiet, you dirty swine, or you will regret that you were ever born."

Silence. And then the noise of people coming—many people. And the sound of the English language and of angry Polish voices arguing in bad English. I felt a strong temptation to cry out: "Here I am!"—and could not. My voice was too choked with emotion.

Somebody tried at my door from the outside, and a firm English voice asked a question. Then I heard the captain of the ship replying nervously "The key is lost, I haven't got it." A moment's silence. Then the door shook under a terrific blow.

It was the axes of the British police, breaking down the door. Suddenly it burst open, and freedom in the form of men in dark blue uniforms stepped into my cabin.

"You are free," someone said to me in Polish, a man in civilian clothes. The men led me on deck. Sailors crowded around and tried to get at me. The police kept them back.

LATER I was told that 80 British policemen were entrusted with the task of my rescue, that the destroyer, Obdurate, stood nearby, and another destroyer waited in readiness at Chatham.

"But why?" I asked, dazed and quite overwhelmed. This was the answer:

"Free Poles organized intervention through Parliament, political circles, the government and the press. The Home Office and Foreign Office were discussing your fate, my boy." The speaker was a man with a twinkle in his eye.

"And they could not agree what course to take. So, they appealed to their superior—to Sir Winston himself. And Churchill — so people say — replied: "Take the boy off that ship."

"'But the captain will not agree,' they argued. And then —mind you, I was not there, but people say this is what happened — Sir Winston waved his hand and said: "Send six destroyers!"

On Tuesday, I was taken to the law courts, to stand before Lord Justice Goddard who had issued a writ of habeas corpus for me. I wore decent clothes given to me by the British. I left the court after a two-minute hearing as a free man. A week after my release, I learned that political asylum had been granted to me by the Home Secretary.

Now I am resting. My Polish friends took me from London to a house near Brighton. There is a garden around the house; there are trees, flowers and fresh green grass, and Polish children's voices are heard. Here I am safe and happy, and quickly regaining my health and strength.

But even now I sometimes think that it is all a dream, that suddenly I shall awake and find myself again in the dark, musty hold, and hear the scuttling of rats among the heavy cases.

And then I say to myself: "This is not a dream. You have been very lucky and should feel humbly grateful to God and to the people who have delivered you. A new life is opening before you, the life of a free man in a free world."

Painted Furniture

By Elizabeth Hillyer

WE'LL be seeing more painted furniture this fall. Antique white, softly shaded and with touches of gold, or gold and delicate colors are the favorites; although the palest of blue, pink, or green are sometimes used instead of white.

The furniture which returns to these soft colors is handsomely styled and beautifully made by top manufacturers who have special skills in fine detailing and finishing.

Note the example of the beautiful classic Italian bedroom furniture sketched. The over-all finish is antique white, pulls are pale gold and a delicate gray-blue trims drawers and panels.

Bedrooms planned for furniture like this are pale and elegant and may predict a new trend toward faint pastel color scheming.

MRS. T. O.—"The bedroom windows in our new house will be high on the wall and wider than they are long. I'd like to use cafe curtains but with rods set inside the window frames, won't light come in at the top to make the rooms too light for sleeping in the early morning? What do you suggest?"

Choose an opaque curtain fabric and make the top scallops shallow, and very little light will come in if the rods are set as high as possible. However, if you want complete darkness, make pinch pleat top curtains and set the rod above the window frame, wider than the frame so the curtains will cover the window completely. Do this if you use an opaque fabric. If you use casement fabric which filters light through, hang roll blinds behind the curtains within the window frames. There are light colored blinds through which light cannot penetrate.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THE slam contract reached in the following deal was speculative, to put it mildly, but if the declarer had taken the pains to figure out what he needed in the play, the outcome might have been very gratifying.

	♠KQ10 ♥AQ5 ♦J42 ♣8532
	♠5 ♥K432 ♦AKQ963 ♣A7

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	2N.T.	Pass
4♦	Pass	5♦	Pass
6♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's two no-trump response was decidedly skimpy, and South's final bid was an instance of partner-trapping. If South wanted to investigate slam possibilities he should have taken other steps—he should not have leaped to four diamonds and then, when North put him in game, continued to the slam.

However, to repeat, the compounded optimism of North-South should have paid off in this case because West was not inspired to lead a club. He selected his top heart. Dummy won and declarer drew the outstanding trumps. He then led his singleton spade to the queen, and when East smothered that honor, South was through to all intents and purposes. He could discard his club loser on the spade king, but the 4-2 break of hearts could not be overcome.

A little thought might have told South that it was futile to put up a high spade honor when West played low. Assuming that hearts would not break 3-3—an overwhelming probability in this case—it would not help South to get one discard on dummy's spades. If West had the spade ace, he would not put it up the first time and thereby definitely give South two spade tricks, and so declarer had only one real chance—that East had the ace and not the jack. By playing the spade 10 from dummy, South would exploit this chance. If East refused to take the spade 10 with the ace, declarer could then lead and pass the spade king, discarding a loser and setting up the spade queen for a sure discard.

Debut Party At Home for Green Twins

A TEA to be given this afternoon by Mrs. Thomas Leslie Rosen will serve as the coming-out party for her twin daughters, Miss Marian Croxton and Miss Elizabeth Leigh Green. The party will be given at their home, 2 Overhills, Ladue, which for the occasion will be decorated with pink flowers.

Guests will be greeted before the living room fireplace in a setting of pink carnations. In the dining room, papered with a pink carnation design, more of the blossoms will center the table on a lace cloth over pink.

Both the debutantes will wear white lace over pink taffeta, the gowns designed differently. Miss Elizabeth, who is called Betty, has chosen a strapless gown with a lace bodice and a lace apron over the pleated pink tulle skirt. Her sister's lace gown is tied with pink satin bows on the shoulders and the full skirt is corded with the satin. They will hold nosegays of pink roses. Mrs. Rosen will wear a navy blue lace gown finished at the off-shoulder neckline with white chiffon tied in a bow on one shoulder.

A group of debutantes will assist at the tea table. They are Miss Jean Hamilton Brown, Miss Lillian Tuttle Sheldon, Miss Marion Moreno Bischoff, Miss Anne Grant Smith, Miss Sally Brooks Woolwine, Miss Mary Gessner (Polly) Park, Miss Janet Dudley Crowell, Miss Mary John Wilson, Miss Cecil Arven Woodbridge, Miss Phyllis Vierheller and Miss Deborah Bair.

Here from out of town for the party are the twins' aunt, Mrs. Kenneth Barker of Elmwood, N. J., and Miss Elizabeth Green's Smith College roommate, Miss Jane Fowley of Louisville, Ky.

The two debutantes are graduates of Mary Institute. Miss Marian, who attended Bradford Junior College last year will enter Washington University this month. Her sister will return to Smith College.

My Day

Need for Caution by U.S., Russia

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

IT is certainly distressing to read that one of our planes has been shot down by Soviet aircraft. I imagine that our bomber was patrolling the coast and, as occasionally happens, found it difficult to keep from straying outside the narrow air lane into enemy territory.

In peacetime, it seems to me that such things require a certain amount of good will on both sides. Since the Soviet Union and the United States are not at war, they should give ample warning to any American plane that may wander off its course. They should give it a chance to get back before they actually shoot and run the risk of starting a war. We, on the other hand, should make sure that our boys take every precaution themselves. When the weather is such that it is difficult to follow a course, perhaps it would be wise to be overcautious.

I was very happy that the President did not follow Senator Knowland's rather hasty, belligerent reaction to this incident. Breaking off diplomatic relations with the U.S.S.R. does not seem to me at the present time to be the way to bring such unfortunate incidents to a close. Instead, suggestions for more careful behavior on both sides might bring some good results.

ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT in New York I had the pleasure of welcoming to this country the six young business and professional people here from Nottingham, England. Originally there were only two fellowships, and this was raised to four immediately after the war in memory of my husband. But as the years go by this three-month trip to the United States—during which each holder of a fellowship studies here the work in which he has already been active in Nottingham—evidently must have had good results, since the numbers have increased steadily to the current six.

This year there are three young women and three young men, and the range of their interests is wide. One girl is a textile designer, and another a social worker specializing in speech therapy. One boy is a surgeon, another is in industrial and personnel relations, a third in hotel and restaurant furnishings.

PRACTICALLY ALL of them are going to cover the whole United States, giving them a broad view of both their own special interests and of this country as a whole. As the years have gone on, I think the mayor and the committee who raise the money, and keep the interest in it alive, think of these fellowships as a means to increase good will and understanding between our two nations.

During my two days in town I did a number of other things, even finding time to go into Arnold Constable's and choose two dresses to meet the needs of the forthcoming lecture and organizing trips for the American Association for the U.N. They are beginning to come nearer and nearer, though when I planned for them I felt they were very far away.

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

Water Softening Equipment.

LOTS of men who brag about having tough beards don't have tough beards at all—they just have been shaving in hard water.

You'll find hard water in almost every part of the country and if it's sufficiently hard it will make life difficult not only for the guy who has to shave in it but for other members of the household and some of the household equipment.

Hard water is perfectly safe to drink but because it contains many minerals it does not get along too well with soap and has the nasty habit of depositing some of these minerals about. In time this deposit of minerals will clog up water pipes so that only a trickle can get through.

Hot water pipes and equipment that water is heated in take the worst beating because when water is heated it has a nasty habit of getting rid of these deposits faster than when it is cold.

If you have hard water you can solve the washing end of things by using a detergent for these, unlike ordinary soap, will not leave a hard scum on fixtures and will get the family washing clean. But this does not solve the problem of the pipes and hot water heating equipment. The best solution here is to install some sort of water softening equipment. This is moderately expensive stuff but having it on hand will eventually save you an expensive plumbing job.

If you don't wish to buy the equipment outright there are firms which will rent them to you for a small monthly charge.

Water softening equipment removes the various minerals from the water leaving you with water so soft that it can often make shaving in the morning a pleasure.

Pile sauerkraut into split frankfurters and broil. Serve on toasted frankfurter rolls. If desired, the frankfurters may be spead with mustard before the sauerkraut is added.

International Designer's Pattern

SYBIL CONNOLLY is the Irish heroine of the fashion story, virtually putting Ireland on the map in the highly competitive situation of leadership in the world of design.

At times, she is a little fey using homely, workaday fabrics for glamorous clothes, but there is certainly nothing fey about her theory of always creating for the further enhancement of the body, as is evidenced by today's model.

There is absolute balance in her use deep V seaming on the skirt and bodice, both Vs softened by gathering over the hip and bust. The V is repeated for the neckline, cut deeply but modestly.

Adaptable to many materials it works up beautifully in linen, plain or printed cottons, shantung, silk, faille and in sheer wool.

Bust.	Waist.	Hips.		Sizes.
34	24	35	inches	10
35	25	36	"	12
36½	26½	37½	"	14
38	28	39	"	16
40	30	41	"	18

Pattern S-234, size 12 requires three and three-eighth yards 36-inch material for dress and three-eighth yard of 36-inch material for lining.

To order a pattern address International Designer Patterns, care of the Post-Dispatch, Post Office Box 999, Dept. SX-17, General Post Office, New York 1, N.Y. State size. Send $1. Airmail handling 25 cents extra. Add four cents, for handling, if paid by check or money order.

The reason for rinsing spaghetti or macaroni as soon as it is finished cooking, is so that it won't stick together. If sauce is to be added to it as soon as it is drained, rinsing isn't necessary.

Caraway Oatmeal Bread

Ingredients: Two cups sifted flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, one egg, one and one-half cups milk, one cup uncooked rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned), two tablespoons caraway seed, one-fourth cup shortening (melted).

Method: Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat egg enough to combine white and yolk; add milk and beat to combine. Add egg-milk to sifted dry ingredients and stir lightly only until dry ingredients are dampened. Fold in rolled oats, caraway seed and melted shortening. Pour into one-pound loaf pan that has been greased and lined with greased waxed paper on the bottom. Bake in moderate (350 degrees F.) oven 55 minutes to an hour, or until tester inserted in center comes out clean. Store in tightly-covered box one day before slicing.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

THAT WORD "BLATANT" AND BLEAT

OUR correspondent refers to "blatant" as a "fancy word" and asks which "a" has the accent, on the assumption that its origin is French.

The fact is that blatant is first-cousin to the good old Anglo-Saxon (Teutonic) bleat! In current use it frequently serves in allusion to brazeness, to behavior that is impudent or in some way flaunts the opinion of others. However, all this is by extension of its actual meaning, which is loud, harsh, clamoring—as a bellowing calf! Washington Irving illustrated its significance nicely when he wrote, "Glory, that blatant word, which haunts some military minds like the bray of the trumpet!"

All of which takes us to bleat, to make a noise like a sheep or calf! The Old English "bleten," whence this comes to us, is only one of the forms in which this appears in several Teutonic tongues, always as the cry of the animal. And when metaphor is made of it—bleat and bleaters are not hard to find in rhetorical use—the animal is rarely out of sight. Indeed the word seems to be of imitative origin, that is, in the sound of a reasonable facsimile of the cry of a sheep or calf. Bleat, and blatant—good, plain English words.

Sandwich Spread

Mix deviled ham with cream or cream-style cottage cheese for a sandwich spread. Add minced chives or parsley, prepared horseradish or Worcestershire sauce for extra seasoning.

Quick salad for small-fry: orange gelatin with finely grated carrots added to it. Serve on shredded lettuce with a mild-flavored salad dressing.

Chapter Thirty-one.

KINNAIRD, a bandage about his head and showing several cuts and bruises on his face, stood outside Fugger's store as Laura Vesser came out a minute or two after 12.

She exclaimed, "You're hurt!"

Kinnaird made a gesture of dismissal. "I was a hero this morning . . . almost." He took her arm. "I'll buy your lunch."

She flashed him a smile. "I've only a half hour."

"Long enough." He steered her toward the Texas saloon, but as they got to the door, Laura pulled back. "Couldn't we eat at the Bon Ton?"

"There's a—a friend here, wants to talk to you."

Dubiously, Laura allowed herself to be led into the Texas saloon.

Lily Leeds was standing in the door of her office. She backed in. "How are you, Miss Vesser? I'm Lily Leeds."

A table had been set up inside the office, with chairs for three. Food was already on the table. Kinnaird closed the door.

"Sit down," said Lily. "We'll eat while we talk."

Kinnaird pulled out a chair and Laura sat down. Lily and Kinnaird also seated themselves and began to eat, but Laura fidgeted with her food. She looked up suddenly and found Lily's eyes on her.

"I wanted to meet you," declared Lily. "Ive heard so much of you from Wes that I wanted to see what you were like."

Laura looked at Lily in astonishment. "Wes talked to you . . . about me?"

"Not exactly. He doesn't talk much—at least not to me. But he came in here before he left and told me he was going. I knew it was because of you."

Laura's eyes clouded. "Why should he leave town because of me?"

"Because he's in love with you."

Laura's hand twitched suddenly and she knocked over her cup of coffee. In the confusion of clearing up, she recovered herself. But if she thought Lily would be distracted by the incident, she was mistaken.

Lily's eyes narrowed. "Where has Wes Tancred gone to?" she demanded.

"Didn't he tell you where he was going?" Laura asked.

"No, he didn't."

* * *

LAURA pushed back her chair. "I've got to get back to work." "Just a moment," exclaimed Lily. "That fine employer of yours has been accusing Wes Tancred of killing the mayor and first thing you know he'll be sending out a warrant for his arrest."

"Not through me," said Kinnaird.

"He doesn't have to go through you, you know that as well as I. I want to warn Wes."

"I've got to go," said Laura firmly. She started for the door.

Kinnaird grinned at the furious Lily as Laura went out. "You told me you just wanted to meet her. And then it turned out to be a cat fight. I don't aim to be a referee."

Kinnaird sobered. "But he's run out on her."

"No, he hasn't. She knows where he is. She's going to meet him later."

"I doubt that."

"Don't keep your fingers crossed. She can't see you, Lee. Not as long as there's Tancred."

Laura Vesser climbed down from the stage.

Tancred came up, leading the fresh horses. He saw Laura, but did not speak to her. For a moment or two Tancred and the agent were busy hitching up the fresh team. The stage driver went around to the boot and took out a valise.

"Here you are, Miss!"

He climbed back on his perch, waited until Tancred hitched up the last trace. Then he shouted, "Hiyah!"

The horses sprang forward and the coach started off. Then the agent turned to Laura. "No 'commodations here for people."

"I know," she said, "but my name is Laura Vesser and I'd hoped you could put me up until the next stage."

The agent gave a start and his eyes darted in the direction of the grave behind the station. He said in a sympathetic tone, "I think we might manage, ma'am."

Laura walked around the stage station, back to her father's grave. When she returned, the stage was several miles away and Tancred had already rubbed down and fed the tire horses.

He said, "Did you know I was here?"

Friday Meal

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

AMONG the continents of the world, Africa ranks second in area. It contains more than 11,000,000 square miles.

In that vast area, we might expect to have a big population, but the fact is different. The average number of people is only about 17 to the square mile.

The average in Europe is 209 to the square mile. Asia has 122 people for each square mile.

We may wonder why Africa is so far behind Europe and Asia in density of population. There are several reasons, including the fact that much of northern Africa is desert land. The mighty Sahara spreads from the Atlantic ocean eastward to the Red sea.

IN THE MIDST of the desert is the valley of the Nile river. Thanks to the overflowing waters of the Nile, and to the delta at the river's mouth, a fine area exists for crops. In that area is Egypt, a country with 19,000,000 people.

South of the Sahara desert is a vast region made up largely of jungles. In this area are colonies which belong to several nations in Europe, especially to Great Britain, France and Belgium.

Millions of dark-skinned natives live in the colonies, but white people form only a small proportion of the population north of the Union of South Africa.

In low parts of Africa's Torrid Zone, the climate is too hot, humid and rainy for comfort. Some persons from Europe manage to live in those places, but usually they are anxious to get back to their homes.

FARTHER AWAY from the coast are many stretches with hills and high valleys. In these places white people could enjoy the climate, but there are other troubles, including dangerous animals and tsetse (TSET-see or SET-see) flies.

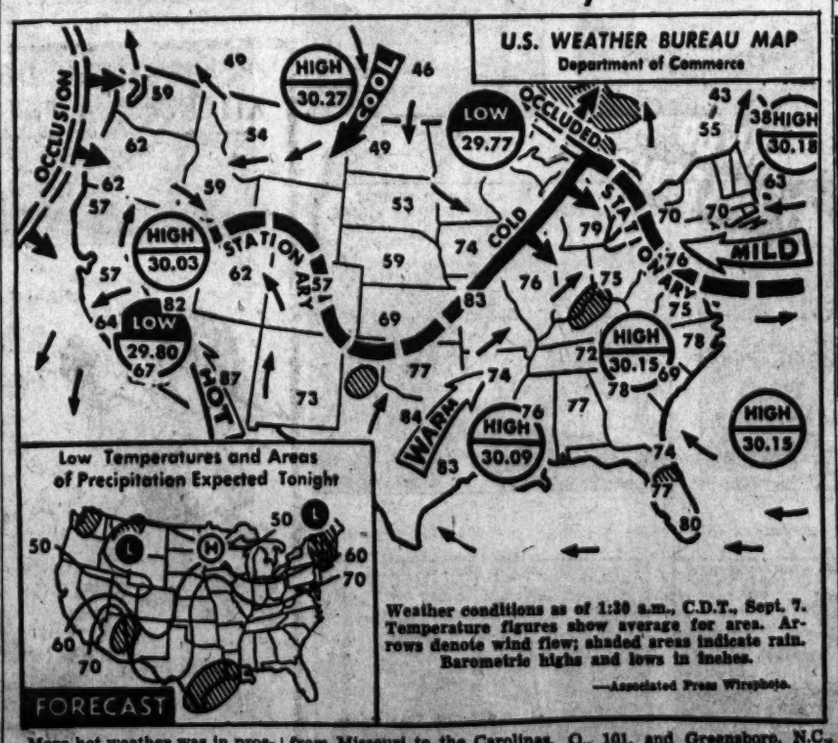

MANY AFRICAN CATTLE SUFFER FROM SICKNESS SPREAD BY TSETSE FLIES.

With modern weapons it would be fairly easy to check the dangerous furry animals and reptiles, but tsetse flies offer more trouble. These pests are slightly larger than houseflies. They bite livestock, especially cattle, and soon afterward the cattle are likely to waste away and die.

To obtain a free copy of the illustrated leaflet "Vitamins and Minerals" in Nature's food send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Uncle Ray in care of the Post-Dispatch.

Heat Is Still On in Many Areas

Weather conditions as of 1:30 a.m., C.D.T., Sept. 7. Temperature figures show average for area. Arrows denote wind flow; shaded areas indicate rain. Barometric highs and lows in inches.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

More hot weather was in prospect for broad areas of the nation today, following record-breaking heat in the southeastern states yesterday.

Labor day temperatures soared into the 100s in many cities — including St. Louis — from Missouri to the Carolinas. The high here was 101. Charlotte, N.C., sweltered in 104-degree weather, the hottest on record there. Louisville reported 104, record for the date. Other cities with readings in the 100s were Richmond and Lynchburg, Va., and Cincinnati and Dayton, O., 101, and Greensboro, N.C., 100.

Cool readings prevailed, however, in some parts of the country. The mercury fell to 36 at Leadville, Colo., this morning and 37 at Bismarck, N.D. St. Louis had a low of 77, and it was a steamy 81 at Galveston, Tex.
